ALL BAVARIA QUIET, BERLIN RESUMES TALK WITH ENTENTE

Seeks After Ruhr Surrender to Learn Their Attitude on June Reparation Offer.

HITLER GIVES UP THE FIGHT

Chancellor Asks the Munich Cabinet to Rescind the Local Emergency Decree.

POINCARE HOLDING BACK

Will Wait to See if Ruhr Resistance Really Ends Before He Takes Action.

BERLIN, Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—With the Munich situation having calmed down and the internal situation generally safeguarded for the time being through the provisions of the Government's emergency proclamation, Chancellor Stresemann is directing official activities toward accomplishing a speedy liquidation of the situation in the Ruhr and the Rhineland with the purpose of facilitating an early readjustment of Germany's foreign affairs.

The Bavarian flurry no longer is viewed as harboring menace to the situation at home, a working understanding having been reached with the Bavarian Premier, von Knilling, which, it is believed, will relieve the Berlin Government of any immediate concern over developments in Munich, especially as reports from the Bavarian capital continue reassuring.

An official communication issued tonight sets forth the reasons which prompted the Government to proclaim a state of emergency throughout federal territory. It says the Government's action has been wrongly interpreted abroad. The precautionary measure, the official statement declares, was dictated primarily by a determination to forestall any attempt to create disturbances in the present precarious economic, financial and social situation obviously the result of the French policies in the Ruhr and the abandonment of passive resistance.

By proclaiming a state of emergency, it adds, the Government proposes to make the most effective use of such defensive resources as are at its disposal and promptly quell any attempt to place the Government of the republic in jeopardy.

Hitler Sends Followers Home.

All reports this morning indicated that normal conditions prevailed in Munich, Nuremberg, Augsburg and other points in Bavarian territory. Hitler has ordered his followers to return to their homes and await his call at a more favorable opportunity.

The Central and Bavarian Governments now are discussing the suggestion of the former that the Bavarian emergency decree should be withdrawn, as it has been superseded by the decree of President Ebert, and it is hoped that at a not distant date it will be possible to rescind both decrees.

Chancellor Stresemann and the members of his Cabinet were less concerned today over the Bavarian situation than as to what the immediate future holds in store for the Government with respect to the impending new adjustment of its foreign relations.

Chancellor Stresemann has resumed active contact with the envoys of the Entente and was in conference last night with the English and French Ambassadors and the Belgian Minister. The subjects presumed to have been discussed were the question of the early resumption of formal negotiation, and the attitude of the allied powers toward the German reparation proposals of June 7.

The Government, it was stated, has presented two candidates for the German Ministry at Brussels, as Dr. Landsberg will not return to his former post as Germany's diplomatic representative in Belgium.

No Excitement in Bavaria.

MUNICH, Sept. 28.—The appointment of Dr. von Kahr as dictator seems to have aroused more excitement outside Bavaria than in Munich itself.

In the early morning yesterday crowds on their way to work paused to read the black and white proclamation and passed with a shrug of the shoulders or a mild expression of approval. By late evening the streets were thronged with expectant sightseers but scarcely a single unusual incident occurred.

During the day reinforcements of Reichswehr and Green Police who marched through the streets attracted little attention, as it was thought that Dr. von Kahr would hardly run the risk of an open clash with Adolph Hitler on the first day of his reign. At a meeting which was held by the Fatherland Association in conjunction with other patriotic organizations during the morning Hitler, who is leader of the political section, was not present to support a vote of confidence in von Kahr.

During the afternoon his supporters declared fourteen meetings would be held in spite of the Dictator's prohibition.

The latter merely issued orders through the Chief of Police that the meetings were to be stopped at all costs and Hitler had no other option than to climb down then and there.

Small bands of his uniformed "guards" could be seen striding defiantly through the streets, many with steel helmets in their hands, on their way to a meeting hall. A few hours later they returned disappointed to their homes. Their only achievement had been to tear down prohibitory handbills which had been posted over Hitler's summonses in unfrequented streets.

MUNICH, Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—Barring the presence of flaring placards which are posted all over the city and the presence of reinforced police patrols, the casual visitor to Munich would never suspect that the city was under a mod-

London Blames Her Ills on Us; Lays Accidents to Speed Mania

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Many Englishmen have complained that London is becoming more Americanized every day, and one of their grievances is over the tendency of the English newspapers to forsake their traditional style for glaring headlines, after the manner affected by some American publications.

Now the country across the sea is receiving most of the blame for the alarming increase in street accidents in London. The latest report shows that 171 people were killed in 18,199 accidents in the streets of the capital during April, May and June, the largest number in a similar period in the city's history.

Several of the London newspapers, pointing out that this increase is due to the ever increasing hurry, declare it is the result of the further spread of the American idea.

AMERICANS SPEED LLOYD GEORGE HERE

Society in London Assures Warm Welcome and He Voices His Purpose in Coming.

WILL THANK US FOR WAR AID

Harvey Praises and Jests at the Premier, Who Sails for New York Today.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—"I go to the United States not to speak, though it is just possible the opportunity may be offered me to say a word or two," said Lloyd George today. He was speaking at a luncheon given him as a send-off by the American Club at the Savoy. Ambassador Harvey was in the chair and the hall was crowded, not only by members of the club but by many of the ex-Premier's political supporters and Cabinet colleagues.

"I shall be neither a missionary nor a bootlegger," he began. "I shall neither preach sound doctrine nor smuggle bad whiskey."

He was going to Canada to express to her England's great gratitude for what she did in the war, and in America he wished to see how she was dealing, with the freedom of a young nation, with problems similar to those of Great Britain.

Then assuming the rôle of a veteran statesman and explaining that he was "the only Minister in any of the belligerent countries who started with the war and who was a Minister at the end of the war," Lloyd George thrilled his audience with a revelation of the depth of feeling which he had seen the United States enter the fighting ranks. With a burst of eloquence he pictured the position of the allied cause in the Spring of 1917. Two of the Allies—Rumania and Serbia—he said, had recently been destroyed. Russia, which had seemed strongest of all, had collapsed. Nothing was left but France, who was bleeding to death, and Great Britain had practically all her young manhood already enrolled.

The speaker paused and amid a deep silence went on:

"Just then that young Hercules of the West came striding along, fearlessly, dauntlessly, and took his stand here by the side of the armies of France and of Great Britain. Do you know what that meant? You cannot understand it. I want to say what an old allied Prime Minister thought at that moment."

Lloyd George's departure for a several weeks' trip across the Atlantic has roused a good deal of resentment among the rank and file of his party. One of them who signs himself National Liberal candidate has written to The London Times to complain that at the moment of crisis, when all political parties are going over their programs, Lloyd George sets sail for the United States and his chief whip departs for Czechoslovakia. The National Liberals, he declares are thus left not only without a policy but without leaders, and resent it bitterly. The Asquithian Liberals have not been blind to their chance and are trying harder than ever to attract back the Lloyd Georgians to their ranks, and his absence seems likely seriously to weaken his political authority.

LONDON, Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—David Lloyd George had a stirring send-off today from the members of the American Society, who gave a luncheon in his honor on the eve of his departure for a tour of Canada and the United States.

STRIKING PRESSMEN BY A HEAVY VOTE DECIDE TO RETURN

Accept Berry's Conditions as to International Cards and Guarantees.

TOLD THEY WERE "IN A JAM"

Even Simons Advised a Vote in the Affirmative on the Demands.

GOMPERS CONDEMNS STRIKE

Wires President Berry That the Action of the Local Union Was an "Awful Blunder."

The striking New York newspaper pressmen, members of Web Pressmen's Union Local 25, now dissolved by the International Pressmen's Union for having called an illegal strike on Sept. 17, decided last night, at a meeting held in Beethoven Hall, to apply for International Union cards and to return to work under the new contract made by the International with the New York Newspaper Publishers' Association. The proposal to apply for work was carried by an overwhelming majority. Those of the strikers who are acceptable to the publishers will be taken back into such positions as remain vacant.

The meeting was held to consider a report made by a committee of the foremen and assistant foremen, who interviewed International President Berry on Wednesday night as to the terms upon which the men might return to work, and brought back two proposals which they recommended should be accepted. The report said:

"The committee beg to report that we have held a conference with President Berry and the Board of Directors of the International Union in accordance with instructions given us to try and arrange some way whereby the striking newspaper web printing pressmen of New York might return to work in a manner agreeable to them and having been assured by President Berry there was no blacklist in so far as the International Union was concerned, and to his knowledge none in so far as the New York Newspaper Publishers Association was concerned, and being further assured President Berry would do everything in his power, acting in conjunction with the committee, to have returned to their former positions every striking pressman and junior pressman, including every foreman and assistant foreman; that no striker would be penalized or disciplined for his activity, except where it can be proven the striker has been guilty of sabotage, which action neither the local nor International Union could condone; and having also requested the committee to co-operate with the Board of Directors of the International Union in working out such details as may be necessary in the restoring of peaceful and normal conditions in the pressrooms of New York City.

"After careful consideration of all matters, we recommend the following:

"1. That the membership immediately apply for reinstatement in the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America and as soon thereafter as possible report for work at their former places of employment.

"2. That our membership endorses and accepts the provisions of the international contract as executed between the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America and the Publishers Association of New York City, and that in the acceptance of same we give such guarantees as may be necessary in the fulfillment of all of the provisions of the agreement, copies of which have already been placed in the hands of the entire membership.

Vote to Return Overwhelming.

After two hours of discussion a motion was made by Al Kreitler to accept the report of the committee, including the conditions of the International Union. A viva voce vote showed approximately 1,200 in favor of returning to work and 100 opposed.

It was explained that the proposed method of returning to work would be that former chapel chairmen would make lists of the pressmen still out and would ask for International Union cards for these men which would permit them to resume work.

Speakers told the strikers that they were "in a jam" and that they had better vote in favor of the Berry proposals. David Simons, President of the defunct Union No. 25 said he would support the men in whatever action they took and advised them to vote "yes."

After the meeting Mr. Simons made a statement attacking President Berry as "the man responsible for all the

Coolidge Will Head Harding Memorial; Sawyer to Retire to Push Organization

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Consideration was given by President Coolidge and his Cabinet today to the proposal that a memorial be erected in honor of President Harding, and it was indicated that such a proposition would have the backing of the Chief Executive and the Cabinet members who served under Mr. Harding.

A corporation headed by Mr. Coolidge and the members of the Cabinet probably will be formed, in which many other friends of Mr. Harding will be associated, to raise money and direct the building of the memorial.

The form and location have not been decided but the suggestion has been made that the memorial be erected in Marion, Ohio, the home and burial place of Mr. Harding.

The early retirement from the Government service of Brig. Gen. Charles E. Sawyer, who was personal physician to President Harding, is forecast in an announcement by the Veterans' Bureau this evening that because of General Sawyer's desire to devote all his time to the organization of the Harding Memorial Association the orders for his assignment as Acting Community Manager at Federal Park, Md., have been revoked.

Soon after President Coolidge took up his residence in the White House it was stated there that General Sawyer would be retained by Mr. Coolidge as his personal physician. General Sawyer is Chairman of the Hospitalization Board of the Veterans' Bureau. When announcement was made recently that General Sawyer would be assigned as Acting Community Manager at Federal Park it was explained that the work of the Hospitalization Board was practically completed.

Mrs. Harding will come to Washington early in November to live in Massachusetts Avenue. She intends to leave Marion as soon as possible after the Harding memorial meeting on Nov. 2, the fifty-eighth birthday of her husband.

An engagement has been made for David Lloyd George to call on Mrs. Harding at Marion within a day or two following the memorial services.

PAPYRUS COMES HERE FOR $100,000 RACE

English Derby Winner Arrives to Meet Best U. S. 3-Year-Old on Oct. 20.

STANDS LONG VOYAGE WELL

Will Start Training Today at Belmont Park for International Contest.

Papyrus, winner of the English Derby, arrived here yesterday to meet the best American three-year-old in an international race at Belmont Park on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 20, for a purse of $100,000 and two gold trophies. The Cunard liner Aquitania carrying the Derby winner reached Quarantine late in the afternoon, docking in the early evening.

Papyrus will not disembark until this morning at 8:30 o'clock. He will be taken directly to Belmont Park, where he will be exercised at a walk. This light form of exercise will be continued for seven days, after which he will be put into hard training for the race and continue right up to the time of the contest.

In the party which accompanied the English Derby winner to the United States were his trainer, Basil Jarvis; Dr. V. Price-Jones, veterinarian; Edward L. Vanham, Papyrus's exercise boy since the colt first came to the races; T. W. Saw and Harry Morrows, grooms, and Fred Lowe, a farrier. The cat which was supposed to accompany Papyrus as a mascot was left in England.

Papyrus stood the journey surprisingly well, although there were two days at the beginning when terrific storms were encountered. Both Papyrus and Bar Gold, his stable companion, were sick during the storm, but from the third day on they showed improvement and began to eat regularly, and Trainer Jarvis said last night that he was perfectly satisfied with the condition of his charge.

Two Bowls of Oats Daily.

Papyrus ate two bowls of oats every day during the journey from the third day on, all the hay he could eat and twice during the week was given a bran mash. After the third day he was exercised for three-quarters of an hour each day in his stall with the exercise boy up. He also was given three complete massages daily during the trip across.

Dr. Jones said that Papyrus at no time showed a temperature and that he did not believe that the change in climate and from a turf to a dirt track would seriously affect his chances in the race.

Dr. Jones gave out the following statement last night:

"In all my experience with horses I have never handled a horse with the kind disposition of Papyrus. In the Derby and the St. Leger he was the perfect gentleman of the party. In his workouts and in his stall he never frets or worries, and he is not afraid of large crowds. When he parades to the post before a great crowd he seems almost a dead horse, but when the race starts he is full of fire and running, as his record shows."

Papyrus Stands Inspection.

After the Aquitania docked and most of the passengers of the first and second classes had landed Papyrus held a brief reception for a few privileged ones before retiring for the night. Trainer Jarvis then added that the colt was a bit nervous about the screeching of the tug whistles and the noise and confusion over the landing and he hoped that his visitors would not stay long so that Papyrus could settle down for the night.

Papyrus was stripped about 9:30 o'clock and was found to be sweating a bit. Saw, the groom, went to work on him with a towel and the colt grew a bit playful with his hind legs and danced about a bit until the visitors passed out of the big air-cushioned quarters.

Papyrus, stripped in his box, looks a larger, bigger-boned colt than Zev or My Own, very powerfully muscled and appearing as if no distance of ground would be too much for him. He is darker than Zev, if anything, his satin sides appearing almost black in the half light of the single lamp. In conformation he reminds one more of My Play or Playfellow than of Zev. Jarvis said that in bright daylight white ticks could be discerned in his coat, although there is no gray in his ancestry.

Jarvis was greatly impressed with the arrangements that have been completed for the transportation and care of his charge. He examined the special gangway with care and felt that it could not be improved upon. When Papyrus and Bar Gold leave the ship they will walk into Joseph E. Widener's palatial horse van for the journey to Belmont Park. Bar Gold, by the way, is a thoroughbred, a four-year-old colt, and is a proficient jumper. Jarvis bought him especially to be the stable com-

VICTIMS STILL IMPRISONED

Flood, Rain and Snow Block Rescuers Seeking to Reach the Submerged Cars.

CASPER, Wyo., Sept. 28.—Plunging into the swirling torrent of flooded Cole Creek late last night, when a weakened railroad bridge collapsed, Burlington passenger train No. 30 took an unknown number of people to their death.

A conservative estimate of the dead is believed to be forty. Some persons maintain that many others lost their lives, while railroad authorities say fewer were lost.

Rescue workers, rendered helpless by rain and snow that fell intermittently throughout today, and the irresistible torrent that was surging through the normally dry creek bed, stood by, unable to do anything. As the day wore on newspaper men noticed that the cars were slowly settling beneath the water.

This afternoon the known dead consisted of Nicholas Schmets of Douglas, Wyo.; B. E. Schultz of Casper, a baggageman, and an unidentified man.

Partial List of Missing.

A partial list of others missing and believed to have lost their lives is as follows:

MONTGOMERY, M. D., Denver.

Bodies Visible in Wreck.

Out of the eighty persons believed to have been on the train about forty have been accounted for. The estimate of the loss of life is based on statements made by passengers who passed through the day coaches prior to the wreck. These coaches are under water and the death figure probably will not be known for some time.

Although the bodies of several victims are visible, an attempt to reach them was out of the question, as the creek is seventy-five feet wide and extremely swift. Everything possible was being done, railroad officials said, but little could be accomplished toward recovering the bodies until the waters recede.

Railroad men today declared their belief that the accident could not have been prevented. An hour before the train, swinging around a slight curve on schedule time, crashed through the bridge spanning the small stream, a track walker reported that he had inspected the structure and found it safe.

Weakened by heavy storms and with its edges torn away by the torrent as the result of a cloudburst, the small bridge was in no condition to withstand its heavy load of steel, it was said later.

The train, back to the second coach, is submerged and that car is standing on end almost under water. The Pullman stood on end throughout the night and today its support washed away and it fell into the stream. The Pullman is believed to contain the bodies of three passengers and a porter.

L. D. Coburn, conductor; M. A. Robinson of Salida, Col., and D. L. Littleton, a porter, saved many of the passengers of the Pullman. Three times Coburn and Robinson, guided by a rope

MRS. WEBB MURDERED WITH SLOW POISON, HER UNCLE DECLARES

W. T. Hunter Tells of Last Illness of Rich Woman Who Died in Biltmore Club.

SAYS SHE FEARED DEATH

She Made Two Wills, but Refused to Sign a Third One Just Before She Died.

HUSBAND HEIR IN SECOND

Toxicologists Will Not Be Able to Determine Cause of Death for Ten Days.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—William T. Hunter, uncle of Mrs. Charles Webb, who died Tuesday at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club at Rye, N. Y., declared at his home at Devon, near here, this evening, that his niece had been deliberately poisoned. He would not say whom he suspected, or why he believed the drug was given her.

"Gertie," said Mr. Hunter, "was given bichloride of mercury to cause her death. That's a bold statement, but there is little doubt in my mind that it is true. It was given to her in very small doses so that death would come slowly."

"Do you think she poisoned herself accidentally; that she mistook the poison for medicine the physicians prescribed for her?" Mr. Hunter was asked.

"No, there was nothing accidental or suicidal about the whole thing," he said. "She was poisoned by some one else."

Standing on the lawn on his estate in the little town of Devon, of which he had been Mayor several terms, Mr. Hunter told the story of the last few weeks of Mrs. Webb's life. For a background he had thousands of dahlias of a score of different colors. One strain he has called the "Gertie Gorman" dahlia as a tribute to his niece. It was a prize winner at a recent county fair. Since his retirement from the insurance and brokerage business, Mr. Hunter has taken up flowers as a hobby. Besides, he is known as a globe-trotter and encircled the world with his wife only last year. He was also one of the founders of the Devon Horse Show and has always taken an active part in the town's civic affairs.

When Mr. Hunter was first asked to comment upon Mrs. Webb's death and the Coroner's investigation, he refused to make any statement, but after he had been told that a New York official had found traces of bichloride of mercury in Mrs. Webb's viscera, he thrust his clenched right hand into the palm of his left and exclaimed:

"Bichloride of mercury; just as I thought."

He then called to his wife, sister of Mrs. Webb's late mother, who was seated with a friend on the veranda, that it was bichloride of mercury.

Tells of Mrs. Webb's Life.

Walking slowly to the gate, Mr. Hunter gradually began his story, which was interrupted at least a half dozen times through the approach of neighbors and laborers, whom he greeted.

"I want to make this clear, first of all," said Mr. Hunter. "Gertie was a very sensible girl and a very simple girl. She wasn't the kind of a girl who liked to go out to dances all the time or smoked cigarettes, or anything like that. She didn't like men at all, in fact, and the family was very much surprised when they heard that she intended to marry Webb. That statement of his that he had to wait ten years for her to say 'yes' is right. That's the kind of a girl she was.

"After her mother died several years ago, Gertie became very much attached to Mrs. Hunter. She visited us very often and came here around the middle of almost every month to visit her mother's grave in the cemetery here. She laid flowers on the grave and showed, in every way, how she missed her, and now Gertie will be buried alongside her.

"Usually we would take her for a spin in one of our cars to Atlantic City, while she was here, and if she went somewhere without us, she would always drop us a card to let us know she was thinking of us. It was because we had'nt heard from her in some days that we suspected she was not well, and then we finally got a card from Webb that she was sick at the Country Club.

"About a month ago she told us she

Will Limit the Hospitality At Imperial Conference

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The Dominion Premiers who are here for the imperial conference have received so many invitations to social affairs that they have been forced to let it be known that it will be impossible for them to accept all the hospitality that has been designed for them. Consequently they are not expected to attend more than a small percentage of the banquets arranged, and it is probable that the menus at these will be made less formidable than at first intended.

The Daily Mail, applauding this decision, recalls the imperial conference of 1907, when the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, then Canadian Premier; the late Premier Louis Botha of South Africa and the late Dr. Leander Starr Jameson of Cape Colony were simultaneously ill from overbanqueting.

The first meeting of the conference will be held at 11 o'clock Monday morning at 10 Downing Street, the official residence of the British Premier. It will meet again on Wednesday and Friday, by which time it is expected that Premier Bruce of Australia will have arrived.

LEHMAN IS NAMED FOR APPEALS COURT

Democratic State Committee Makes Choice Unanimous, After Leaders Confer.

SMITH IN KEYNOTE SPEECH

Reaffirms Platform of Syracuse Convention and Assails the Republican Assembly.

Supreme Court Justice Irving Lehman was nominated unanimously last night by the Democratic State Committee, at Town Hall, as a candidate for Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals to succeed Judge John W. Hogan of Syracuse, who will retire under the age limit at the end of the year. No other name was offered.

Friends of Justice Lehman said last night they had received assurances from Republican leaders that he would be acceptable to them, but that no other Democratic candidate who has been discussed would do. The Republican State Committee is to meet this afternoon to make a nomination.

In Republican circles it was said last night that the prospect of the committee endorsing the Democratic nominee might be regarded as doubtful, at least. Many influential Republicans favor the selection of a Republican.

The nomination was the only official business before the committee. After the committee, sitting as a nominating body, had adjourned Governor Smith made a speech in which, as spokesman for his party, he pledged adherence to the progressive platform adopted at Syracuse a year ago. He urged the election of a Democratic Assembly to make possible the fulfillment of pledges in the Syracuse platform which at this year's legislative session were blocked by a Republican Assembly.

Governor Warmly Received.

The Governor was greeted with applause when presented by Herbert C. Pell Jr., Chairman of the State Committee. There were frequent bursts of applause throughout his speech. This had been prepared in advance, but the Governor departed from it to ridicule charges in a pamphlet recently issued by the Republican Women's State Executive Committee, in which it was declared that a Democratic Assembly would mean $1,000,000,000 in subway contracts, $1,500,000,000 in water power contracts and $250,000,000 in bus contracts. The Governor declared the charges extravagantly absurd.

The nomination of Justice Lehman took approximately ten minutes. His name was presented by Edward J. Flynn, ex-Sheriff and Democratic leader of the Bronx, who warmly eulogized the jurist. The nomination was seconded by E. E. Perkins, Democratic leader of Dutchess and Treasurer of the State Committee. The roll was called and every one responding voted for Justice Lehman.

The committee paused on the threshold of its proceedings to adopt a resolution of gratification over Mayor Hylan's recovery. The resolution was presented by ex-Sheriff Flynn and seconded by Representative Thomas H. Cullen of Kings and William Allen of Westchester.

Governor Smith's speech followed the nomination of Justice Lehman.

The Governor's Speech.

"It is just a year since the Democratic Party in convention assembled in the City of Syracuse nominated its State

WARD IS ACQUITTED; VERDICT APPLAUDED; JURY OUT 3 HOURS

Crowd in Courtroom Rushes to Congratulate Young Man Freed of Murder Charge.

"THANK GOD!" SAYS WIFE

Prosecutor Is First to Shake Hand of Man for Whom He Demanded Death Penalty.

LIBERATED ON HIS BIRTHDAY

Ward Cheered as He Leaves Jail for Double Celebration at Home of His Brother.

Walter S. Ward, tried at White Plains for the killing of Clarence M. Peters, was found not guilty yesterday. The verdict of the jury was applauded, and Ward later was cheered as he left the jail to enjoy his birthday and his liberty.

It was 4:20 o'clock in the courtroom of Justice Wagner and the jury had been out three hours. The strain of uncertainty was stamped on all. The slightest movement was the signal for a general stir. The opening of a door brought a commotion. All waited for the return of the twelve men.

In a small anteroom waited Mrs. Beryl Curtis Ward. For ten days she had sat back of her husband and heard the evidence—now drawing from the penalty of death, now dragging him close to it. She had heard, during the hours of yesterday morning, Justice Wagner hand the scales over to the jurors with his charge on the law and the evidence.

Beside her sat her husband. Seldom speaking and listening for the signal for him to return to the crowded courtroom and, standing alone, strain forward to catch the words of Foreman Schiller. Soon there was a quick step outside in the hall and a rap on the frosted glass pane. Ward rose—Ralph, his brother, with him—and with a steadfast look at his wife, left her to enter the court.

Tense Moment in Court.

Minutes, perhaps seconds before, a deputy sheriff had signaled the reaching of the decision by rushing upstairs. There was a scramble of spectators to regain their seats in the court. Gerald Fitzgerald, Clerk of the Court, advanced to the rail near the jury box. Justice Wagner, adjusting his black gown, came in hurriedly and ascended the bench. Ward came in with a smile. He dropped to a seat at his counsel's table. Then a door in one corner of the courtroom opened and the jurors filed in.

One by one they stepped to their chairs in the box. Ward was on his feet now. There was not a smile on a juror's face, and Ward's face was furrowed with anxiety as he noted this. The names of the jurors were quickly called by Mr. Fitzgerald. Turning to the spectators he said:

"When the verdict is announced we want no demonstration in the court. Absolute silence must prevail."

It did—a heavy hush, broken only by the sundry clatter of traffic outside. Three hundred spectators. Ward, his counsel, the State's representatives listened. And the slender wife in the room near by listened and hoped.

"Gentlemen of the jury," said Fitzgerald, "have you agreed upon a verdict?"

"We have," replied Foreman Schiller, low-toned but distinct.

"And do you find the defendant, Walter S. Ward, guilty or not guilty?" asked Fitzgerald.

Ward thrust his body forward. His eyes fastened with a terrible intensity upon the lips of Schiller.

"Not guilty," said the foreman.

Verdict Brings Applause.

The tension snapped in a flash. Applause broke out in the rear of the courtroom. Attorney General Sherman, who had edged close to Ward, reached forward and shook Ward's hand. A smile that ever widened was on Ward's face. With a sudden motion he wheeled to Judge Mills. He found the elderly lawyer, somewhat dazed, with tears in his eyes. Ward grasped the Judge's hand. Then he went to Allan R. Campbell, collapsed from nervous reaction, and to State Senator Rabenold, another of his counsel, and finally to the jurors, to thank them.

While the excitement was at its height and as Ward was passing along the jury box wringing the hands of the men who had freed him, his actual liberation was effected by Judge Mills. Addressing Justice Wagner, who was smilingly watching the scene enacted before him, Judge Mills said:

"If your Honor please, I move the defendant's discharge."

Justice Wagner nodded and a second later, with his signature still wet, the order of discharge was thrust into the hand of Mrs. Ward by Clerk Fitzgerald.

"What have you to say now, Mr. Ward," said a reporter who managed to get through the scores struggling to congratulate "W. S.," as his friends were shouting.

Ward suspended the handshaking for a second and thought.

"Right now," he smiled, "I have this to say: I am going to my wife."

Then he was enclosed again by the crowd. "Thank you" dropped from his lips in a steady stream. Ralph Ward, on the instant of the verdict, had darted out of the court to the anteroom. Catching the words of the foreman, he had rushed down the hallway to the room where Mrs. Ward was waiting. He flung open the door, and as he did so Mrs. Ward started from her chair by the window and ran toward him.

"He's free," Ralph Ward shouted, and caught her as she flung her arms about his neck. Mrs. Leland Stanford [illegible], sister of Walter and Ralph, [illegible]

Senator Shields Answers Wilson's Letter By Declaring He 'Could Not Be Dictated To'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 28.—Senator John K. Shields, in a statement released in reply to a letter from former President Wilson recently published in Tennessee newspapers, declares the letter was "not called for and published in the interest of the Democratic Party, but for the sole purpose of injuring me with the people of Tennessee."

The Wilson letter contained the phrase "I regarded him [Mr. Shields] as one of the least trustworthy of my nominal supporters," to which the Senator today made reply that "if Mr. Wilson's accusation of untrustworthiness means that I could not be dictated to in the discharge of my great official duties as a Senator representing a great State, he is right. If he means that during his Administration I did not support the principles of the Democratic Party and discharge my duties as a Senator honestly and faithfully to the best of my ability, he is absolutely wrong."

Expressing profound sympathy for Mr. Wilson in his great and protracted affliction, Senator Shields said, "We cannot cherish resentment for anything he may now say. He is immune from criticism."

The Senator challenged any man to point to a single instance in which he had failed to follow the Democratic platform.

"I supported all the great measures which were enacted by Congress and approved by Mr. Wilson as President. I supported all the great war measures which Mr. Wilson asked for the successful prosecution of the war," Senator Shields claims.

"When I was a candidate in 1918 Mr. Wilson, although he had served two years, did not challenge my democracy or oppose my position."

The Senator asserts that the head and front of his offending Mr. Wilson is found in his opposition to the propositions that the United States become a member of the League of Nations and take a mandate under the League for Armenia.

Two Gamble Children Missing With Nurse From Home of Mother Who Got Paris Divorce

Catherine Bruce Gamble, 3, and Robert Howard Gamble, 1, disappeared Tuesday with their nurse from the home of their mother, Mrs. Robert Howard Gamble of Huntington, L. I., it was learned last night.

The missing children had been in the mother's custody, subject to visits by the father, since last Spring, when Mrs. Gamble obtained a divorce in Paris from Robert Howard Gamble, a broker, of 52 Broadway and a director of the Exchange Court Corporation. Mrs. Gamble was reported last night prostrated and in care of friends. She was formerly Virginia Loney, a Baltimore heiress and a survivor of the Lusitania disaster, in which she lost both parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen D. Loney. Her mother's will gave her an estate of $1,500,000 in trust. Her father was a retired capitalist of Baltimore.

Mr. Gamble is the son of Robert Gamble of Jacksonville, Fla., and Asheville, N. C., who has large industrial interests. The son served in the French Ambulance Corps during the World War and was decorated with the Croix de Guerre. The marriage, the outgrowth of a war romance, friends said, was an event of the 1918 social season. Following the honeymoon the estate of Cloverfield, now occupied by Mrs. Gamble, was purchased for a reputed sum of nearly $500,000. Rumors of discord were heard two years ago, and early this year Mrs. Gamble took the two children and servants to Paris. Gamble removed from the town apartment at 1,155 Park Avenue to 156 East Thirty-sixth Street, in what is known as Sniffen Court.

Friends of Mrs. Gamble said last night that all attempts to communicate with Mr. Gamble had failed. Inquiry was made of Cravath, Leffingwell, Henderson & De Gersdorff, his attorneys during the divorce proceedings, but it was said that the law firm was unable to furnish any information. Neither could Gamble be found about his usual haunts, Mrs. Gamble's friends said.

Ward Rushes to His Wife.

"Thank God," said Mrs. Ward, over and over, as the elder brother led her down the hallway, temporarily deserted while the crowd watched Ward in the court. Down to the door through which the jurors had passed to give their verdict went Mrs. Ward. She was unsteady on her feet, but was too happy to cry. Her husband caught a glimpse of her as she appeared at the doorway. He jerked around the corner of the jury box.

Without a word on either side they rushed into an embrace. For a few moments they stood there and then went up the stairs to the roof, avoiding the crowds, down the back stairway and across the courtyard to the jail.

"I am always satisfied with the verdict of a jury," was the only comment of Mr. Sherman on the result. Ward's counsel refused to make any statement beyond Senator Rabenold's "You can see for yourself how we feel about it."

Justice Wagner's charge to the jury began at 10 o'clock and lasted until about 12:30 o'clock. It was the jurist's first charge to a jury in a criminal case, and he had remained up the greater part of the night preparing and revising it to insure its impartiality. The charge covered about 100 pages of typewritten matter and was read by the Justice.

"Walter S. Ward," he said, "stands before you charged with murder in the first degree. It is hard to think of a more difficult task than sitting as jurors in such a case. You are pledged to judge it on the evidence alone and you must not permit yourselves to be influenced by the fact that the indictment was found by an Extraordinary Grand Jury. You must determine the facts and may draw inferences from the evidence. You are not to consider questions asked by the Attorney General or counsel for the defense which have been ruled from the evidence.

"In every criminal case the law is jealous of the defendant, but he must be presumed to be innocent until found guilty. Under the law he is not obliged to prove his innocence. Reasonable doubt must be a doubt founded in reason and you are to be guided by the evidence alone. More than the possibility of guilt must be proved by facts and not by the imagination. The jury must be satisfied beyond any doubt. If one juror has a doubt it must be substantial and not a refuge from doing one's duty.

"That does not mean that every fact in the case must be proved beyond a doubt. Neither does it mean, however, that the burden is on the people to prove the guilt beyond any doubt. The jurors may have any doubt, so long as a reason is behind it. If you have no doubt of the defendant's guilt you must do your duty. You must determine where is the truth. There is no golden rule."

Justice Wagner, defining the various degrees of homicide, took up the evidence, and point by point sifted it for the jurymen. He cited the fact that several of the witnesses called by the State had, on their cross-examination, paid tribute to Ward's character in New Rochelle. He cautioned the jurymen not to disregard this, and to weigh the fact that cognizance should be taken of the defendant's previous good record.

Consider Good Character.

"You are not to disregard circumstantial evidence," he said, "as it is often more conclusive than direct evidence. Some witnesses may be prejudiced, and sometimes a juror objects to performing his duty on circumstantial evidence. In this case there is both direct and circumstantial evidence, and you must be able to distinguish between them. When every circumstance points to a defendant's guilt there is no reason why a juror should be reluctant to vote for conviction.

"If there is proof that Ward had no other means to save his life than to shoot Peters, he was justified under the law. If you come to the conclusion that he had no design in killing Peters, you must find him not guilty. If the State has not proved his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, he must be innocent. You must consider that Ward had a good character and that criminals are not made overnight. The defendant was not called as a witness, but that raises no presumption against him—it is no indication of his guilt.

"It would be injustice to be affected by sympathy or anger. You have taken the oath to do your duty, and this is a case of great importance to both the State and the defendant. Remember that you have no concern with the infliction of punishment and do not let that influence you. You must uphold the law as it is, and it depends on jurors doing their duty.

"Your verdict will be either not guilty, guilty of murder in the first degree, guilty of murder in the second degree or guilty of manslaughter in the first degree. With the degree of manslaughter in the second degree you are not concerned; it does not enter into this case. Render your verdict impartially."

As soon as the charge was completed three deputy sheriffs were sworn in as custodians of the jurors and they left the courtroom. Instead of proceeding directly to their deliberations, however, the jurors went to lunch. They returned at 1:30 o'clock and were locked in the jury room on the third floor of the court house.

Jury Asks for Advice.

When the jury began its task, Justice Wagner summoned the attorneys for both sides into his chambers. The purpose of the conference was to establish whether the jury would be permitted to take the exhibits in the case—Peters's clothing, the weapons and the photographs—into the jury room. It was said that the defense had been successful in barring the exhibits.

Then began the long wait for word from the jury. There came any reports that a verdict had been reached, and each time there was a rush to the court room. At 3 o'clock the jury sent word that it wished instructions. Ward came hurrying from his wife's side, but was met by Samuel Miller, one of his counsel, who told him he was not needed.

The jury sought light on whether Ward's written statement, handed in when he surrendered, could be used as evidence against him. Justice Wagner said that the jurors were to presume that what the defendant admitted against himself was true, but that the whole statement would have to be regarded in the light of all the evidence. The jury returned twenty minutes later with the word that sent Ward back to jail—but merely to pack the two suit cases and the bag that have held his belongings in the ten weeks he had been a prisoner there.

Ward remained in the ivy-covered jail for about fifteen minutes, bidding good-by to Warden John F. Hill and the keepers. Several hundred persons who had rushed around from the court building to catch a glimpse of Ward waited outside when Ralph Ward and his wife emerged. Cheers greeted the brother, mistaken for Walter Ward. The crowd quickly detected its error, however, and waited until Ward came out. Then cheering broke out again and Ward waved his hand. A row of girls, looking from a small office building across the way, shouted: "Congratulations, Mr. Ward." Ward glanced up and waved his hat to them. The group entered automobiles and were whirled away to Ralph's home at 20 East Sixty-fourth Street, Manhattan, to celebrate the acquittal and Ward's thirty-second birthday.

Although he had been silent in the courtroom when asked to comment on the verdict last night, Judge Mills said: "It has been a long fight, but this is the happiest day I have experienced for a long time. I was surprised at the speediness with which the jury reached its conclusion, because I was apprehensive that one juror, as sometimes happens in a case of this kind, might hold out against the others and bring about a disagreement. I wanted to save the Ward family all this anxiety. But they are happy now, as I, too, am happy.

"Ward will go back to his family and to his work. He is looking forward to a united family life, confidence in one another and happiness for the rest of his life."

AMERICANS FIRST IN COWES AIR RACE

Lieut. Rittenhouse Wins Seaplane Contest, With Lieut. Irvine Close Behind.

ENGLISHMAN IS DISTANCED

French Contestant Eliminated—Next International Races Will Be Held Here.

COWES, Isle of Wight, Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—Lieutenant David Rittenhouse of the United States Navy, driving his Curtiss navy racer at a speed of 177.38 miles an hour, today won the Schneider Cup from its English holder against a field which had simmered down to another American, an Englishman and a Frenchman.

Lieutenant Rittenhouse crossed the finish line of the 186-mile course in 1 hour 12 minutes 26 4-5 seconds; his American colleague, Lieutenant Rutledge Irvine, was less than two minutes behind him, and the Englishman, Captain H. C. Biard, more than nine minutes behind. The Frenchman was eliminated when forced to make a landing in the water, and his plane was towed ashore undamaged.

Captain Biard had been disqualified because he rose from the water before crossing the starting line, instead of taxying over it, but as the plane bumped the water after crossing the line the judges withdrew their disqualification ruling. Engine trouble developing at the last minute kept two of the French entrants from flying. Accidents during trials had already accounted for one of the American and two of the English entrants.

Lieutenant Rittenhouse's speed is a record for the event, beating by thirty miles an hour the record established at Naples last year by Captain Biard. The race consisted of five circuits of a triangular course.

Huge crowds, which included many of the highest of the British Navy officials, gathered to see the race, and Cowes was filled with American and French visitors. The U. S. S. Pittsburgh was anchored off Cowes and two French ships were stationed in the Solent.

The Americans heavily backed their countrymen to take the honors, and there was plenty of confidence in Captain Biard and his Napier seaplane among the Englishmen.

The race was favored with magnificent weather, the sun suggesting July, with the air still and the water like a mill pond at the outset. Though these conditions pleased most of the competitors and the spectators, they were not altogether welcome to Captain Biard. Owing to the type of his plane, rough weather and a choppy sea have been more favorable to him. The American seaplanes, being fitted with floats instead of hulls, were lighter than either the British or French machines.

The fact that the most powerful American plane had been put out of action by an accident and was not competing added to the general interest, as it was considered to have made the race more even.

1924 Race Over American Waters.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Victory of the American Navy team in the Schneider Cup races insures the holding of the contest next year in the United States. Naval aviation officials declare that rules of the race prescribe that the winning country hold the next meet.

Steps will be taken at once officials said, to determine the most suitable location for the 1924 race.

The requirement that flights be over water and over a triangular course of a specified distance was said to limit probable sites to about six. These include New York (Long Island Sound section); Cleveland, Detroit or Chicago (Great Lakes); San Diego or San Francisco (on the Pacific) and Pensacola, Fla., (Gulf section).

Physical equipment for handling plane also will be a factor in determining the final selection.

The winning airplane piloted by Lieutenant David Rittenhouse, at Cowes yesterday was built in 1921 for the navy as a "land" plane and won the Pulitzer trophy at Omaha, Neb., that year, piloted by Bert Acosta. In 1922, at Detroit, the same plane finished fourth in the Pulitzer cup race, piloted by Lieutenant Al Williams, a former New York National League pitcher.

This year, with pontoons added and a 500-horsepower motor instead of a 400-horsepower, the plane made 194 miles an hour, a world's record for seaplanes, in an official test at Port Washington, N. Y., before being shipped abroad on the Leviathan.

MRS. WEBB KILLED WITH SLOW POISON

felt quite sick. Without sufficient cause, as she saw it, she would feel tired out in the evening, and she finally made up her mind to see Dr. Krug, a New York eye specialist. He examined her, and either sent her to see a Dr. West or else had a consultation with him. At any rate, she was told by one of them that she had severe kidney trouble and could not live more than thirty days. She told me that the shock of hearing that was so great she thought she felt something burst in her.

"I believe it was Dr. West who suggested that she go to the Roosevelt Hospital for further examination and diagnosis. He told her to stay two weeks and she paid $500 in advance. The physician made various analyses while she stayed there and diagnosed her case as chronic Bright's disease. To be near her Webb had a room at the other end of the hall.

"Gertie left after five days, feeling somewhat better, and spent two days at a New York hotel. About eighteen days ago she had a dinner at the Biltmore Country Club for some of her friends while Webb was in Bridgeport. That same evening she suffered a severe pain and Dr. Meyer was called in. He told me later he thought she was dying that night and immediately called in two trained nurses.

"When Mrs. Hunter received word that her niece was very ill we went to the country club and were told that Webb had given orders not to permit any one to see her—that was Dr. Meyer's instructions. My wife was very anxious to see Gertie and I communicated with Dr. Meyer. He informed me that he had given no such orders, but on the other hand, was eager that we should see Mrs. Webb. We saw her often and my wife was at her side when she died.

Approved Demand for Autopsy.

"At about 2 or 3 o'clock the next morning the telephone in our room at Gedney Farms rang. Coroner Fitzgerald was on the wire. He told me that Dr. Meyer had suggested that an autopsy be held and asked me if I had any objections.

"'Go ahead and have it performed,' I told him. 'We want to know the truth. My wife is standing right beside me and she, too, wants the truth to come out.' Not for any money in the world would I allow my niece's body to be opened if I did not think there was a good reason for it."

Mr. Hunter said that while Dr. Meyer did not tell Mrs. Webb of his suspicion that poison was being given her at intervals, the doctor told him (Mr. Hunter) of his belief. If Mrs. Webb had been stronger, Mr. Hunter said, the physician would probably have told her.

"The patient had confided in Dr. Meyer," said Mr. Hunter, "and it was from the nature of her statement, together with her physical condition, that the physician realized the pneumonia that had set in was not as dangerous as the drug that he believed was being administered.

"When Mrs. Webb was told that she would die in a month, friends suggested that she make a will," said Mr. Hunter. "One was drawn up, which she said was too long and too intricate. Its provisions covered fifteen pages. Another was prepared, which I believe she signed."

He did not know the contents of either. He described Mr. Webb as a "poor man," declaring that Mrs. Webb had all the money.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter will attend the funeral at the Webb home tomorrow morning and will return to Philadelphia with the funeral party.

SHE MADE TWO WILLS; REFUSED TO SIGN THIRD

Second One, Executed Ten Days Before Death, Left $2,000,000 to Husband.

Three wills, disposing of her estate of $2,000,000, figured prominently yesterday in the investigations into the mysterious death at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club at Rye, N. Y., last Tuesday evening of Mrs. Gertrude E. Gorman Webb, whose physician, relatives and intimate friends suspected poisoning.

Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora of New York County revealed that several hours before Mrs. Webb's death he had been informed that her death was expected "under suspicious circumstances."

Nevertheless, Coroner Edward P. Fitzgerald of Westchester County was inclined to believe that death was due to kidney trouble consequent on pneumonia and indicated he would not submit the case to District Attorney Rowland until the toxicologists' report, expected in about ten days, is made.

District Attorney Rowland of Westchester County said last night that he had begun an investigation into the case on Thursday and would question Webb and others.

In a preliminary examination, following an autopsy yesterday, Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, Bellevue Hospital toxicologist, failed to find traces of metallic poisoning. On the other hand, it was unofficially reported at the Criminal Courts Building that Dr. Otto H. Schultze, Medical Assistant to the District Attorney, had found evidence of a corrosive substance. Death by bichloride of mercury poisoning has been suspected by the dead woman's relatives and friends.

The first of Mrs. Webb's wills, executed in February, 1921, shortly after Mrs. Webb's mother died, leaving her a fortune of $2,000,000, bequeathed the inheritance to relatives and friends. At that time, still bearing in mind her mother's strong protests against a decade of courtship by Webb, the then Miss Gorman had not yet accepted the broker's suit.

Information given by close friends and by two attorneys yesterday revealed that during Mrs. Webb's fatal illness she signed a ten-line will naming Webb as her sole legatee. It was discovered that this will, under New York statutes, would not hold, as it left none of the property to Mrs. Webb's kin. Thereupon, it was said, another will of several pages was prepared, which Mrs. Webb refused to sign.

At that later date, these friends said, Mrs. Webb had confided to Dr. William J. Meyer, the attending physician, who later declined to sign a death certificate and insisted that the Coroner take charge of the body, a suspicion that she had been poisoned. This thought she expressed in the presence of a woman. Mrs. Webb was then counting, day by day, the thirty days of life that a New York physician was said to have allotted her on Aug. 20, when she was afflicted with an eye trouble that sent her that day to Roosevelt Hospital. The psychological effect on a woman who in her forty years of happy life had never experienced a moment's ills was a severe deterrent to her fight for recovery, those who watched at the bedside reported.

Webb was incommunicado yesterday in the Gorman home at 226 Madison Avenue. His attorney, Howard Thayer Kingsbury, made a statement insisting his client and Mrs. Webb had been happy, contrary to the assertions of Mrs. Webb's friends, and that Webb had found "suspicion like a thunderclap."

Death Certificate Filed.

A death certificate was filed yesterday in Harrison, N. Y., within which the country club lies relating that Mrs. Webb died of a gangrenous affection developing from kidney trouble. Below this statement appeared the words, "pending chemical examination."

Until the day before she went to the hospital, where she remained five days, Mrs. Webb had complained of no indisposition. She spent Aug. 19 at Greenfield Hills, six miles from Bridgeport, Conn., with her husband and her aged father, renovating her country home and planning an Italian garden. It was a house that had never been occupied for any extended period in the thirty years it had been in the Gorman family. Since 1918 it had not been tenanted. But in August Mrs. Webb determined to make it her summer home in the future and there to renew the entertainment of friends whose company she had gradually relinquished in the ten months of her married life. Superstitiously, the caretaker lamented yesterday, "We knew she would never return, because last Friday night a mirror fell from over the fireplace and broke."

The caretaker, George Wood, said that on the morning of Aug. 20, as she was starting for New York, Mrs. Webb complained of trouble with her eyes. A few hours later, in New York, she consulted a physician. He sent her to Roosevelt Hospital. The affection, she was informed, was indicative of kidney trouble.

A few days after returning from the hospital, Mrs. Webb went to the Westchester Biltmore Country Club. She telephoned Aug. 29 to Dr. Meyer to have lunch with her. When he reached the hotel he found Mrs. Webb in a state of collapse, leaning feebly against a veranda pillar. With her was the wife of a prominent member of the New York bar. Dr. Meyer exclaimed, "My God! You're sick." He and the woman took Mrs. Webb to her room, where Dr. Meyer diagnosed the case as pneumonia. He believed then she would not live the day out. But she got better.

Doctor Finds a Breakdown.

He discovered she had suffered a general organic breakdown, a condition surprising to him, as he was aware of her lifelong good health. Dr. Meyer was in constant attendance.

It was learned that on the morning of Aug. 29 Mrs. Webb complained to her husband that she was so ill she required a doctor. Dr. Meyer and the woman who had been invited to luncheon suspected that Mrs. Webb felt she was getting worse and wished to have with her certain friends. Subsequently, when Mrs. Webb confided a suspicion of poisoning, Dr. Meyer and the woman friend telephoned Mrs. William T. Hunter of Devon, Pa., aunt of the sick woman. Several intimate friends of Mrs. Webb hurried to the hotel.

It was during the last days of her illness, these friends said yesterday, that Mrs. Webb signed the ten-line will in which all her property was bestowed on her husband. Within this period she declined to sign a subsequent and longer will which gave him the bulk of the estate and distributed other portions among the Hunters and others. Their suspicions of poisoning, shared by Mrs. Webb, grew daily, they said, and when she died they had no hesitancy in joining Dr. Meyer in his demand for an autopsy.

Three women, all in attendance when Mrs. Webb died, said yesterday that just before Mrs. Webb drew her last breath one of them sank to her knees in prayer. At that moment, they said, Webb appeared in the doorway. One of the women called to him hysterically, "Come in, she is dying!" And, according to the same testimony, Webb, with a gesture of disbelief, said, "No, I won't come in." The witnesses, who said they would be corroborated by Dr. Meyer and the two nurses, said that Webb went out of the hotel, pacing the lawn with a cigar in his mouth for hours. It was during these hours that Coroner Fitzgerald and the Hunters were roused from their sleep and informed of the suspicion of poisoning.

Though Dr. Schultze declined to make any comment "for the present" on his findings, it was said in the Criminal Courts Building that he had reported that the autopsy showed evidence of a corrosive substance.

Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, Assistant Medical Examiner, who was present at the autopsy, said last night that the autopsy disclosed enough to indicate that death could have been due to natural causes and that it would be necessary to await a chemical analysis to determine whether any toxic substances were present.

Pecora Tells of Death Warning.

"On Tuesday afternoon, some hours before Mrs. Webb's death, I was visited by a prominent member of the bar," said Assistant District Attorney Pecora. "He said he had been in touch with the developments in the sickroom, and that he had received information leading him to fear Mrs. Webb would die shortly. He said the circumstances were suspicious. He asked that, in the event of her death, we permit Dr. Schultze to participate in the autopsy. He promised further information.

"I suggested that a statement be taken from Mrs. Webb immediately. Later in the afternoon I was informed that she was in no condition to make a statement, having become unconscious. She died without making an ante-mortem statement. I am still waiting for the promised information. We cannot proceed in this county on the meagre information we have."

District Attorney Banton said that he would begin an investigation if there was evidence that poison had been administered while Mrs. Webb was in Manhattan.

Mr. Kingsbury, when asked last night about the wills, said he would not discuss them "until after the filing of one of Mrs. Webb's wills in the Surrogate's Court for probate early next week." It was learned that a contest would ensue if the ten-line will were filed, for relatives of Mrs. Webb said they intended next week to file the will she executed before marriage, leaving the estate to her relatives and friends.

"Suspicion came to Webb like a thunderclap," said Mr. Kingsbury. "All this story of poison has been made up out of whole cloth by some unknown person who has no ground for such talk. Some time ago Mrs. Webb began renovation of her country home and worked so hard that she began to feel tired and worn out. Her eyes began to be troublesome and she called in a specialist. He suggested that her ocular disorder might have resulted from kidney trouble. On his advice Mrs. Webb went to Roosevelt Hospital, where she was treated for five days by Dr. Davenport West, following which Dr. West urged a complete rest.

Natural Death, Says Webb's Lawyer.

"Accompanied by her husband, Mrs. Webb went to the Westchester Biltmore, where she began to recover her strength, when she developed a heavy cold. She had no sooner recovered from this cold than she came down with pneumonia. This illness was aggravated by her kidney trouble and a weakened heart, the natural result of having been ill so long. Weakened in body, she was unable to throw off the pneumonia and the other disorders, with the result that she died. That is all there is to the case. I understand that the death certificate was signed and given out.

"As far as the autopsy was concerned, it was performed without the knowledge of Mr. Webb. Mr. Webb has nothing to conceal. He wants the facts disclosed in the case. He was happy to learn that the autopsy showed that there had been no metallic poisoning. Mr. and Mrs. Webb lived very happily."

Some of the circumstances surrounding the long courtship and the married life of the Webbs were learned yesterday from relatives and friends of Mrs. Webb. Charles Webb is the son of the late Charles Henry Webb, author and journalist. The son, a graduate of Yale in the class of 1897, and a member of the Sons of the Revolution, became a curb trader, financing his operations with an inheritance of $100,000. He lost all this sum in Wall Street ventures.

Ten years ago he met the family of S. Jennings Gorman. Mrs. Gertrude A. Gorman did not favor Webb's suit for the hand of the daughter, Gertrude E. Gorman, then 28 years old. Miss Gorman was willing to become Mrs. Webb. But the mother, possessed of a fortune of more than $2,000,000 which eventually would pass to the daughter, was openly antagonistic to the courtship.

Nevertheless, in the last few years of her life, Mrs. Gorman permitted Webb to help in the management of her properties. He acquired an intimate knowledge of these holdings, their values and potentialities. To the girl he confided that some day, as her husband, he would be able to put this knowledge to her advantage.

Inherits $2,000,000 From Mother.

Mrs. Gorman died in December, 1920. She, too, was said by friends to have manifested an affection of the eyes and to have died of kidney trouble. Her will left virtually her entire estate to the daughter, $1,500,000 outright and some $500,000 or $600,000 in trust. Her will provided that if the daughter died childless the inheritance was to revert to relatives specified in the instrument. If there was issue of her daughter's marriage, the will gave the daughter the right to dispose of her inheritance by will.

The trust fund was placed in the stewardship of the United States Trust Company. It included a five-story business building at 180 William Street, the four-story building at 226 Madison Avenue, which had been the Gorman home for four generations, and an unimproved property in the Dyckman section at Wadsworth Terrace. The estate willed outright to Miss Gorman included a $750,000 property at 146th Street and Broadway and a $500,000 holding several blocks away, in that section of Washington Heights long known as "The Farm."

On her father's urging that she make provision for disposition of her large estate in the event of death, Miss Gorman in February, 1921, drew up a document in which she left the bequest received from her mother to relatives and friends. A considerable portion of it was destined in that instrument for her aunt, Mrs. William T. Hunter of Devon, Pa., and for Mr. Hunter.

By this time, with the mother dead and her objections to the marriage, already deferred a decade, no longer an obstacle, Webb prevailed on Miss Gorman to accept him. They were married on Nov. 4, 1922, at the Gorman home in Madison Avenue. A son of Robert S. Johnstone, former Judge of General Sessions, was a page at the wedding. Miss Gorman was godmother to Judge Johnstone's youngest daughter, and Mrs. Johnstone and Miss Gorman had been lifelong friends.

Several friends of Mrs. Webb recalled yesterday that shortly after she had married she began to shun her intimate acquaintances.

"Gertie," one of these friends said yesterday, "was the most steadfast of friends—before her wedding. She did not smoke. She did not drink. She would not touch even coffee or tea, she cared so much for her physical well-being. But she did not frown upon those who liked to drink and smoke. Never a day passed that she was not a lavish hostess. She was the most brilliant of all at social functions. She took parties on automobile trips to the Adirondacks. She was a simple soul with a happy heart. She was accomplished in the arts and in languages and was traveled. She was a rare companion among the most brilliant minds. She never forgot the birthdays of her friends—before her marriage. But after her marriage she never sent a card on a birthday. She ceased to write letters, and she had been a constant writer of letters."

Complaints were voiced yesterday by some of her former chums that they were not notified of the seriousness of her malady until Dr. Meyer acted. It was Dr. Meyer who, a week before the death, informed the Hunters in Pennsylvania that circumstances demanded their presence. They hastened forthwith to the Gedney Farm Hotel in White Plains, whence, by telephone, they informed Coroner Fitzgerald last Wednesday morning that they were in agreement with Dr. Meyer against issuance of a death certificate until an autopsy had been performed, that the woman's death was not due to natural causes.

Coroner Doubts Poison Theory.

"I don't think there is anything to it," said Coroner Fitzgerald yesterday. "It's simply a case in which the physician did not want to issue a death certificate. We have lots of cases like that, and if Mrs. Webb had not been known as a wealthy woman, no attention would have been paid to this death. I don't know what the analysis will show, but I don't think it will reveal poison. I don't say that it won't, but I feel there is nothing to these suspicions. However, if poison is found, I will take the matter up with the District Attorney. I expect a report on the toxicologist's examination in a week or ten days. It would be impossible to make a thorough analysis in a few days."

Police Captain John Munroe of Harrison said, "I heard a rumor of poisoning, but we have not been asked to make an investigation. We may do so after the analysis is finished."

At the Hotel Morehouse, Bridgeport, it was said that Mr. Gorman, father of the dead woman, had returned to New York and that his son by a previous marriage, S. Jennings Gorman Jr., a traction company clerk, had gone with him.

The body of Mrs. Webb was in the Madison Avenue home yesterday. Funeral services will be held there today with further services at the Central Laurel Hill Cemetery in Philadelphia. The Hunters have returned to Pennsylvania to make arrangements for burial of the body.

40 KILLED AS TRAIN PLUNGES INTO RIVER

made from bell cord, entered the car and rescued men imprisoned in their berths. A rope was strung from one end of the partly submerged day coach to the bank and over it passengers who were able climbed hand over hand to safety. One woman escaped in this manner. Flashes of lightning and the glare from the headlight of a locomotive broke the darkness.

"Piled up cars, wretched people and the lightning flashing through the rain made a hell I will never forget," declared Dan J. McQuade of Denver, who telephoned the first news of the disaster.

Narrow escapes were recorded by several passengers, among them H. D. Bellrose, first reported as missing because he was known to be in the smoking compartment of the leading Pullman. Bellrose was thrown out of the car, kept in the darkness until he was washed into the Platte River 200 yards away, and there grabbed a floating tie, with the aid of which he reached the bank.

Gus G. Phillips was badly burned when he crawled out of a coach and made his way over the still hot engine to reach the bank.

Survivors removed from the flood on the east bank were taken to Douglas, while those removed from Pullmans on the west were brought to Casper. For the most part those brought here remained in Pullmans at the Burlington station until they could be provided with clothing, many having abandoned theirs on the sleepers.

The scene of the wreck is about fourteen miles east of Casper, about two miles west of the Big Muddy oil field and about seven miles east of Glenrock. The next flagstop for the train across the culvert through which it plunged into Cole Creek, is Lockett.

The Platte River is barely a stone's throw from the railroad tracks where Cole Creek empties into the larger stream, and it was at this spot that the ill-fated passenger train plunged into the ordinarily dry creek.

George Evenson, a railroader, who was a passenger in the rear Pullman, described the wreck as one of quiet horror, in which the cries of the victims were smothered by the flood waters that closed over them.

STRIKING PRESSMEN VOTE TO RETURN

trouble." He described the terms accepted by the men as "a compromise proposal which the union has accepted," and expressed the opinion that day men would return to work on Monday morning and night men on Monday night. He also said:

"The local is still in existence. The charter has never been revoked. We feel that if the strike had gone further we would have won. We accepted this compromise in order to save the industry."

President George L. Berry of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America issued the following statement in connection with the action of the meeting in voting to discontinue the illegal strike:

"The action of the newspaper web pressmen is, of course, gratifying in that it proves the accuracy of my statement made several days ago that the great overwhelming majority of the newspaper pressmen of New York are not only good citizens, but are conservative and constructive trades unionists. In addition, our Board of Directors are delighted to know that the position of the International Union has been accepted.

"The two propositions represent a complete and unqualified acceptance of the position of the International Union and of the contract entered into by the Board of Directors with the Newspaper Publishers of New York. We shall now enter into the details of readjustments and reorganization so as to establish normal operation as speedily as possible, and in doing so we will take all necessary precautions so as to give guarantee that there shall be no recurrence of such a situation as has involved the newspaper industry of New York City, and, in addition, that there will be adherence to the laws of the parent body in the future."

Gompers Condemns the Strike.

President Berry received the following telegram yesterday from Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, who is in Portland, Ore., attending the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor:

Portland, Ore., Sept. 28, 1923.
George L. Berry, Waldorf-Astor Hotel, New York, N. Y.:

The unwarranted course pursued by Printing Pressmen's Local 25 is published in every issue of every newspaper which I have seen, and it is a fair presumption that it is published all over the country. That action is criticized and condemned not only by the press and the public, but also by the men who have devoted their lives to the cause of labor. If the plighted faith of organized labor is given to an agreement with employers, or while negotiations to reach an agreement are pending the membership will enter upon a strike, how can we expect new agreements to be reached between organized labor and employers? Unless the pressmen redeem themselves from this awful blunder you are justified in resorting to every means within your power to keep the faith, to uphold the good name of your organization, and the good-will of employers who may want to maintain beneficial contractual relations with the union. In this, your effort and manifest duty, all organized labor and a fair minded public will sustain you.

SAMUEL GOMPERS.

Union Finances Under Scrutiny.

Moses Grossman, Hyman Bushel and Leo J. Rosett, lawyers, representing former members of New York Web Pressmen's Union 25, called on Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora yesterday and requested an inquiry into the finances of the defunct local union.

Mr. Pecora said he would try to begin his inquiry today. He declined to give out for publication the names of the complainants or those against whom complaints were made. The lawyers, according to Mr. Pecora, requested an investigation and the prosecution of those persons who may be charged with having committed a crime.

Local pressmen continued visiting the offices of the International Union at 150 Nassau Street yesterday in an attempt to regain their former positions. Up to noon 100 former employes of the New York newspapers had asked for cards of the International Union, without which they could not return to work.

Carrier Arrested for Assault.

James Aguello, who said he lived at 3,617 Fort Hamilton Avenue, Brooklyn, and was a former paper carrier for a morning newspaper, was locked up in Police Headquarters last night on the complaint of Christopher Dunn, employed on the same publication. Dunn, who is in a hospital with a fracture of the shoulder, told the police that Aguello struck him with an eight-pound lead weight in the delivery room last Thursday while passing a window through which George Davis, another employe, was blackjacked, sustaining injuries from which he died. Aguello was arrested at Duane and William Streets last night by Detective Sergeant Trainor, who reported that he found a loaded revolver in the prisoner's pocket. An additional charge of violating the Sullivan law was made against Aguello. He denied assaulting Dunn.

COFFEE BLOSSOMS

According to Jardin, brides in the Antilles do not wear orange blossoms;

Instead, they carry a spray of coffee blossoms, and quite appropriately, too;

For, of all drinks, coffee is the most productive of conjugal bliss,

Provided it is good coffee, mellow and fragrant, like that served at CHILDS.

Enriched with milk and cream, it nourishes, as well as stimulates.

ITALY RECOGNIZES LEAGUE'S AUTHORITY

Council's Firmness Forces Salandra to Back Down on the Question of Competency.

SPHERE OF ACTION STATED

"Any Dispute Between Members Likely to Lead to Rupture" Is Within Council's Field.

SHARP ASSEMBLY DEBATE

Disapproval of Italy's Recent Attitude Is Voiced Bluntly by Many Speakers.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 28.—Premier Mussolini has surrendered his whole position so as to be allowed to march out carrying his colors.

By the end of the second Council meeting this afternoon his representative, Salandra, had agreed that in the words of the statement which he signed that "any dispute between members of the League likely to lead to a rupture is within the sphere of action of the League." Having thus surrendered bag and baggage he was allowed to escape from the immediate trial of his Government before the Permanent Court of International Justice.

But he did not get away scot free. From 5 o'clock till 8 this evening he and his delegation had to sit silent while two members of the Council and nine members of the Assembly declared, each in his own fashion, that the League was greater than Mussolini, and that its members were all but unanimous in condemning what he had done and what had been done to please him.

Busy Day for All Delegations.

It was a day of extraordinary work by all the delegations here. At the session of the Assembly in the morning there were reports on slavery and on the technical work of the secretariat. Abyssinia was admitted, three brilliantly-robed Ethiopians taking their seats as representatives of a free and equal people. The Committee on Disarmament passed the final draft of the treaty of mutual guarantees with five nations opposed and five abstaining from voting.

In the afternoon the Assembly met again to discuss finance, and all day, with only a two-hour interval, the Council sat discussing, warmly at times, the question which has occupied its attention through this whole meeting, of how Mussolini's challenge to the League was to be dealt with.

In the morning, Salandra weakened for the first time. Lord Robert Cecil, who had been making concession after concession as he found Salandra immovable, came to his last concession. He wouldn't move another inch. Either Italy must admit that the Greco-Italian dispute was within the League's sphere of action or he would carry the whole affair before the Assembly.

J. Quinones de Leon, the Spanish Ambassador in Paris, was asked to frame a formula for an agreement which at 6 o'clock Viscount Ishii of Japan should read before the Assembly. There was more discussion, but at last there was unanimity. Salandra consented.

There was a packed house when President Torriente announced that Viscount Ishii, President of the Council, would make an announcement. In slow French the Japanese delegate read the declaration giving the text of the five questions which the committee of jurists had drawn up and announcing the Council's determination to refer them for answer to another commission of jurists.

During the afternoon there had been industrious lobbying to find out who was going to speak, and on which side. Ex-Premier Branting of Sweden was the first. In the Council he has made a hard fight to have the whole question sent to the Permanent Court of International Justice, and he said again bluntly that in his opinion that would have been by far the best thing to do.

"A special committee of jurists receiving their instructions from different Governments will not have the same power, authority and impartiality before public opinion," he said. With reference to the decision of the Ambassadors to hand over the Greek indemnity to Italy he added:

"A peace which is not founded on justice contains in itself the seeds of future conflict."

Applause for Branting and Cecil.

M. Branting's reception by the Assembly and the galleries showed plainly where their sympathies lay, and Signor Salandra and his associates shifted nervously in their seats when the same acclaim was given to Lord Robert Cecil. The British delegate was emphatic in saying that he, too, would have preferred to have the matter referred to the Permanent Court instead of the committee of jurists, but he declared in words which there was no mistaking that in his opinion the most important matter was that Italy, with the other members of the Council, had agreed that the recent Greco-Italian dispute was well within the sphere of the Council's action. Reading a phrase from the declaration, he added:

"It is a solemn restatement of the obligations in this respect of the covenant, and I do not think it easy to exaggerate the importance of that statement or of the completeness of the answer which it makes to any suggestion that there is a tendency to play fast and loose with the obligations of the covenant."

Lord Robert dealt fully with the various questions raised, and ended with the statement of his belief that a long step had been taken toward the establishment of the reign of law among the nations and the end of the system of violence.

President Halts Nansen's Speech.

Dr. Nansen was the next speaker. What he said was emphatic and important. He stood by the covenant and by M. Branting's views of what ought to have been done. But what he said was even less important than what he was on the point of saying when President Torriente, at a whispered word from the Italian Assistant Secretary of the League, stopped him on the ground that he was straying from the text of his discourse, which was the declaration of the council. At that moment Dr. Nansen had just reached these phrases:

"Might I suggest that the Italian Government be invited to hand over to relief work among the refugees in Greece that part of the 50,000,000 lire which has been allocated to her by the Ambassadors which is not used in reparation to the families of the murdered Italian soldiers, and might I further suggest that the Conference of Ambassadors be invited to publish the whole of the reports and evidence on which they based their decision to allocate this money to Italy?"

Dr. Nansen was silenced on technical grounds, but Professor Gilbert Murray, representing South Africa, managed to say that he hoped the League bore no part or lot in the responsibility for the Ambassadors' decision, and he added that if again innocent lives were lost in operations of such a kind as those at Corfu, and if the League was unable to exact reparations and an apology, and it raised no protest, it must forfeit much if not all of its claim to be the protector of the small nations against chicane and tyranny.

Representatives of Persia, Finland, Ireland, Denmark, Colombia, Holland and India one after another rose to speak in approval of that part of the council's decision which declared the League competent to intervene in such a dispute as that over Corfu and in more or less emphatic criticism of that part which left the next step to a committee of jurists and not to the permanent court.

Through it all Signor Salandra sat silent. Perhaps he may speak tomorrow.

Scourges Tyranny of Big Powers.

GENEVA, Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—Well worthy of being characterized as a world forum, with voices rising from four continents, was the great debate in the Assembly of the League of Nations tonight when the delegates, while generally approving the decision of the Council of the League to submit the question of the interpretation of the covenant to jurists, scourged the old-time practice of bigger States in coercing the weaker, and also sent out a warning that henceforth violence must cease and peaceful methods be followed in harmonizing national differences.

Viscount Ishii of Japan, as President of the Council of the League, made the following statement to the Assembly as embodying the resolution passed by the Council:

"At its meeting Sept. 22 the Council asked the committee of jurists to formulate questions regarding certain points concerning the interpretation of the Covenant of the League and other matters of international law which the Council had had under consideration. The committee submitted to the Council Sept. 26 the following questions:

"First—Is the Council, when advised at the instance of a member of the League of Nations of a dispute submitted in accordance with the terms of Article XV. of the covenant by such member as likely to lead to a rupture, bound, either at the request of the other party or on its own authority and before inquiring into any point, to decide whether in fact such description is well founded?

"Second—Is the Council, when advised of a dispute in accordance with Article XV., Paragraph 1, of the covenant at the instance of a member of the League of Nations, bound either at the request of a party, or on its own authority, to suspend its inquiry into a dispute when, with the consent of the parties, a settlement of the dispute is being sought through some other channel?

"Third—Is an objection founded on Article XV., Paragraph 8, of the Covenant the only objection based on the merits of a dispute on which the competence of the Council to make an inquiry can be challenged?

"Fourth—Are measures of coercion, which are not meant to constitute acts of war consistent with the terms of Articles XII to XV of the Covenant when they are taken by one member of the League against another member without prior recourse to the procedure laid down in these articles?

"Fifth—In what circumstances, and to what extent, is the responsibility of a State involved by the commission of a political crime in its territory?

"Members of the council being in agreement that any dispute between members of the League likely to lead to a rupture is within the sphere of action of the League, and that if such dispute cannot be settled by diplomacy, arbitration or judicial settlement it is the duty of the Council to deal therewith in accordance with the terms of Article XV. of the covenant. The Council decides that these questions shall be referred to a special commission of jurists for opinion as to the answers to be given.

"The Council resolves that the report of the special commission of jurists shall be submitted to it in time for consideration at its meeting in December. Each member of the Council may nominate within the period of fifteen days a jurist to be a member of the commission. Members thus nominated, together with the director of the legal section of the secretariat, will constitute the special commission of jurists."

Lord Robert Cecil, without defending his own country's past conduct, said the world wanted the question of coercion set at rest in a most authoritative way, not on account of the past, but for the future, and hence the proposed interpretation of the Covenant. He remarked that the Council would be free to act when it received the report of the jurists, and that it might even decide to resubmit the matter to the Permanent Court in an attempt to establish principles for the future.

Wants Amnesty for Deported Miners

PARIS, Sept. 28.—A monster demonstration in Paris on Nov. 11 (Armistice Day) in favor of amnesty for the German miners expelled from the Ruhr by the Allies was proposed today to the miners' convention here by Secretary Jouhoux of the French Labor Federation. It is understood the Federation will appeal to the other labor unions to participate in case the authorities allow the demonstration to take place.

BULGARIA CRUSHES COMMUNIST REBELS

Government Troops Occupy Ferdinandovo, the Last Centre of Resistance.

RECRUITS QUICKLY ENLISTED

Militia Increased Under Permission Granted by Allied Military Control Commission.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—The City of Ferdinandovo was occupied today by Government forces. The Communist revolutionary elements thus lost their last centre of resistance. The occupation was made possible by the capture of Berkowitza Wednesday night, this success opening up the way to Ferdinandovo.

Fifty Soviet "republics," established by the Communists in various towns, have been put down in the past few days by the Government troops, according to official reports. These Soviets were established mostly in Northern Bulgaria, where the Communists were supplied with machine guns and employed cavalry. As fast as the troops arrived the "republics" were dissolved and others organized further on, only to succumb in turn when the Government forces came up.

The chief centres of the Communist movement were Ferdinandovo and Berkowitza, and the Government forces manoeuvred so as to surround these places and round up the organizers of the movement. In order to provide sufficient troops for this purpose, fresh detachments were hurried to the scene as fast as militiamen were recruited under the permission recently given by the allied commission of military control.

Among those who enlisted for special service were numbers of the staid citizens of Sofia, including many leading business men, who donned uniforms, shouldered rifles and joined the army for suppression of the revolt.

King Boris has been one of the most self-possessed and confident persons in Sofia throughout the movement. His popularity with the people here seems unquestioned, and the rumors of hostile demonstrations against him had no foundation.

Sofia was facing a scarcity of provisions today owing to the attacks the Communists had made on the railway lines that bring food to the capital, principally the line from Philippopolis.

The diplomatic representatives of all the Balkan States here are closely watching the Communist movement, and measures have been taken to suppress it. It is alleged the Russian Bolsheviki are spreading the agitation, and that all the Balkan nations realize the common danger from the efforts of Moscow to overrun the Balkan peninsula and are determined to resist energetically.

Governors Meet Coolidge Oct. 20.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 28.—Governors will meet with President Coolidge at Washington on Saturday, Oct. 20, Miles C. Riley, Secretary of the Governors' conference, announced here today.

ticket and made promise to the people of this State that if elected to office they would put into effect at the earliest possible moment measures intended to promote the welfare of all the people of the State," the Governor said. "I think it is but fair to say that the results of the last election indicated that not only were the Democratic candidates successful, but the stamp of popular public approval was placed on the platform upon which they were nominated. If the theory of party government is to survive the party declaration of principle must be regarded in the light of a sacred promise to meet issues affecting the people in accordance with the promises set forth in the platform. Therefore, in spite of a hostile Assembly dedicated to the principle that party expediency comes ahead of the public welfare, it is a source of satisfaction to me, as your Governor, to recount our accomplishments as a party and as an Administration.

"The record constitutes in itself an indictment of the Republican Party for a conspiracy to obstruct progress in the government of the State. The Democratic victory of 1922 was not indecisive. It was clear cut and the debate throughout the State upon all phases of the platform was conducted by two men who had themselves each served a term as Governor of the State.

"Immediately after my entry into office I presented to the Legislature a program embodying the pledges of the platform and bills to meet these were promptly introduced in both Houses by Democratic initiative. It is a source of pride to be able to point out to you tonight a substantial degree of progress toward the realization of this program. I shall review this program only just so far as to indicate what has been accomplished, what still remains to be done and how we may do it."

In enumerating measures which the Democratic Administration succeeded in putting through, the Governor began with the Home Rule amendment to the State Constitution, which originated with the Republican Legislature of 1922, received its necessary second approval by the lawmaking body this year and will be submitted to the voters for ratification this Fall.

Barely Mentions Prohibition.

To the repeal of the Mullan-Gage State Prohibition Enforcement law, Governor Smith made no direct reference. His only mention of prohibition was when he recalled the adoption of a concurrent resolution memorializing Congress in favor of liberalizing the Volstead act to legalize manufacture and traffic in light wines and beer.

In discussing the great increase in the budget of this year over that of the Miller Administration, the Governor accused his predecessor of "false economy," which amounted to a postponement in meeting the State's obligations, which, the Governor added, had been met by his Administration in "business-like fashion." The Governor said he had put forth at the end of the legislative session a clear concise statement of the State's fiscal affairs, worded in such manner as to make it a challenge to the opposition party.

"Up to and including this minute, the challenge has never been met," he added amid applause.

Here are measures for the enactment of which Governor Smith claimed credit for himself and his party:

Repeal of the Lusk laws subjecting public school teachers to a loyalty test and the courses of private schools to State regulation; creation of a commission to investigate the defects of the law and bring these into harmony with modern business and social conditions; passage of extensive human welfare, public health, public safety and labor legislation, including proper financing of the State Labor Department which the Governor said had been deliberately "crippled" by the preceding Administration on the false pretense of economy; restoration of the Bureau of Women in Industry; passage of act enabling the State to receive Federal aid for maternity and infant care; passage of bill providing State aid for public health work in rural counties; adoption of $50,000,000 bond issue for construction and improvement at the various State Hospitals for the Insane; increase in salaries of institutional employes in the interest of efficiency; establishment of the Military Memorial Hospital for the care of mentally afflicted veterans of the World War; adoption of constitutional amendment providing for a soldiers' bonus; creation of a State Board of Housing and Regional Planning; establishment of a State system of Parks, and creation of a Conservation Fund, devoted to the promotion of conservation.

Difficulties with Republicans.

Governor Smith called attention to the fact that the Republican Assembly had taken a determined stand against his reconstruction program aiming at the simplification of the State Government and reduction in the number of agencies, many of them obsolete, which now are a drain on the Treasury. He said his proposed constitutional amendment to reduce the number of State departments had been accepted by the Republican Assembly only after public pressure had been brought to bear. The amendments providing for an Executive Budget and a four-year term for the Governor were defeated by the Republican Assembly.

The Governor also laid at the door of the Republican Assembly the defeat of the entire series of bills, which would have vested municipalities with power to own and operate public utilities and would have abolished the Public Service and State Transit Commissions, giving all municipalities home rule in public utilities regulation.

"The Republican leaders seemed to be without constructive thought or notion in their own right (in connection with such legislation) and sought advice from some outside source. They had no concrete, genuine or definite objection to our program. They simply took the rôle of obstructionists, a rôle which apparently was convenient to their advisers."

Defeat of these measures were charged up against the Republican Assembly:

Bill to give New York City right to name two of the three members of the Port Authority; bill to restore direct primaries; Democratic proposal giving people the power to initiate constitutional amendments, which now originate in the Legislature; constitutional amendment rendering proposals to amend the Federal Constitution subject to ratification by the people, instead of the Legislature; bill to abolish the motion picture censorship commission; bill to provide for the development of hydro-electric power exclusively under State auspices; measures to put an end to settlements of compensation awards to injured workmen direct by insurance companies; minimum wage bill; bill providing for betterment of rural education; bill to extend State aid to counties for child welfare work; measure providing new method for the regulation of motor vehicle traffic.

Not an "Off Year," He Says.

"We can proclaim achievement and sincerity and earnestness in advocating and doing all in our power to push to success the pledges we made to the people by party and by candidate," the Governor went on. "We offered our legislation promptly and it was as promptly passed by our faithful Senate majority. The lesson is plain.

"Running true to form and living up to a well-earned reputation the Republican majority in the Assembly devoted all of its time and all of its energy to the protection of privileges of special interests. They have no right on any public platform any place in this State to claim any credit for what they did do, as it is generally conceded by the progressive forces of both of the great parties that what was accomplished in the Assembly was wrung from an unwilling majority under the strong force and searchlight of public opinion.

"The Democratic Party, able to defend to the last degree its record in all these matters, reaffirms the declaration of principles set forth in the party platform of 1922 and challenges the Republican Party as represented by the majority in the Assembly to be frank and open with the people of the State and give the real reason for the defeat of measures that could do nothing but spell progress.

"Our Republican friends have attempted to lull the people into the belief that no State-wide issue occurs in what they have been pleased to call an 'off year.' Ours is a government of laws and not of men. Substantial progress indicated in the Democratic platform requires amendment to the law. There is no 'off year.' The complexion of the next Assembly is important if these remedial statutes are to be enacted.

"If we are content with a government of negation, we can stand where we are. If, on the other hand, we want progress, we must elect an Assembly in sympathy with this program. To do otherwise would be to give approval to the obstructive tactics that prevailed in the Republican Assembly of 1923. It is in effect to say that those responsible for such tactics were right and the proponents of progressive legislation were wrong. It is in effect to say that another year is to be lost to the people of this State. It is in effect to put the stamp of disapproval upon the measures advocated in my first message and subsequent messages to the Legislature. It means a clean bill of health to the obstructionists controlling a minority part of the State Administration who sent down to defeat a progressive platform and offered nothing in its place."

The State Committee elected Mrs. Daniel O'Day of Westchester, who for some months has been acting in that capacity, to succeed Miss Harriet May Mills of Syracuse as associate chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

Mrs. O'Day immediately offered a resolution which was adopted unanimously and which called upon the Legislature to give women official status on the State Committee by providing for the election of two instead of one member from each assembly district, "in order that if the electorate so desire the representative from each district may consist of one man and one woman."

ALL BAVARIA QUIET AT RUHR SURRENDER

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

erated form of martial law. It presented a wholly normal appearance this morning, and neither the military nor civil authorities anticipate trouble. Reports from Nuremberg, Augsburg and other metropolitan centres indicate that quiet is also prevailing at those points.

The Socialists and Labor Federation leaders view the military dictatorship proclaimed by the Central Government for all Germany as a logical counterstroke to Bavaria's similar action, in that it subordinates Dr. von Kahr, the Bavarian military dictator, to General von Lossow, commander of the Federal troops in Bavaria.

Adolph Hitler, leader of the "Fascisti" element, has sent a letter to Dr. von Kahr protesting against the prohibition of the meetings his followers intended to hold and declaring his future acts would depend upon those of Dr. von Kahr.

POINCARE AWAITS RESULTS.

Will Listen to German Proposals if Ruhr Resistance Really Ends.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 28.—The position of Premier Poincaré on the reparations situation is as follows:

"Germany has declared passive resistance ended. For reasons perfectly apparent, France and Belgium must await acts rather than take the words of Berlin at their face value. When Ruhr resistance is actually ended, when the workers are back at their jobs, the Allies will receive any proposals Germany wishes to make."

I was told at the Quai d'Orsay today that the French Government was determined to move very, very cautiously in order to be sure that behind a façade of surrender Germany did not maintain resistance in the Ruhr.

It was pointed out that Berlin had issued a large number of resistance orders, the French having copies of 102, whereas yesterday's decree named four as rescinded. Among those not rescinded is the famous order of Jan. 14, ending payments in kind. The French await withdrawal of all these orders as proof of German good faith and are unwilling to accept the German statement that so many orders have been issued that track has not been kept of them. M. Poincaré regards that as too uncertain a procedure.

The French are not displeased by the statement of Berlin that matters must move slowly. Paris prefers to wait a week or ten days to see if the Ruhr workers go back to their jobs before any diplomatic moves are made. Indeed, if Germany tomorrow made reparation proposals M. Poincaré would probably impose a certain delay to make sure Ruhr resistance really had ended.

Its diplomatic reports have confirmed the French Foreign Office's impression that the German disorders were not so serious as they were at first made to appear. The idea here is that German threats of trouble have two essential reasons, one being the expression of Germany's character as a bad loser and the other Germany's wish to have the coming reparation negotiations take place under the shadow of civil war in Germany.

The best opinion here is that there is little danger of the separation of Bavaria from the Reich, for the reason that the leaders of the Bavarian agitation are lieutenants of the Wittelsbachs, whose dream is to rule over a greater Germany, which dream could scarcely be realized by a division of Germany. Paris today is less worried about the danger of the Bavarian Nationalists getting control of Germany.

A good deal of interest is aroused by an English report that M. Poincaré would agree to the much-discussed international commission of experts to fix Germany's capacity for payment. There is apparently a misunderstanding. M. Poincaré is still determined not to accept fixation of reparations by a committee of experts.

What he may accept is the services of a commission of experts organized by the Reparation Commission to discuss means of putting into effect the reparation terms which are to be fixed by the Allies. Such a commission would be merely advisory and would have nothing whatever to say about the amount of the German debt. It would be similar to the commission headed by J. P. Morgan which advised the Reparation Commission last year.

M. Poincaré will make two speeches on Sunday, in which he is expected to give his reaction to this week's events in Germany.

DUESSELDORF, Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—The impression voiced by French officials here is that the population in the Ruhr is taking a stand against the Government's capitulation and is in favor of continuing the fight against the occupation without assistance from Berlin.

The idea is gaining ground among the French functionaries that opinion in the German population of the occupied area is beginning to swing vigorously against the Government's capitulation. It is even feared in some quarters that German opinion is likely to crystallize into a definite movement to ignore Chancellor Stresemann's orders and try to continue the fight without Berlin's help.

An example of this tendency is furnished by the series of manifestations held in various cities in the Ruhr yesterday in connection with the general twenty-four-hour strike called by the Communists to protest against Berlin's "capitulation to international capitalism."

While the participants in these demonstrations were largely composed of the unemployed and the Communist miners, the French believe that so far as their attitude against the Berlin decision is concerned their opinion is shared by a large section of the German population.

Assists Surgeon as Ambulance Waits and Finds Patient Is Fraud Suspect.

DETECTIVE HAD LOST TRAIL

Undertaker Charges Swindle—20 Others, Victimized, Are Told of the Capture.

Just before George Faust, 37, was taken from 124 Wilbur Avenue, Long Island City, in an ambulance yesterday he was arrested for alleged grand larceny. Detective Maher of the Hunters Point Station on seeing the ambulance stop at the house went to offer assistance. When the surgeon and he reached the sick room, where Faust was in bed with pneumonia, Maher recognized him as a swindling suspect he had been trailing for several days. He arrested him on complaint of Thomas Quinn, a local undertaker, who said Faust had made away with $300. Maher then permitted Faust's removal to St. John's Hospital, where a uniformed patrolman was stationed at his bedside.

On report of Faust's arrest Simeon Wile, President of The Casket, a trade paper, notified twenty undertakers in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Long Island who have been similarly victimized in the last nine months. Each had cited costly experience with a man who had posed as an embalmer and secured employment, only to collect funds from customers and disappear, or else had secured cash advances which were not repaid. Faust is accused in the Long Island City charge of collecting $300 while Quinn was out.

The trade publication distributed 10,000 circulars bearing Faust's picture and alleging the character of his methods. One circular fell into the hands of Detective Maher, who recognized Faust on the street several days ago, only to lose him in the crowd.

SUGAR MEN SEE HUGHES.

Confer on Tarafa Bill Passed in Cuba and Said to Be Confiscatory.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28. — Secretary Hughes conferred today with Wilbur L. Cummings, representing American sugar interests in Cuba, regarding the status of the Tarafa bill, passed by both houses of the Cuban Congress. State Department officials would make no comment upon the conference nor upon the attitude of the Washington Government regarding the measure, although it was understood that the American sugar interests felt that the bill in its final form contained provisions of a confiscatory nature.

When the Tarafa bill was first introduced, the American interests involved protested to the State Department that it was confiscatory, and after diplomatic exchanges with Cuba the original measure was amended. The amendments were understood at the time to have been in accord with agreements reached in conferences in this country between the author of the bill and the American interests involved.

The text of the law as it passed the Cuban House did not reach the State Department until today, and it was indicated that a conclusion as to its provisions could not be arrived at without careful study.

ENTERTAINS RHODES MEN.

Former Scholarship Winners Are Hosts to Departing Groups.

Five out of seven first-class honor men in the Law School of Oxford University last year were Rhodes scholars from the United States, President Frank Aydelotte of Swarthmore College, Secretary of the American Rhodes Trust, said last night at a dinner at the Harvard Club, at which American Rhodes scholars who are sailing for England tomorrow were the guests of former Rhodes men.

Dr. Aydelotte declared competition for the scholarships had increased five times since before the war. He attributed this to the new system of choosing the scholars, under which the selection in each State is made by a committee of former Rhodes scholars. These committees have done much to arouse interest, he said.

SAVED FROM SUICIDE; WEDS.

Man Who Thought He Was Jilted Now on His Honeymoon.

Saved from suicide by the sister of his fiancée, who dashed a vial of poison from his hand, Matthew Brown of Allen and South Streets, Jamaica, is now on his way to Bermuda with his bride, formerly Miss Gertrude Roth of 43 Sutphin Boulevard, Jamaica.

Brown, it is said, thought he had been jilted. He got the poison after receiving a note from his fiancée who, learning of his action, hastened home from Manhattan where she had been visiting an aunt. The two met in the street on Wednesday and there was an immediate reconciliation. The couple went to Newark, N. J., where Miss Roth has relatives, and were married by the Mayor. Then they returned to Jamaica and were married again in the new Talmud Torah.

tered by antiquated utilities which have degenerated into effete and exhausted traditions," declared Mr. Lloyd George. "We are tangled at every step in Europe by old feuds and new fears, and I am anxious to see how a country which is freed from these entanglements builds its edifice.

"Europe, just like Nehemiah, is rebuilding each shattered habitation with trowel in one hand and sword in the other. I desire to see how a continent which can build with both hands is progressing."

The former Premier said he had always felt that the Americans believed that in him they had a kindred spirit. He had throughout his life drawn constant inspiration from America's greatest men, notably Abraham Lincoln, and tomorrow he was to start on a journey to "the country which I regard as the great miracle of the West, where man has risen from the dead past to a new hope."

In introducing the guest of honor Ambassador Harvey described Mr. Lloyd George as a great democrat who had grown up as an American does and whom Americans desired to see more than any other Englishman. His greatest service to Britain, he said, was rendered as Director of Munitions during the war, and his greatest contribution to civilization was his service after the armistice.

"But one of his greatest services to America," added Mr. Harvey, "was that when as Premier he decreed there should be no financial disagreement between England and the United States. Perhaps the greatest thing he did for the two countries jointly, however, was the extinguishment of the feud between Ireland and England, which resulted in a more fraternal relationship between the two great peoples on both sides of the Atlantic.

"I unhesitatingly pronounce him to be the most vivid personality of his own time and one of the most remarkable personalities of all time. I can promise him the warmest reception from the American people. The last time he visited Canada he hadn't enough money to go on to the United States, but this time he has no excuse.

"He will have an equally gracious reception from President Coolidge, who has a certain community of interest with him, because the great-great-grandfather of President Coolidge's great-great-grandmother was born in Wales."

SAY FEDERAL COURTS NEED 5 MORE JUDGES

Conference of Jurists, With Chief Justice Taft Presiding, Gives Decision.

DELAY FOUND IN NEW YORK

Appointment of Two Additional Judges in Southern District Is Deemed Necessary.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Five additional Federal Judges are needed to handle expeditiously the business of the Federal Courts throughout the country, in the opinion of the Conference of Senior Court Judges presided over by Chief Justice Taft, which adjourned today after five sessions.

Through the reports of the Circuit Judges, supplemented by those from the District Judges and the Attorney General, the conference gained a comprehensive view of the conditions prevailing in the Federal Courts. It also arranged for the transfer of judges from one circuit to another for the coming year.

The conference found that the Circuit Courts of Appeals were, in general, up with their dockets and disposing of business in a satisfactory way without any marked delay, and that, except in one circuit, there was no need of any additional judicial force. With respect to the District Courts, it was found that the new act increasing the number of district Judges, passed in 1922, had not had a full opportunity for effective operation because of the necessary time taken in filling the new judgeships, three of which still remain vacant. The decision was, on the whole, that the new act was working well and that in every district, except the Southern District of New York and the Northern District of Georgia, the prospect was that in the course of a year or two the courts would catch up with their dockets through the use of Judges from other districts and from other circuits.

In the Southern District of New York, although District Judges from California, Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois, Alabama, New Jersey and other States had been sent there to hold court, the number of cases on the docket continued to increase, the conference was told. The Northern District of Georgia was held to be in an equally unsatisfactory condition. The only method of offsetting the delays in these two districts was the appointment of one additional District Judge in the Northern District of Georgia and two in the Southern District of New York, the conference decided.

The conference decided that there should be two additional Circuit Judges authorized by Congress to serve in the Eighth Circuit, which now has four.

COOLIDGE TO CONFER ON AID TO FARMERS

President Thinks Market Rather Than Credit Is Chief Need of Agriculture.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Informed through a series of conferences as to the situation faced by the wheat growers of the Central Northwest, President Coolidge expects to meet with Secretaries Wallace and Hoover within a few days to determine what remedies may be applied to the ills of agriculturists generally.

The plight of the wheat growers was laid before Secretary Hoover in detail today by the delegation which conferred yesterday with President Coolidge and Secretary Wallace. The conferences with the two Cabinet members treated the subject of relief in more detail than was possible at the White House meeting, and the President in his study of the question desires to avail himself of the information and advice of the two Secretaries.

Inquiry at the White House today brought no information as to the impression made upon the President by the presentation of the delegation but it was said that the President was anxious to consider the proposals as soon as possible with Secretaries Wallace and Hoover.

The President is convinced that while the War Finance Corporation may be helpful in the present situation, it is not a lack of credit but a lack of markets that lies at the bottom of the farmers' difficulties.

The Finance Corporation, it was pointed out at the White House, has extended credit through local banks since its revival two years ago of between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 and has outstanding $130,000,000. The corporation, it was explained, still stands ready to make loans but the difficulty now is a market for the products of the farm. Such credits, it was asserted could be helpful now principally through enabling the farmers to hold their crops until market conditions become more favorable.

Representative Young, a Republican of North Dakota, who yesterday accompanied a delegation of bankers and farmers from the Central Northwest to the hWite House for a conference with President Coolidge, announced today that the delegation had been assured by Secretary Wallace that the Department of Agriculture was at work on a plan for Congressional action to be submitted to the President as soon as completed.

The delegation today had appointments to confer with Managing Director Myer of the War IFnance Corporation and Secretary Hoover. It will appear before the Tariff Commission tomorrow to urge an increase in the present duty on wheat, arguing that on the higher grades of wheat the price at Minneapolis and Duluth has recently been as great as 28 cents over Winnipeg and that conditions during the next few months may change to such an extent as to result in large importations of wheat from Canada if the present duty is not increased.

The delegation announced that in its conference with the Tariff Commission it would take issue with the paint manufacturers on the tariff on flax. The delegation wants the present duty of 40 cents retained, holding that even that rate does not fully measure the difference in the cost of production between the United States and Argentina, the chief competing country in the production of flaxseed.

RESTORING AN "ATMOSPHERE."

Prime Minister BALDWIN carefully chose his words in explaining the effect of his recent conversations with M. POINCARE. He maintained that there has been no change of policy on either side. But there had been "an 'atmosphere of restraint, almost of 'distrust, between France and our-'selves." In place of it he hoped that he had been able at Paris to "restore 'that atmosphere of confidence which 'had for some time been lost." The British Prime Minister added that in both England and France there is now a fuller recognition of the fact that the Entente is essential to that European settlement which all desire.

In what Mr. BALDWIN said there was a subtle implication that his Ministry was not responsible for the coldness between France and England. He said that he found this in existence when he took office. The indirect inference would be that the blame lay with the Coalition Government of Mr. LLOYD GEORGE. But on that point LLOYD GEORGE has expressed himself with great positiveness, not to say violence. He has repeatedly charged that the friendly and cordial relations which he had succeeded in maintaining with France had been needlessly sacrificed by his blundering Conservative successors. Recriminations on this subject will doubtless go on for some time, though the world will give little heed to them. It could easily be shown, however, that no matter how much friction with the French Government Mr. BALDWIN inherited, his own course served to intensify it. People have not so easily forgotten his own speeches of warning to France or the particularly offensive Curzon note, now discredited by the event.

It is better today to pass the sponge over these misunderstandings and mistakes, and to realize the importance of the renewed co-operation between England and France. If industries in the Ruhr quickly return to their full measure of activity, the argument which the British have all along been using will be put to a conclusive test. They have steadily laid unemployment in England to the charge of the occupation of the Ruhr by the French. This, it was alleged, cut off England from her old markets and made English trade bad. There was probably always a fallacy in this, or at least a great exaggeration; but now we are in the way to learn the truth. However it turns out, and, of course, several weeks will be required to disclose the actual tendency of a speeding up of production in the Ruhr, the English will no longer be able to attribute their chief troubles at home to French foreign policy.

PRUDENT PENNSYLVANIANS.

Pennsylvania Republicans continue to be true to the philosophy of prudence which that illustrious Yankee immigrant, BEN FRANKLIN, may be said to have brought into the colony, or have added to the Quaker store of that virtue. All the Pennsylvania politicians, whatever their party label, seem to be cautious opportunists. With reference to Presidents, the political motto is: "I give that thou mayest give." Last Spring almost all Pennsylvania's Republican Congressmen had a dinner at Atlantic City. By the seaside, as by the fireside, an irresistible impulse drives Pennsylvania Republicans to hold a caucus. A caucus there was. It highly resolved that the Pennsylvania delegation to the next Republican National Convention should be uninstructed.

A "bunch" of seventy-eight delegates doesn't have to speak loud to be heard far. At that time the Pennsylvania Republican grandees felt that Mr. HARDING's Administration had scorned them. Their candidate for Assistant Secretary of War was not appointed. Colonel ALEXANDER P. MOORE of the Hiram Johnson boom had been cleverly removed to Spain without consulting the Pennsylvania Senators. The Chief Justice of Pennsylvania wasn't appointed an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. The caucus decided to keep aloof from Mr. HARDING's legislative program. Sharp and sufficient notice was given that the Pennsylvania Republicans must be "placated." Those clouds rolled away. The other day the Atlantic City performance was repeated. Senator PEPPER and Senator REED served notice upon Mr. COOLIDGE. It was a lovely specimen of detached forethought and canny hold-back:

> We have no statement to make in regard to the Republican Presidential nomination. If it be true, as rumored, that President COOLIDGE will consent to be a candidate for the nomination, and if it also be true, as likewise rumored, that Governor PINCHOT has Presidential aspirations, a situation will develop upon which a Senator from Pennsylvania ought not to express himself too prematurely, or otherwise than after most serious reflection. What is best for the country, what is best for the State, what is best for the party, are the considerations to which grave attention must be given, and we have no expectation of making any announcement on the subject in the near future.

It is almost barbaric to chip a splinter off this entire and perfect chrysolite, but the unspeakable beauty of "as rumored" deserves special mention. Mr. COOLIDGE is to be watched with "grave attention." The eyes of these Pennsylvania patriots are upon him. Pennsylvania has "claims," and seventy-eight delegates to know the reason why if those "claims" aren't satisfied. Not rashly or suddenly or without due consideration received will the patriots break the majestic silence, outward sign of profoundest thought, to which they are sworn.

There is a gravity of humor as well as of intention. The Pennsylvania Prudents have it. They are no friends of Mr. PINCHOT, who upset their candidate for Governor last year. They have simply taken him as a hostage for Mr. COOLIDGE's good behavior to them. Appreciating the warmth of their Pinchotism, and, perhaps, the gratitude of the people for next Winter's coal bills, Mr. PINCHOT now has "nothing to say" about that engaging rumor. May we recall as a delightful addition to the comedy of the situation that the two Senators served copies of their no-statement statement on the reporters just after leaving the President's office, where, Mr. PEPPER explained, they had gone not to talk politics but to ask Mr. COOLIDGE to take part in the commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of a pickle factory? Such were the auspicious preliminaries of the production of their rod-in-pickle for Mr. COOLIDGE.

THE OKLAHOMA MUDDLE.

In a few days the abnormal situation in Oklahoma should change. Assuming that the Judges of the State Courts know the law and are men of integrity and independence, the bitter controversy between Governor WALTON and the Legislature will be settled—at least for the time being. The issue is whether the Governor alone has the authority to call an extra session. There is no doubt that the Constitution gives him the authority in express terms. But the House of Representatives contends that in such an emergency as a dictatorship, which Governor WALTON is charged with setting up, the organic law cannot deny it the right to assemble and attempt to impeach him. Oklahoma has a long and elaborate Bill of Rights. Perhaps the Judges can find in it sanction for the contention of the legislators. In their application to the State District Court at Oklahoma City they prayed for an injunction to restrain Adjutant General MARKHAM "from interfering with 'them as members of the House of 'Representatives in assembling."

The matter being now in litigation, it may be supposed that, pending appeal by either side from a decision to the higher courts, there will be no extra session and Governor WALTON will continue to dominate the State as commander-in-chief of the troops that are enforcing martial law. Yet it appears that nothing is so black in Oklahoma as it has been painted. The assertion that most of the citizen soldiers are members of the Ku Klux Klan falls before their loyalty to a commander-in-chief who is waging war without quarter against the Invisible Empire. And the Governor was wrong about the legislators. They could never have intended "to 'ride through blood up to their bridles" in defiance of lawful authority, as he theatrically proclaimed. Nothing could have been more circumspect than their behavior when the Governor threatened to turn the troops upon them. They at once applied to the courts. As for Governor WALTON, he was not open to the accusation of attacking the Ku Klux Klan because it had rejected his application for membership, the record showing that he had been elected on an anti-Ku Klux Klan platform by a large majority.

In his campaign against the Invisible Empire Governor WALTON should have the support of good citizens, but it is unfortunate that he has alienated no small number of them by rattling the saber when he might have co-operated with the legislators in having the differences between them passed on by the courts. Martial law with him is sometimes suspiciously like disregard of legitimate civil process. Conciliation seems to be foreign to him. It may be doubted whether he has not strengthened the Ku Klux Klan by the violence of his charges against local authorities, by his readiness to supersede them with troops, and by his generally bellicose attitude.

THE CITY'S NEED FOR BOOKS.

One hundred and seventy-five thousand volumes, torn, worn and inexpressibly dirty, bear witness at once to the service and to the needs of the branches of the New York Public Library. Inasmuch as the income from gifts and other sources for the main library at Forty-second Street and Fifth Avenue may not be diverted for the use of the branch libraries, and inasmuch as it is these branches which are most accessible to the reading public, the task of keeping them up is particularly difficult. The demand for books—especially for the standard "classics" of the English language—is nearly always in excess of the supply, and such is the wear which these popular volumes receive in the hands of readers that they are necessarily short-lived. Added to this are the expenses of maintenance and administration, of coal for heating the buildings, of stationery and other office supplies, of stamps and cards for following up books overdue, and of all the small items which lumped together make the upkeep of a branch library costly.

Upon the City Treasury fall nearly all of these expenses. In pursuance of a policy of economy, the library budgets in past years have been severely cut, and so little money has been devoted to the replacement of worn-out volumes and the purchase of new books that the supply has fallen far behind the demand. In 1921 only $100,000 was appropriated, though $140,000 was asked. In 1922 the library received only $60,000 instead of the needed $150,000, leaving such a deficit in the book fund that in 1923 the library was forced to ask for $250,000 in order to meet the accumulated demands for replacements, rebindings and new volumes. The City Fathers, however, this time cut off $190,000.

It is encouraging that the library's request for $250,000 for books for the year 1924 met with a friendly hearing before the Board of Estimate last week. Instead of the deaf ear which that body has turned in the last few years to the pleas of the library's officials, the members of the board present at the hearing appeared to appreciate the urgency of the need, and showed an understanding of the importance of the library to the people of the city. So many are the appeals for large appropriations that the board has to be cautious in order to protect the city's funds. To decide where to cut least is naturally difficult. But it is to be hoped that this year the library will be generously treated. If the present disposition of the Board of Estimate further to consider the library's needs results in suitable action, that body will deserve the thanks of the city's army of readers.

COMMUNISM BY CONSENT.

ADOLPH HITLER's reactionary Bavarians seem to have been quieted, for the moment, by the appointment of a Bavarian dictator, and Bavaria in general has been quieted by the appointment of an all-German dictator. Dr. GESSLER, it may be observed, is more dictatorial than might be inferred from his photograph published in yesterday's papers, which was apparently posed at a café table while the dictator was discussing "Werther's Leiden" over a seidel of beer. In previous crises GESSLER dictated with vigor and a moderate degree of success.

One thing that makes it easier for the German Government is that the alliance between Fascisti and Communists, which seemed possible only a few weeks ago, is fading more and more into the background of unreality. In The Living Age, reproduced from the Rote Fahne of July 29, is an article by the zealous pastor of the Communist flock abroad, KARL RADEK. With his analysis of the underlying motive of Fascism we are not concerned, but it is worth noting that he warns the proletarians that they must fight Fascismo not only by armed resistance where necessary but by political methods. "If we are to conquer 'Fascism, we must win over the petty 'bourgeoisie." The ordinary citizen, in other words, must be convinced that Communism can offer him more than pseudo-aristocratic reaction. This is a very different doctrine from that which the Communists put into practice in Russia. In Germany they would have to go more slowly.

Though communism has been making progress in Germany, there is no evidence as yet that it is powerful enough either among the petty bourgeoisie or the workmen to seize and hold power. On the other hand, the rantings of the blond Aryan chosen people who represent the German variety of Fascism can hardly offer much attraction for any large section of the population. It is at least arguable, and from this distance it seems plausible, that even the petty bourgeoisie and the manual workers might be better off under a Government which followed the policy toward which Dr. STRESEMANN is apparently aiming, that of giving POINCARE what he wants and trying to get along under the treaty.

As for this German revolution, whether from the Right or from the Left, which is so often announced and so regularly fails to appear, it doesn't seem much nearer this time than before. Aside from the small groups of saber-rattlers on the extreme Right, most of the German people could probably be kept quiet, like the Yale undergraduates, by the exaction of a pledge not to indulge in any rioting this year.

RIGHT HAND AND LEFT.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue announces that "the United States Gov-'ernment wins the big end of the 'purse" from the Dempsey-Firpo fight. Besides the $108,000 collected as a tax on the gate receipts, Mr. DEMPSEY and Mr. FIRPO, gentlemen of intermittent but large incomes, must pay heavy taxes and surtaxes on the $600,000 they took away from the battle at the Polo Grounds; and even Mr. RICKARD, the promoter, who is not exactly poor, must give up part of his profits. Altogether, it seems that of the $1,200,000 paid by patrons of the fight, about $500,000 will go to the Government. Add the money collected by the State, through admission taxes and income tax, and it appears that the authorities walk away with about half of the gate.

An enterprise which contributes so much to the public purse would seem a worthy one. Yet, in many States, Federal District Attorneys are preparing to prosecute the men who are trying to show moving pictures of this same fight. The fight itself was legally permitted; the showing of pictures of it is permissible except where State or local ordinances forbid; but the transportation of these pictures across a State line is an infamous crime.

Indeed, a zealous prosecutor in West Virginia tried to indict a newspaper for printing a photograph of the fight; and though the action was dropped, it appears from the news dispatches that "still" photographs are about as obnoxious to the statute as movies. This was not mentioned by the diligent reformers who put the law through Congress, and perhaps for that reason prosecutors may be inclined to connive at nullification, so far as it applies to still photographs. At any rate, the movie films, innocent in themselves, become implements of crime when they cross State boundaries; and a Government whose right hand is raking in half the money paid by people who saw the fight is compelled to drop a heavy left hand on those who want to show pictures of it. Here is a little added material for that much-needed exhaustive work on "American Disrespect for Law."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Turn Back Watches This Evening.

With today ends daylight saving for the year, and a great pity it is, too, for in no month more than in October is an added hour of sunlighted leisure enjoyable or profitable. That added hour for what often is the pleasantest month for out-of-door activities was lost in what should have been known by everybody would be a vain concession to rural obstinacy and antagonism to city folk. The farmers in this and other States hate five months of daylight saving no less than they do seven, and as the hatred is based on a feeling, not on facts, argument will have no effect on it so long as the feeling lasts.

The only people who really are inconvenienced by setting the clock ahead an hour in Summer—who really lose something—are the night workers whose "day" begins somewhere in the neighborhood of 6 P. M. Of all workers, however, they are but a small fraction. The farmers, who have done all of the complaining about the plan, suffer from it not at all, or inappreciably, and could, if they would, as easily adjust their work to a changed clock as of necessity they must to the changing sun. Their political influence has been sufficient to add some irritating confusion to the situation, especially for automobilists making long tours, but now practically everybody has learned how to add one to every figure on a railway timetable that indicates hours and to make the few other simple computations which the concurrent usage of two "times" necessitates.

The trouble caused by these complications has diminished as experience has increased, and this year trains have been missed for this cause only by the most ingenuous of blunderers. Things might be better than they are, but also they might be worse, and that is some consolation for the brevity of the present daylight-saving period.

Shouldn't Be Viewed as Money-Makers.

In what seems to have been an effort to reconcile the country to the establishment of the great national parks, the Interior Department has figured out, no doubt correctly, that they produced, last year, an actual financial profit to the States in which they are situated of about $100,000,000. That is the amount, according to the departmental statisticians, which visitors to these reservations spent in them and in getting to them.

The argument is a poor one. The money thus taken into the several park States by tourists from beyond their borders is taken away from other States, and the latter have as much right to complain as the former have to rejoice over the transfer of wealth.

But, of course, the national parks do not need the sort of defence which the Interior Department sets up for them. Their purpose is not to earn money for the Government, and while it is justifiable to make visitors pay whatever expenses their presence causes, and it is well that the parks should be self-supporting, to regard them as a business enterprise is a mistake. As a matter of fact, the public does not so regard them, but as sources of health and commendable pleasure obtained amid scenes of great natural beauty. That is what makes them worth while. They are glories of the nation as a whole—evidences of our civilization and monuments to our esthetic advancement. That they have incidentally uncertain financial advantages for the people living in their vicinity and for the railways by which they are reached—there is no harm in that, but it should not be discussed as if it were relevant to the question whether or not there should be national parks.

FINDS PEACE HOPE IS DEAD IN EUROPE

Theodore Stanfield, Home After Study Abroad, Says New War Is Expected.

STILL IN "SEMI-BARBARISM"

Individuals Have Grown in Good-Will, He Declares, but Evil Past Binds Nations.

Establishment of durable peace in Europe is an admitted impossibility under present conditions, according to Theodore Stanfield, former Managing Director of the American Metal Company, life member of the American Peace Society, and member of the Williamstown Institute of Politics, who returned to New York yesterday after a prolonged study of European politics in Paris and London. Mr. Stanfield has retired and as a hobby devotes a considerable portion of each year to analysis of world conditions.

He finds that European statesmen confess they no longer seek a solution to the proble mwhich beset them, but seek the least dangerous of alternatives. America, he says, cannot help the nations clamoring for assistance until these nations cast aside the principles of brute force and seek co-operation without greed.

England's Three Big Points.

Mr. Stanfield says that prominent English statesmen told him their country could never depart from the three following cardinal points of policy:

1. Absolute control of sea routes to ensure trade and food supply.

2. The prevention of the domination of the River Scheldt by any great power or group of powers.

3. The prevention of any great power securing the economic domination of Europe, which would shut out England's trade.

"Europe," said Mr. Stanfield, "is a continent inhabited by about thirty nations without any common political, economic or social purpose, and without any common ideals, a continent always at war, recovering from war or preparing for war.

"Just now it is slowly recovering from the last war, and is enjoying a temporary peace of exhaustion. Already it is preparing for the next war. One hears Europeans discussing when it will occur. Many expect it in about ten to fifteen years, if not sooner.

"About 4,000,000 men are today under arms in Europe. About 3,000,000 more are being instructed in the art of war. The sad truth is that this exceeds the number that were under arms before 1914.

New Race for Armaments.

"The war-breeding armament race has started once again. This time it is taking the form of a competition for control of the air.

"Europeans realize that the root evil is that while there has been an enormous personal progress in pity, patience, tenderness and good-will between man and man, nations as nations are still in a state of semi-barbarism.

"Everybody with whom I conversed regards as impossible a change in this fundamental condition. They all pointed to Europe's deep national hatreds, its intense rivalries, and its many bloody wars as insurmountable obstacles. When asked "Quo Vadis?" they shrugged their shoulders and confess to a blind fatalism.

"A birds-eye view of Franco-Germany history raises the question whether or not either nation has ever dealt with the fundamental causes of their recurrent wars. They seem for over 100 years to have been in a relationship to each other similar to that of two boys playing seesaw. Now in 1923 France has achieved the dominating position and Germany is in the depths. Is not this strange and persistent oscillation due to the fact that the Franco-German seesaw is moved by the alternate preponderance of brute force, and has not history proved that power based upon brute force always has within itself the seeds of decay which invariably sap the strength of such power?

"This being so, can there be any real security for France, or for any other nation in Europe, until this rule of brute force is replaced by the rule of law? France, because of her dominant position of the Continent, has the opportunity to take the initiative to effect this change. If she fails to change the rules of the game during the period of her ascendancy, she must expect that history will repeat itself and Germany will once again get on top.

No Chance for Peace Now.

"As long as European nations deal with one another like savages, we Americans must realize that there can be no stable, durable economic or social peace in Europe or the world. In our own interest, in the interest of the world and mankind, we must avoid becoming entangled in this suicidal European game, but we must co-operate to the utmost in any serious and honest effort which might result in the overthrow of brute force.

"Until this force ceases to determine international action we ourselves are compelled to maintain a force adequate to the defense of our country and the protection of our foreign interests."

VETERANS HOLD REUNION.

"Lightning Division" to Consider Bonus at Atlantic City Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 28.—More than 4,000 former service men were here today for the second annual reunion of the Seventy-eighth Division, composed of veterans from Western New York, New Jersey and Delaware, kuwon in the A. E. F. as the "Lightning Division." They will be here until Sunday.

Major Gen. James S. McRae, who led the division in France, attended the evening session tonight on the Steel Pier. The Rev. Arthur Elwood of this city, who was division chaplain, welcomed the veterans. United States Senator Walter E. Edge spoke. Motion pictures of the division in action in France were shown.

Messages were received from Marshall Foch, former President Wilson, Governor Smith of New York and Governor Silzer of New Jersey.

The bonus question will be discussed and a resolution introduced providing that if Congress passes a bonus measure it shall not be vetoed, but be made mandatory for those not in need of it, to pool their interests and apply the money to the welfare and training of crippled men and to aid the widows and mothers of those who lost their lives in the war.

SUES FOR THREE PAINTINGS.

Painter Here Claims $4,250 From Washington Woman.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Miss Valerie B. Padelford of this city, described as the daughter of the late Bettina O. Padelford, an actress, and granddaughter of General Albert Ordway, one time Territorial Governor of Dakota, was sued today in the District Supreme Court by Bernard Gordon to recover $4,250, alleged to be due for oil paintings of Miss Padelford's mother, father and grandmother.

According to counsel for Gordon, the latter is agent for Kanovitch, a Russian painter, with headquarters in New York City. Miss Padelford lives at Stoneleigh Court here.

BALK AT GRAIN FREIGHT ACT

American Lake Vessel Interests Are in Conference With Canadian.

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—Representatives of the largest vessel interests in Canada and the United States held a joint conference yesterday with Leslie Boyd, Chairman of the Board of Grain Commissioners, with respect to the working out of the Lake Grain Freight act, which was enacted at the last session of the Federal Government, and under which the United States vessel interests refuse to file a tariff and post charters made at Canadian lake ports.

Harvey Goulder of Cleveland, solicitor of the Lake Carriers' Association, who did not officially represent that body at the conference, but acted in a private capacity for sevarl large United States vessel owners, explained that under no conditions would the American owners submit to the provisions of the existing act. He pointed out that it was not the desire of his clients to create a precedent for filing a tariff, which if done would be the means of creating a similar condition in the United States should the Interstate Commerce Commission force American owners to file tariffs for coal, ore and stone.

Mr. Goulder said the American interests had come to Toronto hoping that some solution would be found which would enable them to assist in moving from the head of the lakes part of the great volume of grain.

FOR JEWISH EDUCATION.

Actors to Conduct Guests on a Tour of the East Side.

Led by Joseph Leblanc, prominent actors and manegers, including Al Jolson, Lee Shubert, A. H. Woods, Sam Harris, Archie Selwyn, Abraham Erlanger, Ed Wynn, Barney Klavans, Louis Mann and Barney Bernard, will conduct a tour through the east side tomorrow inb ehalf of the Jewish Educational Association. They will accompany the guests of the tour, who will include some of the wealthiest members of the Jewish community.

The purpose is to make a survey of the religious needs of 250,000 Jewish children inthis city. There will be 100 automobiles in the party, and the tour will terminate at Rutgers Square at 4 P. M.

An appeal to Jewish parents to enroll their children in the various religious schools was made yesterday by the Jewish Education Association, which has set aside this week as registration week. Mass meetings will be held in different sections of the city boroughs at which speakers will emphasize the need of giving Jewish children a religious and Jewish education.

DR. LORENZ RETURNS.

Arrives on the Resolute to Resume Practice Here.

Dr. Adolph Lorenz, noted surgeon of Vienna, returned yesterday on the Resolute of the United American Lines via Hamburg, to resume his practice in the United States for the Winter. He was accompanied by his son, Dr. Albert Lorenz, who is his assistant, and his daughter-in-law. Dr. Lorenz, who is 75 years old, looked much improved by his rest abroad.

Dr. Lorenz said that in his opinion the most important discovery in medicine recently was insulin, which had proved of great value in checking diabetes. It was used in the public clinics in Austria, he said, and the results were astonishing. The doctor said that passengers on the Resolute had donated $1,000 for the relief of physicians and surgeons in Austria.

Another passenger on the Resolute was Dr. F. J. Kaufmann of Syracuse, who has been doing research work in the General Hospital in Vienna.

Julius P. Meyer, director of the Hamburg-American Line in the United States, was also a passenger. He said that the Deutschland, sister to the Albert Ballin, would soon be in operation in the New York service.

HINES DROPS 2,025 CLERKS.

Reduces Veterans' Bureau Personnel to 28,182 in Six Months.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The personnel of the Veterans' Bureau has been reduced by 2,025 employes since March 1, Director Hines' announced today that 336 employes in the central office and 1,689 field agents had been released in the last six months, and that the bureau's roll has been brought down to 28,182.

The directors said he would hold a conference in November with chief nurses of the bureau's hospitals and that a school for neuropsychiatric specialists would be opened in Hospital 81 in the Bronx, New York.

An inspection tour of Veterans' Bureau institutions in the West will be made next month by Director Hines. He will visit the Tacoma and Seattle hospitals Oct. 9 and later will inspect institutions in California and look over proposed sites for a tuberculosis hospital in the Southern part of that State.

MORGAN AID TO POLISH BANK

M. Kucharski added that the negotiations in England to obtain a loan of $50,000,000 to cover the Polish budget deficit were following a favorable course.

Meetings of the Executive Council and Administrative Committee were held this morning, but they were devoted solely to routine association affairs.

The place of next year's convention will be decided in December. It is expected to be in Chicago.

CROWDING REDUCED, SAY SCHOOL HEADS

Decrease of 9,439 in Part-Time Pupils Reported by Ryan and Ettinger.

ENROLMENT GAIN COVERED

Overflow of Children Handled by New Annexes—Buildings to Be Ready Next Year.

President George J. Ryan of the Board of Education, and Dr. William L. Ettinger, Superintendent of Schools, issued a joint statement yesterday in which they cited figures to show that there has been a relief in the congestion of schools, notwithstanding an increase in enrolment from 841,738 to 858,376. The figures relate to Sept. 17 last and compare with date of Sept. 13, 1922. The statement said in part:

"The statistics of registration, attendance, and part time for Sept. 17, 1923, which are now available, show that the congestion in the public schools has been somewhat relieved. A study of the facts shows that the period of greatest congestion was September, 1922, when there were 166,717 pupils on part time. This September the number has been reduced to 157,278, making a decrease of 9,439. The most gratifying feature of this decrease is that the number of pupils on part time in the high schools was reduced from 69,213 to 59,076.

"The reduction was effected in spite of the fact that the high school registration increased 6,035, and that no new high school buildings were available. However, the opening of annexes to Wadleigh High School, Morris High School, Jamaica High School, and the George Washington High School, together with the more effective organisation of double sessions, made it possible to absorb the increase and at the same time to effect a reduction in the number of pupils on short time. There is every reason to believe that before another school year begins three large high school buildings now under construction will have been completed.

Dates of Completion.

"The probable dates of completion of high school buildings now under way, are as follows: Julia Richman High School, April, 1924; George Washington High School, June, 1924; Thomas Jefferson High School, July, 1924. In addition, it is expected that the new Utrecht High School will be completed by December, 1924.

"The registration in the elementary schools exceeded expectations. The increase over last September was 14,212, but the increase in part time was only 698. A more complete use of the new buildings just opened helped materially to reduce part time.

"Continuous progress during the present school year in the reduction of part time, is confidently expected. Before the close of the term ending Jan. 31, 1924, ten or more new elementary school buildings will be completed. That the Board of Education has undertaken a building program of unheard magnitude is shown by the fact that the following schools in the various boroughs are now under construction: Borough of Manhattan, six elementary schools and two high schools; Borough of the Bronx, twelve elementary schools and additions; Borough of Brooklyn, nine elementary schools and three high schools; Borough of Queens, four elementary schools and three temporary buildings; Borough of Richmond, one high school building. The completion of these thirty-four elementary school buildings and additions, and the three high schools will provide 64,522 elementary school sittings and 17,398 high school sittings. These totals do not include ten additional buildings, contracts for which have been awarded.

152,880 New Sittings Planned.

"In addition to the foregoing program, plans are either completed or are in preparation for buildings which will provide 53,100 additional sittings for elementary pupils, and 17,860 additional sittings for high school pupils. The entire building program of schools now under construction or schools for which plans are either completed or under way, will provide a grand total of 152,880 sittings, of which 117,622 sittings will be in the elementary schools and 35,258 in the high schools."

U. OF P. ENROLLS 14,000.

Dr. Penniman Attributes Increase to Influence of War.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—The University of Pennsylvania opened its one hundred and eighty-fourth academic session today with the largest enrolment in its long history, the registration exceeding 14,000.

For several years the university has been forced to limit the registration of two of the undergraduate schools and several of the professional schools. This year, despite the requirement of one year of collegiate work for admission and the large number of college graduates applying, it was necessary to limit the freshman class of the Dental School to 150 and the total enrolment of this department to 600.

In welcoming the students Dr. Josiah H. Penniman, recently made the executive as well as the educational head of the institution, attributed the increased demand for education upon American universities and colleges to the influence of the World War. He said that in response to a widespread demand from engineers and business men the university was considering plans for a combined course in engineering and finance and commerce.

One new department, the Moore School of Electrical Engineering, with an endowment of $1,500,000, was added this year to the group of twelve schools comprising the university.

TESTS FOR NEW VOTERS.

Sherman Rules Regents' Certificates Sufficient Proof of Literacy.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Literacy tests for new voters may be imposed by the alternative of Regents' certificates or examination by election inspectors, Attorney General Sherman ruled today. The ruling was to clarify the situation arising from the passage of several laws by the last session of the Legislature for the determination of literacy tests.

Under the Attorney General's opinion, election officers may permit a new voter to read and write excerpts from the United States Constitution or may accept a certificate indicating that the voter possesses the necessary educational qualifications. The Board of Regents has provided a test such as a fifth-grade pupil can pass and arranged to have schools throughout the State kept open at convenient times prior to election so that first voter may attend school and undergo the proper test.

BUYS SITE FOR LEGATION.

This Government Acquires One of the Finest Residences in Christiania.

CHRISTIANIA, Sept. 28.—The United States Government has purchased one of the finest residences in Christiania for its legation mansion and office. The building was owned by the son-in-law of Alfred B. Nobel, founder of the Nobel prizes. It has a large, well-cultivated garden and other desirable features.

The newspapers are congratulating Laurits S. Swenson, the American Minister, who has just closed the negotiations for the purchase. They remark upon the fortunate situation of the American staff here owing to the high dollar rate.

TO JUDGE LEGION ESSAY.

Three Are Named to Award School Prizes.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 28.—National judges for the American Legion's essay contest will be Raymond F. Crist, United States Commissioner of Naturalization; W. T. Bowden, Assistant Commissioner of Education, and William Tyler Page, Clerk of the House of Representatives and author of "The American's Creed." These judges, announced today by Garland W. Powell, director of the Americanism Commission of the Legion, at national headquarters here, will pass final judgment on approximately 400,000 essays to be submitted by school children of the country on the subject: "Why America Should Prohibit Immigration for Five Years."

The contest closes Oct. 12. Judges appointed in each county in the country will select the best compositions submitted in that county and send them to State judges, named by State Superintendents of Education and legion officials. The three best manuscripts in each State, to be determined by Nov. 15, will be seent to the national judges, who will announce the successful contestants probably during American Education Week, Nov. 18-24.

Cash awards, to be applied on scholarships at chools to be selected by the winners, will be distributed as follows: First, $750; second, $500; third, $250. Ah Sing Ching, a youth of Chinese extraction, living in Hawaii, was awarded first prize in the 192 contest.

PLEADS FOR FREE PRESS.

Col. McCormick of Chicago Tribune Tells Students Honesty Pays.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—It is important that editors of honest newspapers be not bound by the chains of politics and faction, and equally important that they be not tied and cluttered by the pink ribbons of the world of fashion or society, declared Colonel Robert R. McCormick, co-editor of The Chicago Tribune, in an address before the Medill School of Journalism, here last night.

Colonel McCormick spoke on "The Newspaper for Ideals Versus the Newspaper for Profit." He stated that the newest thing in Government is the newspaper.

"Honesty in news presentation and in editorial expression not only coincides with a newspaper's financial success but is indispensable to it," he said.

"The old idea that newspaper publishing means losing virtue or the old homestead is stuff out of melodrama. The utterances and acts of a newspaper are checked up by more people than are the utterances of any other institution."

Free institutions can exist only in the presence of a free and honest press, according to Colonel McCormick, who declared that "the dictatorships of Moscow, Rome, Madrid and Tulsa exist because of the absence there of a free press."

ASKS SAN MARINO QUOTA.

Aliens' Counsel Tells Court Tiny Nation Shared in Peace Conference.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—A legal battle was undertaken here in the Federal Courts today to have San Marino, the tiny republic of Southern Europe, granted a separate immigration quota into the United States.

Some time ago, Guiseppi Giovagnoli, a resident of Milwaukee, instructed his wife to bring their three children to join him in America. At the same time Mervino Francesconi cabled his sweetheart, Miss America Alacsini of New York, that he was leaving for America to marry her.

All were residents of San Marino. When they arrived at the Gloucester, N. J., immigration station, they were informed that San Marino was embraced in the class of "other European countries" and, as the qouta of that category had been exceeded, they were excluded.

Adrian Bonnelly, an attorney, appeared before Judge Dickinson and argued that inasmuch as San Marino, a republic of 38 square miles in territory, had its own delegates at the Peace Conference, it was entitled to a separate immigration quota. Judge Dickinson said he would announce his decision next week and in the meantime released the immigrants in $500 bail.

MAYOR HYLAN BETTER.

Wife and Daughter Will Lose Their Vote This Year.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Mayor John F. Hylan continued to improve today, and Dr. George F. Comstock, his principal attending physician, discontinued the formal bulletins.

Although the date for the return of the Mayor and his family to his home in Brooklyn has not yet been definitely set, it probably will not be soon enough to enable Mrs. Hylan or her daughter, Mrs. John F. Sinnott, to register for the November election. Neither has missed a vote since women obtained the franchise.

Mr. Sinnott, Secretary to the Mayor, said that no advance announcement would be made of the Mayor's return.

"We wish to spare the Mayor the annoyance of crowds," Mr. Sinnott said. "He will not be able to walk, and we expect that he will be in bed for a month after his return to Brooklyn."

ALL READY FOR NEXT WAR.

Assistant Secretary Davis Says Our Industries Are Prepared.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 28.—Another war would not find the United States in the state of unpreparedness in which it was found in 1917, Colonel Dwight F. Davis, St. Louis, Assistant Secretary of War, said here today.

Colonel Davis, who is on his way to Excelsior Springs to address the annual reunion of the Thirty-fifth Division, of which he was an officer, has under his direction the mobilization of industry as provided by the National Defense act in event of war.

"More than 700,000 industries have been catalogued by the War Department as sources of supplies. We know what equipment they can manufacture, how much and how quickly," Colonel Davis said. "The profiteering of the last war will be eliminated."

WALES GREETS NEIGHBORS.

Gives Alberta Breeders Run of His Ranch at Picnic.

E. P. RANCH, PEKISKO, Alberta, Sept. 28.—"Fellow Albertans, you are welcome and I hope you will enjoy the outing. My ranch is open to you today; go as far as you like," was the greeting from Edward Prince of Wales, to 300 persons who attended the annual picnic of the Alberta Shorthorn Breeders' Association at the E. P. Ranch yesterday. This put all at their ease and they took the royal rancher at his word.

They inspected the buildings, the cattle and horses, talked live stock with the Prince and then concluded the proceeding by asking him to pose for snapshots, which he did.

HEARS OF TURKISH REPUBLIC

Vienna Has an Unconfirmed Rumor That One Has Been Declared.

PARIS, Sept. 28.—A Havas dispatch from Vienna says it is rumored there that a republic has been declared in Turkey. There is no confirmation of the rumor from any direct source.

The flight of the Sultan of Turkey last November left the political status of Turkey in doubt. The Sultan did not abdicate and has since asserted that he is still the ruler of Turkey. But the Kemalist element now dominant is opposed to the Sultanate, and a dispatch from Constantinople on Sept. 25, said it was virtually certain that Turkey would be declared a republic.

"LOHENGRIN" AT CENTURY.

Wagner's Opera Sung in Italian, With Anna Fitziu as Elsa.

Wagner's "Lohengrin" was ambitiously sung last evening at the Century as the eleventh production of the San Carlo season here. Sincere enjoyment of Anna Fitziu's artistic performance was expressed by the audience. With the singing of Wagner in Italian, there need be no revival of discussion, as it is a matter which has had ample precedent in the older Metropolitan days, to say nothing of Wagner's own praise of his works as he heard them long ago in Italy.

Ludovico Tomarchio was a flashing and heroic Lohengrin as he fought the duel with Mario Valle, who was Telramund. Mr. Gallo's company of "guests" was reinforced notably by Mme. Elenora de Cisneros, appearing with them for the first time as Ortrud. The former Manhattan contralto was welcomed by many who remembered her first metropolitan steps in "Parsifal" and her large share in gala seasons of Hammerstein.

Others in last night's cast were Messrs. de Biasi and Interrante, who with the chorus and orchestra under Mr. Peroni gave good account of themselves.

ANTHRAX NOW CONQUERED.

Disease Had High Fatality Rate in This City a Few Years Ago.

Anthrax is now regarded as obsolete, according to Dr. Douglas Symmers, Director of Laboratories at Bellevue Hospital.

Thirty-four cases of the disease were reported in this city in the years of 1919 and 1920. Eleven resulted in death. The passage of legislation to prevent the manufacture of horse-hair shaving brushes and the development of an anti-anthrax serum have conquered the disease.

When the disease was the most widespread, Dr. Symmers and his assistant, Dr. D. W. Cady, went into the open market and purchased horsehair shaving brushes from peddlers and drug stores and found anthrax bacilli in more than 7 per cent. of them.

LONGSHOREMEN WIN RISE.

Steamship Owners Agree to a 44-Hour Week in Summer.

The disagreement between the longshoremen and the steamship companies in this port as to wages and hours for the new contract which comes into force at midnight tomorrow, was settled amicably yesterday at a meeting at 10 Bridge Street attended by representatives of both parties. The owners proposed a 10-cent increase to 80 cents an hour for day work and raised the overtime scale of $1.07 to $1.20. The checkers' wage scale was increased from $5.40 to $6 per day, with $1.20 an hour for overtime. Cargo repairmen will receive the same increase as the longshoremen.

The owners refused to concede the request that the forty-eight hour week be cut to a forty-four hour week, but agreed to the shorter period for June, July, August and September.

FEET OF CLAY
By MARGARETTA TUTTLE
Don't wait for your friends to suggest that you read this brilliant first novel—read it tonight and recommend it to them!
The Philadelphia Public Ledger says:
"Here is an exceptionally good first novel. It heralds the advent of a clever young American writer whose name gives promise of becoming sooner or later (I think sooner) a household word wherever books and authors are discussed. . . . It will be gathered that we enjoyed 'Feet of Clay.' We did. Thoroughly. And so we recommend 'Feet of Clay' as a novel of great merit and of real importance."
The Boston Herald says:
"An unusual novel, this, and one of which we are very likely to hear much in the next few months."

GIANTS WIN THIRD STRAIGHT PENNANT

Clinch Right to Meet Yanks in World's Series by Beating Robins, 3-0.

NINTH FLAG FOR McGRAW

Now Leads Connie Mack by Two—Nehf Outpitches Grimes in Deciding Game.

And now for that third world's series between Yankees and Giants! All the tumult and clamor was stilled yesterday at the Polo Grounds, for the Giants came back home and on their own ball field won the game that insured them their third straight National League pennant and John McGraw his ninth flag since coming to New York. The score was 3 to 0, with the Brooklyn Robins and Burleigh Grimes, old enemies, gracefully absorbing the punishment, and Arthur Nehf, appropriately enough, pitching the deciding game and pitching it well.

What the Cincinnati Reds do now doesn't matter in the slightest. Even if Pat Moran's men should win all of their remaining four games and the Giants lose their four, it would be the Giants' flag, as the following interesting figures show:

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
New York	94	59	.614
Cincinnati	94	60	.610

It will be observed that the Giants will play one less game than the Reds, this being the contest at St. Louis which was postponed because of rain. A ruling from President John Heydler's office yesterday upheld the Giants' contention that they can't be compelled to play the game, although they could have done so if they had needed it in the business of winning another pennant.

John McGraw now has a decisive margin over all other managers in the matter of pennants won. Nine are two more than the Little Napoleon's nearest competitor, Cornelius McGillicuddy, the lean Philadelphian, can boast of. McGraw's team has been first in 1904, 1905, 1911, 1912, 1913, 1917, 1921, 1922 and 1923. He is the only manager in major league history twice to win three pennants in a row, and he now faces the possibility of realizing the great ambition of his life—to do what nobody else has done and win three consecutive world's championships.

Clinch Flag in First.

The Giants mopped up the pennant race in easy fashion against the Robins, driving in enough runs to win in the opening inning and then spending the rest of the afternoon spoiling the Dodgers' well-intentioned efforts to coax a run over the plate. On offense the champions were uncertain in the pinches, but defensively they were sure-footed, snappy and sparkling, twice breaking up Brooklyn rallies by catching runners asleep away from the base. The McGrawians played another of their errorless games, and didn't make a mistake in defense, although perpetuating plenty of mistakes offensively.

Grimes hit Bancroft perilously near the skull to start the game and started trouble for himself. Groh forced Banny at second, Johnston to Olson, but Frisch belted a single to right, Groh pausing at second. Young's slow grounder was ferried to first by Johnston, the other runners advancing, and when Meusel singled to right two of them scored. That hit clinched the flag.

After this display of hard, timely hitting the champs relapsed into feeble pawing at Grimes's spitball. They had burly Burleigh in trouble nearly every inning, but had base running, weak stickwork when hits were needed and Grimes's own canniness forestalled any run making. The second inning was typical. Kelly and Snyder singled with none out, the former reaching third, only to run into sure death when he made a belated break for the plate on Nehf's smack which Grimes deflected to Johnston. Later in the inning Snyder and Bancroft tried a double steal and Jennings sent the catcher in while Grimes held the ball in the middle of the diamond.

The Giants tried the double steal a couple of more times after that and finally worked out the right combination in the eighth. Meusel and Stengel started with singles, but Kelly forced Stengel and Snyder fanned. While Nehf was at bat Kelly broke for second and Meusel for the plate, and Irish landed safely by a clever slide around Hargreaves, Bill Klem reversing his decision of "out" when the catcher didn't touch his man.

Miss Chances to Score.

Four of the local athletes died at the plate or between third and home, but this exhibition, while bad enough, was matched to the late dotting of the "i" by the Dodgers. In the first two innings and the fourth the Brooklynites showed an aptitude for hitting into double plays. In the sixth Fournier let two mates die at first and third when he rolled out weakly. An inning before this Bert Griffith was on second and Olson on first with two down, and then Snyder called for a pitch-out and caught Olson by a length and a quarter off first.

Bert Griffith matched this feat in the seventh, which he and Hargreaves opened with singles. While Olson was at the plate trying to bunt and letting perfect strikes breeze past him, Griffith got too far off second and was picked off neatly by Snyder and Bancroft.

Following this the Dodgers became discouraged and quit trying. Bert Griffith got his fourth single with two out in the last round, but Hargreaves filed to Young, and it was all over—pennant race and game. The 10,000 fans swarmed all over the field, patted the Giants affectionately on the back and went home to inspect the family exchequer with a view to investments in world's series tickets.

YANKS SET RECORD IN 24 TO 4 VICTORY

Break American League Mark With 30 Hits in One Game Against Red Sox.

RUTH MAKES 38TH HOMER

Also Gets Two Doubles and Two Singles—Four Safeties for Gehrig—Meusel Hurt Again.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 28.—Sam Jones and Howard Ehmke, heroes both of recent no-hit games against the Athletics, pitched against each other this afternoon for the first time since they entered the hall of fame, and the result was one of the wildest, weirdest games of the season. The Yankees won, 24 to 4, giving the Boston flinger one of the most impressive thrashings an American League pitcher ever has absorbed.

Ehmke was in poor form from the start, and was nicked for ten hits and six runs in the first five innings. Then the Yankees brought the full force of their strongest attack to bear upon the Red Sox hurler and completed his subjection by maving eleven hits—including Babe Ruth's thirty-eighth homer of the season—and scoring eleven runs in one amazing inning.

Manager Frank Chance refused to relieve Ehmke, who pitched to a total of sixteen batsmen in this terrific frame before he ended the slaughter by fanning Gazella, batting for Ward. It was in this round that Ruth, batting for the second time, lifted a circuit wallop into the centre field bleachers.

Ehmke was taken out between innings and Clarence Blethen, a recruit right-hander, finished the game. He was tapped for nine hits and seven runs in the three innings he worked.

The Yanks made thirty hits for a total of forty-four bases off the combined deliveries of Ehmke and Blethen, setting a new record for the American League for hits in one game.

Ruth led the assault with a base on balls, two singles, two doubles and a home run. Schang came through with four singles, a double and a sacrifice fly. Both Ruth and Schang had "perfect days" at bat to their credit up to the ninth inning, in which Babe flied out to Mitchell and Schang grounded to McMillan for a force out at second base.

Gehrig, the broad-beamed ex-collegian who again played first instead of Pipp, made four hits in seven times at bat, and three of them were doubles to the left field fence. Smith, who relieved Meusel and Dugan, who succeeded McNally, when the latter twisted his ankle in the second inning, each made three hits and so did Jones, who pitched the entire game for the Yanks.

The only unpleasant feature of the game from a Yankee viewpoint, was Meusel's second accident in successive days here. The Yankee outfielder barked his left shin while sliding into the plate in the opening game of the series and was limping still when he started today's affair in right field. Nevertheless he made a desperate try for Ehmke's long foul in the third inning and crashed into the wooden fence of the right field pavilion after catching the ball with one hand. He fell to the ground unconscious, but was quickly revived and left the field unaided.

WELLING OUTPOINTS DWYER

Chicago Lightweight Wins Listless Bout in Garden Arena.

Joe Welling, Chicago lightweight, got the decision over Hughie Dwyer, newly crowned lightweight champion of Australia, in a listless ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night. A crowd of 5,000 saw Dwyer make his New York début, but the Australian showed little skill against Welling.

> English Sportsmen May Make Flying Trip for Papyrus Race

> LONDON, Sept. 28.—Bulletins concerning the health of Papyrus during his voyage have been followed with great interest here and it is believed that a number of English sportsmen may make a flying trip across the Atlantic to see the race at Belmont Park. A tourist agency is offering special facilities and is organizing a tour, patrons of which would leave Southampton on the Aquitania on Oct. 13, have four days in New York, see the race, and sail again on the Aquitania Oct. 23, all for 117 pounds, approximately $585.

ZEV STEPS A HALF IN 0:47 HANDILY

Hildreth Sends the Brown Colt Through Fastest Workout Since His Injury.

There is every indication that the Rancocas Stable's Zev is fast approaching his very best form. From his workouts on the main track at Belmont Park it is evident that Trainer S. C. Hildreth has brought the son of The Finn and Miss Kearney to a point where he is about ready to race. Considerable was made of Zev's accident in the running of the Lawrence Realization, but it was not serious enough to prevent his working regularly since.

Immediately after the accident Zev's off forefoot was fitted with a bar plate to protect the frog, the top of which he scuffed off in running his race to beat Untidy. His first four serious gallops were half-miles only, beginning with a breeze in 0:52. That was gradually reduced to a half in 0:48 2-5. On a foggy morning, when the clockers were unable to catch the brown streak as he sped around the track, Hildreth sent him for a mile, which was reported by some to be very fast under the conditions.

The next work was three furlongs in 0:37, followed by a mile and a furlong in 1:58. Yesterday morning Zev was sent out for his fastestt half-mile since his injury. He was accompanied by the smart two-year-old Peter Pan colt Tester, a stable companion, and they breezed handily in 0:47, going to the quarter in 0:23.

SARAZEN ADVANCES TO FINAL AT PELHAM

Defeats Cruickshank in P. G. A. Tourney With String of Birdies, 7 and 5.

HAGEN WINS WITH EASE

Beats McLean, 12 and 11, and Will Meet Old Rival for Pro Title Today.

In the semi-final round of the P. G. A. championship at the Pelham Country Club yesterday Gene Sarazen, bent on winning a chance to defend his title, eliminated Bobby Cruickshank, the last of the Scots, by the margin of 7 up and 5 to play. As a result of his victory the greatest match of the golf year is in prospect for today, when Sarazen meets his arch rival, Walter Hagen, in the final round. Hagen annihilated George McLean, Grassy Sprain pro and holder of the Shawnee and Westchester County open titles, by 12 up and 11 to play.

Sarazen took the first hole, 4 to 6, when he got home with his second while Cruickshank, short on the like, shied his third beyond the green and used up a stroke to get back on. Gene drove over the houses onto the second green—a tremendous ball—but Bobby holed a 12-foot putt for his half in 3. Both experienced trouble getting to the third green and each had three putts, halving the hole in 6s. The next three holes were halved in par figures, Cruickshank being rather lucky at the fifth where his ball hit a tree and bounced back on the fairway. The first break for Cruickshank, so far as winning holes was concerned, came at the seventh, where Gene took three putts on the green. Bobby was not on but he approached dead. With the match all square coming to the ninth hole, Sarazen hooked his tee shot to the eighteenth fairway, but luck was with him in that he had a clear opening for the green and was better off than Cruickshank after the second shots had been played, for the little Scot was short on his run-up and had to hole a seven-footer to get even a half in 4. Sarazen was out in 37, even par, Cruickshank in 38.

The little Italian star then clinched the match by taking six holes in a row from his Scottish rival. His mashie shot to the tenth dropped dead eighteen inches from the flag, leaving him an easy birdie 2. Cruickshank, on the green, five yards to the left, made a great effort to hole the side-hill putt but failed. Sarazen, ahead of Cruickshank off the eleventh tee, played a great mashie-niblic approach to the green, and the ball cleared the traps and had enough backspin to hold it when it dropped over the shelf on the green. Cruickshank putted up close to the cup, but Sarazen holed his second birdie for a 3 to 4 win, making him 2 up.

The twelfth hole was a peculiar one. Cruickshank hooked one out of bounds but looked to be due for nothing worse than a half when his approach stopped within a club's length of the pin. Sarazen was short on his approach, barely on the edge of the green. His putt, however, was a gem, the ball running up and down elevations and burrowing its way into the cup for a birdie 3—his third in succession. That made him 3 up, and he increased the lead by taking the thirteenth elbow hole with a birdie 4. There was little if any difference in the drives and both second shots were pulled to avoid trouble at the right. Gene's ball came to rest in a clump of long grass, while Bobby's travelled a little further and into a trap, from where he had to explode it out. Sarazen's chip was perfectly executed and he won the hole 4 to 5, Cruickshank's putt for a 4 from twelve feet running past the side of the cup.

Having got the winning habit, Sarazen took two more before he stopped. He won the fourteenth when he got home in three and down in two putts for a par 5. Cruickshank's approach hit an overhanging branch and dropped into the brook, costing him a penalty stroke and giving him a 6 for the hole. Going to the fifteenth, both hooked, and their shots rolled down the bank into the rough. Cruickshank had the worst of it in the matter of luck, for there was a tree directly in his line toward the green. Gene tried to hook a spoon shot into the opening of the green, but his ball traveled in a straight line to the top of Mount Tom. Once more good fortune was with him, for the ball was located perched on the lofty tee with the worst kind of trouble in every other spot on the mound. After Cruickshank had hit a tree in his attempt to reach the green and was short on his approach, Sarazen chipped through the branches of a clump of trees and got down in two putts for a 5. Bobby was several feet past the hole on his try for a half, but failed to get down.

Cruickshank put a temporary stop to Sarazen's streak by getting birdie wins for himself at the sixteenth and seventeenth. He was well inside Gene at the short sixteenth, and dropped a five-foot putt for a 2. He was home in 2 at the long seventeenth, while Gene pushed his second into the rough, short of the green. Sarazen was on well past the pin on his third, but Cruickshank rolled up close and got down his putt for a 4. The home hole was halved in fours, so that Sarazen was 4 up at noon, with a total of 71 for the round, against Cruickshank's 75.

It looked for a while as if Bobby intended to make a fight of it in the afternoon, but beginning with the ninth hole he started slipping once more, and the match ended on the thirteenth green.

panion and lead pony for the Derby winner.

Jarvis, who is solidly built and looks the London business man, said that he had a hard time coming over to prevent the passengers from feeding Papyrus to death. The ladies, especially wanted to give him everything from candy and crackers to oranges.

"We spent about half of our time coming over," he said, "teaching the passengers how to pronounce his name. They all would have the accent on the first syllable, 'Pap,' instead of on the second syllable, 'py.'

"It is my plan at Belmont Park to give Papyrus early training. That is, some time after broad daylight, depending, of course, upon the weather. I'm glad to know your time changes Sunday night. Ours already has changed. Papyrus works well and we never have any trouble with him on that score. He is very easily handled. We never train horses by the watch in England, placing no reliance on the watches in preparing a horse for his races. I suppose we will have an army of your clockers on the rail when we go out."

It cost about $6,000 to bring Papyrus across in his luxurious quarters. In other words, the Derby winner was the highest paying passenger on the ship's list.

The Westchester Racing Association made a formal announcement yesterday afternoon regarding the prices to be charged at the international contest. A section containing about 3,000 seats in the western end of the grandstand has been set aside. These seats will be sold for $22 each, including admission and war tax. These special seats will be thoroughly policed and cared for by ushers and holders will be at liberty to go to any part of the grandstand and paddock and be certain of their reservation on their return.

As many seats in the grandstand to the east of this reserved space as the public may select will be sold at $11 each, including war tax. These seats will also be reserved. The rest of the grandstand, if not sold by reservation, will be open to those paying the general admission charge, which will be $5, including war tax. The cost of admission to the infield will be $1.50, including war tax. Seats will be on sale at the office of the Westchester Racing Association at 66 West Fortieth Street and at all agencies.

FOOTBALL TO GET REAL START TODAY

Columbia Meets Ursinus on Baker Field in Its First Game of the Season.

ARMY OPPOSES TENNESSEE

N. Y. U., Penn, Syracuse, Cornell, Dartmouth, Pittsburgh, Penn State and Others Scheduled.

Although a few minor football games have already been played, the gridiron season will really get under way this afternoon when many of the leading teams of the country will compete in their first contests of the year. Few of the major teams are expected to be extended to any considerable degree in today's contests as most of them are scheduled to meet comparatively weak opponents. Nevertheless today's schedule is not devoid of interesting contests.

Chief interest in this city will be centred on Columbia today when the Morningside Collegians clash with Ursinus in their first taste of competition under the guidance of Percy Haughton. The game will be played at Baker Field, Columbia's new football plant, which is capable of seating 15,000 persons.

New York University will inaugurate its gridiron campaign against St. Stephen's at Ohio Field. Of the other colleges in the Metropolitan district Fordham, Stevens and C. C. N. Y. will not play until next Saturday. At that time Fordham will meet Mount St. Mary's at Fordham, Stevens will play St. John's and C. C. N. Y. will clash with Drexel Institute.

Among the most important contests in this section of the country today will be the intersectional game between the Army and the University of Tennessee at West Point. An admission charge of fifty cents will be made except to subscribers to the Army Athletic Association. This will mark the first time in the history of football at the Military Academy that all spectators have not been admitted without charge. The contest with Tennessee will be the first of five intersectional clashes for the Cadets.

None of the Big Three—Yale, Harvard and Princeton—will get into action today. Each of these teams will play its first game next Saturday. On that day Harvard will meet Rhode Island State at Cambridge, Yale will clash with the University of North Carolina at New Haven and Princeton will oppose Johns Hopkins at Princeton.

Despite the inactivity of the Big Three, many of the leading Eastern elevens will play their first contests of the year today. The University of Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, Syracuse, Cornell, Dartmouth, Penn State and Washington and Jefferson are among the major teams which will open their campaigns. Penn will meet Franklin and Marshall. Pittsburgh will play the strong Bucknell eleven. Syracuse will clash with Hobart, Cornell will face St. Bonaventure, Dartmouth will tackle Norwich. Penn State will oppose Lebanon Valley and W. and J. will take the field against Bethany.

In some of the other games of interest in the East Brown will play Haverford at Providence, Amherst will clash with Bowdoin, Lafayette will take on Muhlenberg, Rutgers will meet Penn Military College at New Brunswick, Trinity will oppose the Connecticut Aggies, Union will tackle St. Lawrence, Williams will encounter Hamilton, the Navy will entertain William and Mary and Wesleyan will meet Bates.

GRAND JURY DROPS CROMWELL CHARGES

Adjourns Without Indicting Anybody for Alleged Threats Against Stock Exchange.

MORE WITNESSES HEARD

Presented All the Evidence That Mr. Cromwell Could Furnish, Mr. Pecora Says.

ADHERES TO STATEMENTS

Truth of What He Said Not Affected by Jury's Action, Exchange Head Asserts.

The September Additional Grand Jury yesterday refused to indict after investigating allegations by Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the New York Stock Exchange, that certain members of the Legislature and others had threatened reprisals against the Exchange unless the tickers of bucket shops were restored. The Grand Jury reported to Judge Alfred J. Talley at 1 o'clock and was discharged from further service. The report was made after Mr. Cromwell and several other witnesses had been questioned.

Later, when he returned to his office, Mr. Cromwell issued this statement:

"In an address before the American Bankers Association in Atlantic City on Sept. 24 I made the statements which have been widely published in the press. I made no charge that the acts set forth by me constituted crimes, improper as they were as acts of public officials. I did not suggest or instigate the proceedings before the Grand Jury. The District Attorney issued a subpoena requiring me to appear before that body. I complied and furnished by oral and documentary evidence conclusive proof of my statements, giving the names and all particulars.

"The Assistant District Attorney in charge of the proceedings is quoted in the newspapers as saying that a threat by a legislator to introduce legislation, whatever its nature, is not illegal. Under that view of the law the Grand Jury would not be justified in finding that any crime had been committed. The failure of the Grand Jury to find indictments does not affect in the slightest degree the truth or the force of the statements made by me."

As the Grand Jury was filing out of the court Mr. Pecora said:

"I presented all the proof, including letters and other documents that Mr. Cromwell could bring before the Grand Jury, and produced everything he asked for to help substantiate his charges."

In the evening the prosecutor supplemented this with a statement in which he said:

"I am just informed that Mr. Cromwell calls attention to an alleged statement by me to the effect that 'a threat by a legislator to introduce legislation, whatever its nature, is not illegal.' I never made such an unqualified statement. What I did assert as my opinion was that a threat to introduce legislation was not necessarily illegal. The illegality of such an act would depend entirely upon all the circumstances surrounding the making of the so-called threat."

District Attorney Joab H. Banton said he had no comment to make on the result of the Grand Jury's investigation of Mr. Cromwell's charges.

The witnesses heard by the Grand Jury yesterday in addition to Mr. Cromwell, were Miss Edith Syres, Mr. Cromwell's stenographer; E. D. V. Cox, Secretary of the Stock Exchange, and Ashbel Green, Assistant Secretary of the Exchange.

STILL ON EVERY FLOOR.

Prohibition Raiders Seize Elaborate Plant in House in the Bronx.

Probably the most complete moonshine plant uncovered since Prohibition was discovered by agents under Assistant Divisional Chief Chris Fortman yesterday when they raided a house in the Bronx and found stills on every floor from the basement to the top. There were five stills ranging in capacity from 100 gallons to 150 gallons. There was one big still in the basement and two each on the second and third floors. The hallways were stored with mash or with the finished product, according to the raiders.

The plant was found at 1,670 Southern Boulevard, where the raiders arrested the two alleged owners, Louis Rosenweig, 45 years old, and Harry Lieberman, 42 years old, who live on the second and third floors. They arrested also Philip Finkelstein, 48 years old, of 114 East 111th Street, and Marx Greenstan, 46 years old, of 742 Kelly Street, who said they were employed to watch the stills while they were in operation.

TO FOIL BEARDED THIEVES.

Sacramento Chief Tells of Bogus "Whiskerino" Members From New York.

Deploring the practice of New York confidence men and pickpockets of wearing beards when they arrive in Sacramento, Cal., to attend the annual festivities during the week of Oct. 27 celebrating the discovery of gold there, Chief of Police Bernard McShane has written to Police Commissioner Enright for information that will help in detecting the thieves.

Chief McShane wrote that the residents of Sacramento had formed the "Whiskerino Club," the members of which allow their beards to grow for three months before the celebration in honor of the great pioneers of the State. The New York thieves learned of the "Whiskerino Club," the Chief said, and went to Sacramento with full grown beards, passing for members of the club. This year he wants pointers that will enable him to pick out the crooks. He says that if nothing is done toward the apprehension of these criminals the celebration will have to be called off.

NO FULLER REPORT.

Federal Grand Jury Recesses Without Announcement.

The September Federal Grand Jury took a recess yesterday until Monday without an announcement in regard to the investigation into the failure of the bucketshop firm of E. M. Fuller & Co. The failure to make a report was a surprise to those outside the Federal Building who were aware that yesterday was the last court day of the month.

United States District Attorney Hayward said he had not decided whether or not he would continue the September Grand Jury beyond Monday, when its report will be made.

Child Falls Five Stories to Street.

Two-year-old Joseph Hack of 1,532 Park Avenue is in Fordham Hospital in serious condition as a result of a fall yesterday from the window of his home. The boy climbed on the window ledge while his mother was in another room, toppled through a screen and fell five floors to the street. Patrolman Otto Gruber of the Bronx Park Station, who was passing, rushed him in an automobile to the hospital. The boy's left thigh and skull were fractured.

New England Christmas Trees Put Under Embargo in Jersey

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 28.—An embargo on Christmas trees and greens, not nursery grown, was declared by the State Department of Agriculture, effective Monday, against New England States because of the presence of gipsy moth nests outside of known infested areas.

Director Alva Agee said the embargo was necessary because of the difficulty of making a satisfactory inspection of Christmas trees either at the point of origin or point of destination. The Director pointed to the danger of permitting New England shipments when New Jersey is ridding itself of the gipsy moth, with the aid of the Federal Government.

SHOTS FLY IN CHASE AFTER LIQUOR BOAT

One of Suspect Crew Wounded in Running Pistol Battle Off Shore.

TRAPPED BY A BRIDGE

Coney Island Police, Hearing Fire, Cut Off Fugitives at Lowered Span.

Police and revenue officials in motorboats last night engaged in a pistol battle with four men suspected of being rum runners after a chase of three miles to Coney Island Creek from the direction of the rum fleet off Sandy Hook. One of the fugitives in the forty-foot motorboat Flying Dutchman was shot in the right shoulder in a final volley of shots from policemen under Sergeant Neal Gibbons, who was in charge of a launch of the Harbor Division; revenue agents under Inspector Peter Kilduff, and five policemen, under Sergeant Edward Day of the Coney Island Station, who had joined in the chase.

The wounded man said he was Henry Sera, 27 years old, of 91 Bay Forty-ninth Street, Brooklyn. He was shot in the right shoulder and later was attended at the Coney Island Station by Dr. Wax from the Coney Island Hospital. His fellow passengers in the Flying Dutchman said that they were Antahony Moresco, 26 years old, of 2,773 West Sixteenth Street, Coney Island; Herman Gapp, 28 years old, of 416 Eleventh Street, Brooklyn, and James Santaga, 20 years old, of 87 Varick Street, Brooklyn.

Will Be Arraigned Today.

The four prisoners with the launch load of liquor later were taken to the barge office at the Battery and will be arraigned this morning in the Federal Court on charges of violating the Volstead act.

According to the police, the Flying Dutchman had been under suspicion as a rum runner for some time, but it was not until Sergeant Gibbons in Launch No. 8 discovered the boat cleaving through the water off Sandy Hook shortly after 9 o'clock last night that they were convinced that their suspicions were well founded. Gibbons noticed another motor boat following closely in the wake of the Flying Dutchman and at first decided that it, too, was a rum runner.

Gibbons and the five other policemen in his launch drew their pistols and commanded the four occupants of the Flying Dutchman to stop the motor. The reply was several shots from two men who stood in the bow of the fleeing launch. Then the four policemen opened fire on the Flying Dutchman, and the next instant those on board the second motor boat began to shoot.

Attracts Land Police.

The policemen then recognize the second lunch as a revenue boat, and they alternated with the Government agents in sending volleys after the fugitives. The shooting attracted the attention of Sergeant Day, who with Policeman Dansher, was patrolling Norton's Point at the extreme westerly end of Coney Island. Sergeant Day recognized the police boat and speeded along the edge of Gravesend Bay when he saw the fugitive launch heading for that water.

On the way he picked up Policemen Somerville, Kelly and Clowehesky and as the Flying Dutchman headed into Coney Island Creek, he cut across with his car to the bridge, which he knew was down and would trap the occupants of the suspected rum runner. He said that on the way he noticed that the men in the Flying Dutchman were throwing heavily laden cases overboard.

He placed his policemen at each side of the creek and he stood on the bridge as the Flying Dutchman came plowing toward the structure. About three feet from the bridge the occupants of the Flying Dutchman sent their last fusilade at the pursuing officials, and, after Sergeant Day's men had joined in the reply, beached their launch and surrendered to the policemen on land.

The Government officials said that they would not take an inventory of the contents of the Flying Dutchman until they reached their station at the Battery.

MALT COMPANY INDICTED.

New Orleans Concern Is Accused of Selling Formula for Beer.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 28.—The Government attacked the job of enforcing the prohibition law from a new angle when the Federal Grand Jury here today indicted the New Orleans Malt Extract and Hops Company and four of its officials, charging conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

The charge is based on the sale of hops and malt to a prohibition agent and the giving of a formula by a clerk of the malt company. The carrying out of this formula, dry agents said, resulted in the production of beer containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol.

B. A. Grace, Assistant United States Attorney, said it was the first time such an indictment had been brought since the Volstead law became effective. He declared it a test case and predicted vendors of malt extract throughout the country probably would be arrested as a result of the jury's action. If convictions should result, sale of such materials for the production of "home brew" would be prohibited under the law.

DOCTOR TO TEST DRY LAW.

Will Seek to Enjoin Interference With Whisky Prescriptions.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 28.—Action is to be started in Federal Court here attacking the constitutionality of Section 7, Title 2, National Prohibition act, which provides that no doctor can prescribe more than one pint of whisky in ten days for one person.

Dr. Henry Price of Toledo will ask an injunction restraining all prohibition agents from interfering with his prescription of whisky as a medicine. The suit, which is a civil action, will be filed against J. E. Russell, Federal Prohibition Director of Ohio; David H. Blair, Commissioner of Internal Revenue; A. E. Bernsteen, United States Attorney, of Cleveland, and all others charged with enforcement of the Prohibition law. Federal Judge Killits will hear the suit.

DEALERS TO RATION COAL TO THE PUBLIC

Supplies for Thirty Days Only Will Be Allotted During Next Eight Weeks.

FIX $14.25 AS FAIR PRICE

Representative Named to Co-operate With Women's Committee in Insuring Delivery.

The Department of Public Markets announced yesterday that the Coal Merchants' Association had appointed George J. Elks as their representative to co-operate with the Investigating Committee of the Women's Market Committee in ensuring supplies and stability of prices. It was also announced, after meeting of members of the association with Deputy Commissioner Mrs. Louis Reed Welzmiller, that $14.25 a ton was the price definitely fixed by the large dealers.

J. F. Birmingham, prominent coal operator, and director of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal Company, 120 Broadway, further promised at the request of the Department of Public Markets, to secure an immediate "intensive allocation" for New York which would tide over the coal shortage until, as estimated, abundant supplies have rolled in by Dec. 1.

Birmingham and Elks are to confer with Mrs. Welzmiller today. Mrs. Welzmiller said yesterday that she believed arrangements will be perfected whereby every householder will be immediately furnished with a thirty days' supply, but no more during the next eight weeks.

"Our campaign, which is practically concluded, has been a success," said Mrs. Welzmiller. "When the housewives started out on their inquiry people thought we were nothing but loquacious agitators. But now we have smoked the coal dealers out and they are beginning to talk deliveries."

Explain Reasons for Shortage.

The coal representatives handed the Department of Public Markets yesterday a summary of the coal situation, which they submitted in the interest of a better understanding of their position. They gave five reasons for the shortage and presented a full list of prices at the mines, which, they suggested, would enable the public to realize the difficulties under which they are working to secure a stable price. The shortage reasons were:

1. The strike affected the production of anthracite. Only a portion of the miners resumed work after the settlement. Production today is only 55 per cent. of pre-strike tonnage.

2. Season preference accounts in some degree for short supplies. There are freeze-ups to be thought of in districts where delivery is impossible after the beginning of November. New England is clamoring for her allotment.

3. New England gets her allocations before New York since she has always "hollered longest, loudest and soonest." Preference is given to Western points and the Great Lakes for obvious reasons. The West is today a far greater consumer of anthracite than previously. During the war the West got her first taste of anthracite and she cannot forget it. Long hauls and increased freight charges make Western deliveries very profitable.

4. No coal was held over from 1922. There was therefore greater demand. The consumers were frightened and began clamoring for coal in March, while, at the same time, they asked for double their usual quantity.

5. This year the policy of delivery in turn was adhered to. It was found that the available supply was very soon exhausted on comparatively few customers.

List of Prices at Mines.

The following price list of coal at the mines was submitted:

	Egg.	Stove.	Nut.	Pea.
D., L. & W.	$8.75	$8.75	$8.75	$6.25
Lehigh&Wilkes-Barre	8.75	8.75	8.75	6.25
Lehigh Valley	8.75	8.90	8.90	6.35
W. & P. (Erie)	8.95	8.95	8.95	6.15
Delaware & Hudson	9.00	9.00	9.00	....
P. & R.	9.15	9.15	9.15	6.60
L. C. & N.	9.25	9.25	9.25	6.50
D. & E. (O. & W.)	9.25	9.25	9.25	6.65
Weston Dodson	9.75	9.75	9.75	7.50
Hanna (Sus.)	9.85	9.85	9.85	6.75
Thorn Neale	10.25	10.25	10.25	7.40
Wentz	10.25	10.25	10.25	7.35
Markle	10.45	10.45	10.45	7.50

Buckwheat, 1st Quality.	Buckwheat, 2d Quality.	Buckwheat, 3d Quality.
$3.50	$2.50	$1.50

The first eight of the above are the old producers, and account for 70 per cent. of the total supply. The last five, the Department of Public Markets said, assert that they are bound to charge more on account of increased overhead. In order to arrive at the New York price, $2.40 per ton for freight, 40 cents for lighterage, and $3.50 for gross profit and overhead, a total of $6.30, must be added to these figures.

COOLIDGE FAVORS CARE OF ALL VETERANS

President Would Admit Service and Non-Service Men to Federal Hospitals.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The opening of the Government veterans' hospitals to veterans of all wars, regardless of whether their disabilities are of service or of non-service origin, will be adopted as a permanent policy, in the opinion of President Coolidge.

Such a proposal was presented to the President several days ago by a delegation representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars and has appealed to him as worthy of consideration. The delegation suggested that the Government hospitals be opened to veterans of all wars and for all sorts of disabilities. There are thousands of vacant beds in veterans' hospitals.

Inasmuch as it often is difficult to ascertain whether the disability of a veteran is of service origin, and as the determination of such a point sometimes works an injustice, the President believes that it would be a beneficial policy to open the hospitals. He feels that Congress would approve such a step.

"RUSH" AT COLUMBIA.

Two Freshmen Hurt in Annual Clash With the Sophomores.

Four hundred Columbia University freshmen and sophomores met yesterday morning at 116th Street and Broadway, swinging 800 fists in the first "interclass activity" of the year. Two freshmen casualties were reported before the belligerents were routed by Deans. Brainerd R. Bugher, 18 years old, of 32 Hart Street, Brooklyn, was taken to St. Luke's Hospital with lacerations of the scalp and a slight concussion of the brain. Dr. D. B. Heyler, Livingston Hall, sustained a fractured wrist.

Sophomores waived Thursday for the annual clash with the plebes at the request of the college authorities, Thursday being freshman examinations. The freshmen Thursday night held a secret meeting and plans were made to meet at Riverside Drive and 108th Street yesterday morning and advance on the campus in formation.

The mass formation got as far as the roadway beneath Brooks Hall, where the sophomores, waiting equally massed, drove into the marchers. Three patrolmen at first offered to interfere, but withdrew.

A platoon of the freshmen was trapped in the basement of Hamilton Hall. The first outsider to force an entrance went unrecognized and was bowled over. He was Dean Herbert E. Hawkes. Hostilities were suspended.

Columbia's Youngest Freshman Only 15; Annoyed When Referred to as 'Little Boy'

At the opening of Columbia University yesterday a new prodigy was revealed in Ralph Heymsfeld, 15 years old, 4 feet 9 inches in height and weighing seventy pounds. He lives at 1,477 Washington Avenue, the Bronx. He was graduated last spring from De Witt Clinton High School, with an average of more than 90 per cent.

The youngest freshman in the university, Ralph commented caustically yesterday afternoon on what he called the "schoolish" questions of other students who encountered him, plentifully smeared with shoe blacking, after the class fights, in which he had participated. The blacking was the work of the sophomores, and he endorsed it, as well as the "rough stuff" of the class rushes, but expressed dissatisfaction with the propensity of other students to refer to him as "little boy" and ask him his age. The lad is a student in the School of Law at the university.

URGES CUT IN COST OF HANDLING GRAIN

Federal Trade Commission Recommends Co-operative Marketing by Farmers.

FAVORS LOWER RAIL RATE

Board Gives Coolidge Figures on the Spread Between Producer and Consumer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The cost of handling grain can be, and should be, reduced, the Federal Trade Commission says in a report submitted to President Coolidge, giving results of a study of the spread in prices between the producer and the consumer.

An increase in the co-operative marketing of their own grain by farmers was recommended as one of the means most available for reducing the discrepancy, and a reduction in freight rates and more direct shipments were suggested as desirable.

In 1919-1920, the report said, the spread between producer and consumer of wheat averaged 33.20 cents a bushel, of which 14.31 cents went for transportation charges and 18.89 cents was taken by the middleman. From 1912 to 1917 the spread was 24.71 cents per bushel, 11.08 cents being paid for transportation and 13.63 for the middleman.

For handling corn in 1919-20, the report continued, 13.47 cents a bushel was paid for transportation and 4.33 cents was charged by the middleman, and from 1912 to 1917 the respective payments were 9.24 cents and 7.98 cents a bushel.

Oats showed 9.22 cents a bushel for transportation in 1919-20, and 7.92 cents for the middleman, against 6.57 cents and 7.81 cents from 1912 to 1917.

The country elevator spread, the report said, could be narrowed by wider and more universal development of the patronage dividend or "truly co-operative principle by country elevators." Comparisons of the results of the co-operative, independent and line elevators were favorable to the co-operative type.

Explaining the narrower gross profits per bushel of the co-operative, the report said the margin "lies apparently in the volume of bushels sold."

"The more narrow the gross profit per bushel of the elevator," it said, "whether it be line, independent or co-operative, the higher is the indicated price that the farmer receives for his grain. As the gross profit per bushel of the elevator increases the indicated price received by the farmer decreases."

GOVERNOR IN PENSIVE MOOD

Gazes at Blue Sky as Reporters Shoot Questions at Him.

Governor Smith was almost entirely non-committal when an attempt was made to interview him at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday.

Asked whether there would be an extraordinary session of the Legislature, he gazed abstractedly through the window at the blue sky. He did not care to make reply to a question as to the wisdom of instituting a legislative investigation of members of the Legislature charged by Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the Stock Exchange, with attempted blackmail.

The Governor absolutely declined to discuss the prospective selection of candidates for the Supreme Court by Tammany Hall or Tammany's political foes.

Governor Smith said that beyond his speech at the Town Hall last night and an address to the women—students and faculty—of the "School of Democracy," his plans of participation in the Fall campaign were unsettled. It is assumed, however, that he will make a number of speeches.

Yesterday afternoon the Governor went to the Central Park Zoo with his secretary, George R. Van Namee, and the latter's 12-year-old nephew, Ambrose Kieff. It was the boy's first visit to the great city and Governor Smith said he was anxious to take him around and introduce him to Joey, the Zoo's famous chimpanzee.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN MEET.

Lay Plans for Strenuous Part in the Assembly Campaign.

Before attending the meeting of the State Committee at the Town Hall last night, Democratic women leaders from this city held an all-day session at the Henry Street Settlement, at which campaign plans were discussed.

Mrs. Daniel O'Day, Associate Chairman of the State Committee, presided, and Herbert C. Pell Jr., State Chairman, made a plea for a united fight against the Republican Assembly candidates. This plea was supplemented by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Vice Chairman of the women's division of the State Committee, who said that if the women acted in concert they could give Governor Smith the means with which to make good the party pledges in last year's platform.

Mrs. Henry Moskowitz challenged statements by the Republican Women's Executive Committee in a recent pamphlet that a Democratic Assembly would mean $25,000,000 in bus contracts, $1,000,000,000 in subway contracts and $1,500,000,000 in water-power contracts for Tammany Hall. Mrs. Moskowitz challenged the Republican women to debate the statements, and declared that failure to accept her challenge would be evidence that the statements not only were untrue but made in bad faith.

Other speakers were Register Annie Matthews, Miss Elisabeth Marbury and Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, Vice Chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

PROGRESSIVES TO RALLY.

Labor Groups Also Will Join in Third Party Meeting Tonight.

Progressive and labor groups interested in a third party movement in the East will open their campaign tonight at a meeting at Carnegie Hall at which Senator Magnus Johnson will tell how the farmers of Minnesota worsted both the old party machines and sent two independent Senators to Washington.

Norman Hapgood will preside and the Vice Chairmen will include Rev. John Haynes Holmes, Morris Sigman, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union; J. A. H. Hopkins of the Committee of Forty-Eight; Jerome F. De Hunt, Chairman American Labor Party; Freda Kirchwey, R. M. Lovett, Norman Thomas, B. C. Vladeck, Morris Hillquit, William P. Kehoe, Secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Council, and Max Pine, Secretary of the United Hebrew Trades.

OPPOSE TRUNK LINE CONTROL OF ROADS

New England Men Declare Proposed Merger Plan Would Hurt Business.

ASK FOR HOME MANAGEMENT

Commerce Commission Told That New Haven and Boston & Maine Systems Can Be Saved.

BOSTON, Sept. 28.—Opposition to trunk line consolidation for New England railroads came from Percy R. Todd, President of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad; the Boston Chamber of Commerce, whose membership is 7,000, and the New England Paper and Pulp Association, at today's session of the Interstate Commerce Commission's hearings here.

C. L. Whittemore, spokesman for the paper and pulp association, which, he said, includes thirty of the largest mills in New England, declared that the New York Central, if given control over the Boston & Maine, the Maine Central and the Bangor & Aroostook, would impose severe restrictions on shippers and manufacturers.

"The New York Central would control the entire paper and pulp business of Maine," Mr. Whittemore said. "It could make the Canadian differential routes so uncomfortable that shippers would be glad to route by all-New York Central lines. New England management of New England's roads is the only hope in our situation of inadequate traffic service."

The Boston Chamber of Commerce members voted 1,477 to 420 for the New England plan, its President, Howard Coonley, reported. He declared this was the heaviest referendum vote but one in the organization's history, and that it "accurately reflected the wishes of the community."

"New England public opinion favors a New England-owned railway system," the resolution of the Chamber read in part. "The Storrow plan (so named for James J. Storrow, head of the Joint New England Committee), is reasonable and effective. The Canadian differentials are most important to this section, especially in times of freight congestion. Trunk control will destroy them, and will close many of the gateways now open to New England shippers."

President Todd of the Bangor and Aroostook said that a trunk line controlling New England roads would set itself to destroying the Northern differential freight route facilities, East and West bound, and prophesied that with such an arrangement New England would in five or six years find herself dependent upon a single gateway to the West.

He equally condemned the so-called McDonald plan for a merger of the Maine Central, and the Bangor and Aroostook with the New York Central, linked together by a division of the Boston and Maine.

YOKOHAMA, THE DEAD, BEGINS TO LIVE AGAIN

Trains Come in From Tokio to a Mass of Twisted Masonry Serving as a Station.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

YOKOHAMA, via Osaka, Sept. 27.—Trains now are running from Tokio to Yokohama, but a traveler alights in the latter city at a shell of a station, where a mere mass of old junk, masonry and iron intermixed. A few railway officials superintend the arrival of trains at the charred platform.

From most of the main streets the débris now has been cleared away, but a visitor has the utmost difficulty in tracing any site he may desire to visit, because in so many sections of the city vast heaps of masonry have wholly obliterated the streets, hence the turnings and subsidiary thoroughfares are undiscoverable.

It is easy to find the remains of hotels like the Grand and the Oriental. These collapsed at the first shock, killing many foreigners. The bluff also is recognizable on account of the high ground, which has always been a landmark. A few buildings stand there; others have slid into the valley below.

Tramcars, in which the roasted bodies of passengers remained for days, have been cleared away, and exposed corpses generally have been removed, but the labor of digging out bodies from the wreckage continues. This task is a nightmare for the spectator, owing to the difficulty of handling it and the complete impossibility of showing any sign of reverence for the dead. Bodies are dragged together with instruments like butchers' hooks. They are carried in rough litters to charnel houses and there cremated with the aid of oil, in heaps.

Of accommodation ashore there is almost none. Near the site of the Grand Hotel an American military hospital has been set up, with 700 beds and every possible kind of equipment. Not far away a specie bank marks the spot where 700 persons died in flames. Nearer the sea are graves of the foreign dead comparable with those of Flanders.

The last hope of finding lost relatives has been well-nigh abandoned by the living, though sometimes distracted devotion goes to the length of formally burying a discovered bone or limb in the hope that it may be that of the vanished beloved.

Lurid stories that appeared in various newspapers of wholesale suicides should be contradicted. There were cases of various excesses, but on the whole the spirit and conduct of the Japanese in the face of the unparalleled disaster were superb.

Relief work is proceeding in a most orderly way. Foreign Orientals, who are among the greatest sufferers, owe much to American assistance.

STRAW VOTE BY MACHINE.

Mrs. Catt Leads Women and Coolidge the Men for President.

Women are voting for President ahead of time at the Women's Activities Exhibit at the Hotel Commodore, where they are trying out a voting machine. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt leads the women with 8 votes, Jane Addams having 4.

For the men the machine records Coolidge, 148; Hughes, 28; Hoover, 20; Ford, 6; Bryan and Pinchot each 1. Mrs. Catt voted for Pinchot, writing on her ballot, "A dry man for peace."

HIGH COURT ORDERS VOTE IN OKLAHOMA

Will Act Today on Including in Referendum Legislature's Right to Convene Itself.

PAYNE COUNTY GETS TROOPS

But Governor Walton Promises to Ease Martial Law by Tuesday, When State Ballots.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—The State Supreme Court late today denied a motion by George F. Short, Attorney General, for a rehearing of a case involving the legality of a State-wide balloting set for next Tuesday and ordered the election held. The balloting had been declared valid by the Supreme Court late yesterday.

The fate of five constitutional amendments, including an initiated bill to legalize special sessions of the Legislature on call of a majority of members and without the Governor's call, is bound up in the proposed election. This question is still in litigation.

All that now remains to prevent a vote on the initiated bill allowing the Legislature to convene itself is action by the court on an application by Governor J. C. Walton for rehearing on his appeal from the decision of Secretary of State Sneed, who held the petition initiating the measure was legal. The Governor alleged the petition did not bear sufficient signatures.

The Court indicated Governor Walton's application would be taken up in conference tomorrow.

W. C. McAlester, Secretary of the Election Board, had said that time would not permit the holding of the balloting unless the board was given definite instructions by the court before tomorrow night.

Late today Campbell Russell, instigator of the petition involving the Legislature, filed with the Supreme Court a petition for a writ of mandamus to compel Mr. McAlester to place the question on the ballot, and the court went into immediate conference.

Russell, who was arrested Wednesday while distributing circulars attacking the Governor, was acquitted in City Court today.

Orders Troops to Another County.

The area of stringent martial law in Oklahoma was widened tonight when Governor J. C. Walton ordered National Guard troops to Payne County in response to an appeal from District Judge C. S. Smith of Cushing. The Judge declared that no justice can be obtained in the county through the County Justice, the Governor said.

Coincident with his order, the Governor intimated that martial law throughout the State will be modified within the next few days.

"Military rule may be eased up after Tuesday," he declared.

Within the past twenty-four hours the Governor, upon the appeal of more than a score of residents of Sulphur, has extended rigid martial law to Murray County, where neglect of prosecution for mob outrages is charged.

Belief that the martial-law régime in Oklahoma is to be lifted or modified soon grew today when it became known that orders had been issued to Colonel W. S. Key, Military Commander of Oklahoma County, and Colonel J. B. Sledge, attached to the local military headquarters, relieving them from duty. No assignment had been made for successors, it was understood.

Adjt. Gen. Markham was relieved from duty late today and granted a ten-day leave on orders issued by Governor Walton. The orders set out that the Adjutant General's physician had instructed him to rest.

Brig. Gen. Charles E. McPherren of Durant, was named acting adjutant general.

An alleged account of how the Rev. Thomas J. Irwin of Lawton, former pastor of a church there, who was removed by his congregation because he had performed a wedding ceremony in a bathing pool with the principals attired in bathing suits, had been persecuted by a masked mob which on two occasions beat him almost to death, was revealed here today by Governor J. C. Walton.

One Battery Demobilized.

ENID, Okla., Sept. 28.—Battery A, local detachment of the Oklahoma National Guard, arrived in Enid at 6 o'clock this morning from Oklahoma City, where the unit has been on duty since the entire State was placed under martial law by Governor Walton. The battery has been demobilized and officers and men who live outside of Enid have started for their homes.

SULPHUR, Okla., Sept. 28.—Sheriff C. H. Parks denies the charges of some of his fellow-townsmen, which led to the order yesterday of Governor Walton despatching military forces to Murray County.

"The whole matter is a frame-up," the Sheriff declared. "There has been a gang stirring up things here for the last thirty days. My deputies and I have done everything humanly possible to run down floggers and other law-violators. Only recently an investigation launched by the County Attorney and myself lasted a week, during which more than 100 witnesses were examined."

Threatening letters referred to by those who appealed to Governor Walton were characterised by Sheriff Parks as "bootleggers' threats written to themselves."

SHAWNEE, Okla., Sept. 28 (Associated Press).—Homer McKown, Grand Cyclops of the Ku Klux Klan at Maude, Okla., and W. W. Pearce, a member of the Maude Klan, were released from custody here today after a brief hearing in Superior Court, at which they agreed to answer questions put to them by a military court at Maude.

McKown and Pearce were arrested late yesterday after refusing to testify before a military court of inquiry in connection with the flogging of a school teacher at Maude in 1921. They had been implicated in the whipping by witnesses previously interrogated. They were denied bail and spent the night in the county jail at Tecumseh.

ASKS FOR NEW COAL ROAD.

Indiana Line Seeks to Build Into Pike County Field.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Another proposal to build a new railroad into coal fields was filed today with the Interstate Commerce Commission, which in the case of the Virginian Railway in West Virginia refused to allow such an extension on the ground that there already are enough coal mines in the United States.

The Evansville, Indianapolis & Terre Haute Railroad, which filed today's application, desires to build six miles of new line from Oakland City, Ind., into Pike County. The petition said the line would serve a large area underlaid with high grade coal which could be mined cheaply by stripping off surface soil with steam shovels.

The commission's refusal in the case of the Virginian is up for a reconsideration on petition of the railroad concerned.

Sixty Days for Thieving Solicitor.

A sentence of sixty days in the workhouse was imposed yesterday on Harold J. Keough, 24 years old, who told Justices Murphy, Voorhees and O'Keefe in Special Sessions that he was a student at the New York Law School and lived at 117 Bancey Street, Springfield, Mass. Keough, who was arraigned on the complaint of the Allied Business Men's Protective Association of 291 Broadway, pleaded guilty to the theft of $30 which he had obtained from merchants for advertisements in the publication Police-Judicial Manual and Guide, while employed as a solicitor for the association.

Handcuffed to His Bride To Prevent a Mock Kidnapping

Earle B. Latham Jr. of 375 Riverside Drive, when dressing for his marriage to Miss Elizabeth Janet Burke of Palisades Park on Wednesday night, remembered the threats of his friends to kidnap the bride as a humorous innovation immediately after the ceremony, and slipped a pair of handcuffs into one of his pockets. As the ceremony came to an end at the Hotel Marseilles, Latham quickly placed the handcuffs upon himself and his wife and turned triumphantly to the large bridal party. His acquaintances accompanied the newly wed pair to the ship which was to take them to Bermuda and gave them a merry send-off.

KLANSMEN AROUSED BY DICKSON MURDER

Meeting Held to Discuss Apparent Slowness in Solving the Jersey Mystery.

SLAIN, EXHUMATION SHOWS

Prosecutor Now Convinced That School Girl Was Not Killed by an Auto.

Special to The New York Times.

MILLVILLE, N. J., Sept. 28.—While the body of Emma Dickson, 15-year-old high school girl, found murdered last Saturday on the Port Elizabeth Road, was being exhumed today, the Ku Klux Klan took steps to hasten prosecution of the girl's suppose slayer.

Three hundred and fifty Klansmen representing all conclaves in southern New Jersey met secretly tonight in Klan Hall at Port Norris, it was learned. Such members of the order as could be stopped as they hurried into the hall insisted the meeting was only to discuss "klan business." It was learned from a reliable source, however, that this "business" had to do almost exclusively with the handling of the Emma Dickson case by the Cumberland County authorities.

Millville is a Klan stronghold, it appears, and Klan feeling is understood to be rising because of the number of days the slaying of Thompson Dickson's daughter has continued a mystery. A bloodstained towel was found spread across his bedroom window by the father when he awoke yesterday morning. The Klan was generally dismissed as being officially responsible for placing it there, but the incident was taken as showing the undercurrent of dissatisfaction.

A second autopsy, performed by Coroner's physician Wainwright today, established beyond a doubt the fact that the girl was murdered and not run down by a passing automobile.

At the close of the autopsy Dr. Wainwright issued the following statement:

"An examination of the body of Emma Dickson has established the fact that she died of a fractured skull, caused probably by blows from a hard, round object. The skull cap was crushed, the skull bones remaining in the cranial cavity, indicating that they had been driven in by repeated blows."

Dr. Wainwright added that the girl's right arm had not been broken, as was previously reported, but that the right wrist was dislocated. A further examination will be made to determine whether the girl was assaulted.

With Coroner Kenneth Carll and Dr. Wainwright at the autopsy were Dr. Millard F. Sewall of Bridgeton and Dr. D. K. Webster and Dr. Charles S. Butcher of Port Elizabeth. Three members of the Coroner's jury, Foreman S. Davis Wilson, Arthur Chambers and Joseph E. Smiley, also attended.

Prosecutor Roscoe C. Ward of Cumberland County, who has held the theory that the girl was killed by an automobile, announced after the autopsy that he was thoroughly convinced now that the girl was murdered.

Asked if the police were working on any definite clues, the prosecutor admitted that they were. He added that he was convinced that Thompson Dickson had nothing to do with his daughter's death.

Dickson was questioned this morning by county police from midnight until nearly 3 o'clock and again this afternoon for about two hours. After the final grilling, Dickson declined to talk to newspapermen.

"I don't want to be discourteous," he said, "but there is nothing new to tell and this perpetual rehash is useless."

Mrs. Joseph E. Henderson and a Mrs. Gillen, neighbors of the Dicksons, today denied stories that the dead girl's moral conduct had been questionable.

The Progressive League of Port Elizabeth, which appointed a committee last night to offer a reward for the arrest of the slayer and to appeal, if necessary, to Governor Silzer for action, will meet again tonight.

The Coroner's jury will resume its inquest next Friday morning.

KLEAGLE TALKS IN DARK.

Klansmen Listen in Toms River Opera House.

Special to The New York Times.

TOMS RIVER, N. J., Sept. 28.—Five hundred members of the Ku Klux Klan filed into the Horner Street Opera House this evening and conducted a two-hour meeting in darkness. No initiation was held, it was understood, the feature of the gathering being a lecture by a State Kleagle.

Friends of members were admitted after being vouched for at the door. Outposts were stationed in the vicinity, but there was no interference. Members of the women's auxiliary of the Klan met here Wednesday.

PARK'S NEW BAND STAND.

Elkan Naumburg, Who Gave It, to Be Honored at Special Concert Today.

A testimonial concert in honor of Elkan Naumburg, who gave to music lovers of New York the new band stand on the Mall of Central Park, will be given on the Mall band stand this afternoon at 3 o'clock by Franz Kaltenborn's Orchestra of sixty pieces, with Miss Katheryn Lynbrook, soprano soloist, when the new band stand will be dedicated to the City's use.

Invitations have been sent out by Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert to representative citizens to join in honoring Mr. Naumburg for his gift. In case of rain, the presentation of a flag to Mr. Naumburg in connection with the acceptance of the structure by Park Commissioner Frank D. Gallatin will be made in the Mayor's Reception Room at City Hall next Tuesday at noon.

Leather Merchants Aid Jewish Fund

At a luncheon of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday leather merchants of the city pledged $20,000 toward meeting the $400,000 deficit in the current $3,500,000 budget of the organization. Percy S. Straus presided. On the committee superintending the leather merchants' drive are A. Galewski, Max Morrison, Jacob Schener, Morris White and Leon Osterweil.

$2,000,000 FAILURE ON STOCK EXCHANGE

Receiver Named for Robert P. Marshall & Co., Specialists in Jones Tea.

HURT BY NINE-POINT DROP

Decline From 44 to 35 on Thursday Laid to Liquidation of Loans.

DIFFERENCE AS TO ASSETS

Petition Puts Them at $1,840,000 Net, While Firm's Attorney Says $2,500,000.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed in the Federal District Court yesterday morning against the New York Stock Exchange firm of Robert P. Marshall & Co., with offices at 71 Broadway. The liabilities are estimated at $2,000,000. The petition puts the net assets at $1,640,000, but counsel for the firm say that they will exceed obligations by about $500,000 and that all claims would be paid in full.

The announcement of the failure, made from the rostrum of the Stock Exchange soon after the opening of business yesterday, was supplemented by the following Stock Exchange statement:

"No clearing sheet was received from Robert P. Marshall & Co. last night. Therefore no security balance orders were delivered by night clearing branch. Yesterday's transactions with said firm should be closed out by original contracting parties."

According to general report, the firm was in a pool which had been operating in Jones Bros. Tea Company common stock, which broke on Thursday from 44 to 35. It was said that one of the banks called a Marshall loan, necessitating the liquidation of the collateral, in which there was much Jones Tea stock. When questioned on the firm's operations in Jones Tea, Robert P. Marshall said:

"We sold no Jones Tea Thursday and we have no intimation as to whether the selling that occurred was concentrated or scattered. Our failure has no connection in any way with Jones Tea. Thursday our margin calls were general and not confined to any one security."

Small Response to Margin Calls.

Albert Jaeckel of Chadbourne, Hunt, Jaeckel & Brown, attorneys for the brokers, said that customers failed to respond to calls for margin in the recent declining market. The firm was organized July 18, 1919, with Robert P. Marshall, Clinton Graham, Francis B. Mallaby and William R. Simonds, the floor member, as partners.

Federal Judge Hough appointed James R. Sheffield receiver, under a bond of $25,000. Mr. Sheffield at once engaged Haskins & Sells, accountants, to examine the books and make a report on the firm's condition.

The petition in bankruptcy estimates the liabilities at $2,000,000. It also says that "the assets at the present market value are about $2,340,000. Of these the sum of about $700,000 is in the form of securities of a purely nominal market value at the present time, making the total of assets that may be realized upon $1,640,000." The petition also alleges that it is believed that this portion of the assets have been pledged with banking institutions as collateral. The petitioning creditors are Irving T. Sherman, an employe, with a salary claim of $60, of which he waives priority, and a trading balance of $113; William W. Drinker, credit balance $117, and Nathaniel D. Lancaster, with a claim of $9,403. The petition was filed by Kohlman & Austrian, 27 Cedar Street, as attorneys for the petitioners.

Charles E. Merrill of Merrill, Lynch & Co., a director of the Jones Bros. Tea Company, said:

"The Jones Bros. Tea Company has been a valued customer of ours for many years past. We handle their commercial paper. From the banker's point of view, the failure of a house which is understood to have been heavily interested in the stock has no reflection one way or the other on the strong financial position and high credit standing of the Jones Bros. Tea Company.

"We have not been a member of a pool in Jones Bros. Tea stock, or in any other stock, for many years past. It is against our policy to participate in such pools. Neither for the company nor for our own account have we bought or sold any of this stock during the past six months. Our position in the matter is solely that of a commercial paper banker interested in upholding the high credit of a long-established and financially strong company."

FASCISTI ORDER A STRIKE.

Italian Engravers Walk Out When Backed by Political Society.

ROME, Sept. 28.—A novel development of the Fascist movement came today with the ordering of a strike by the Fascisti, who came into power with the intention of abolishing strikes. The Secretary of the Confederation of Fascist Corporations ordered the Fascist engravers out on strike to obtain from their employers acceptance of the workers' demands for three days' pay for every year's service for any worker who was dismissed; also a vacation of fifteen days on full pay each year. Obeying these orders, all of the Fascist engravers abstained from work today.

The strike appeared to create a good impression among workingmen who had accused Fascismo of being reactionary toward labor, and today's action was pointed to in Fascist quarters as showing that the Fascisti were ready to back the workers against the capitalists when the demands of the workmen were just.

FLOODS IN WESTERN TOWNS

Sheridan, Wyo., Is Inundated and Wichita, Kan., Warned.

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Sept. 28.—Swollen by terrific rains, the waters of Big Goose and Little Goose Creeks left their banks early this morning and dashed over wide sections of Sheridan.

Scores of residents in the river bottom sections began packing their belongings preparatory to moving to places of safety. The water is from one to three feet deep in various sections of town.

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 28.—Wichita today faces another flood. In a warning issued shortly after midnight, S. P. Peterson, Federal meteorologist, declared low sections of the city would be inundated.

Peterson said Chisholm Creek and the Drainage Canal would flood the stock yards district and the Little Arkansas River would go out of its banks in North Wichita. The warning added that there was little danger at present from the Big Arkansas River.

Men's Wear Trade Inactive.

Little improvement in the demand for men's wear fabrics for Spring is noted here. Selling agents have become reconciled to the situation, and some of them look for no real change for the better until the heavyweight openings. Many mills are on part time now, and in some instances just enough is being done to keep the machinery active. This leads to the belief by some agents that there may be shortage of Spring goods later on. Against this, however, are the heavy carry-over of lightweight suits by retailers and manufacturers, and the stocks of piece goods held by the jobbers and the mills that will have to be liquidated. "Insistence on getting goods" at a price" is the main feature of the small trading being done.

Ribbon Prices Higher.

Ribbon prices have advanced about 10 per cent. here, in keeping with higher raw silk quotations. The recent spurt in buying has quieted down. Much Fall buying remains to be done, but its extent may be influenced by the way the market is affected by the raw silk situation. Narrow ribbons, such as satins, failles, moires and taffetas, have been in most demand. Tinsels are beginning to move more freely. Wide numbers up to eighty lignes are receiving more attention, but wholesalers think it will be Spring before the call for them gets actively under way.

Hard Coal Production Slow.

Anthracite production has been slow in getting back to normal, Saward's Journal will say today, as some of the men were dissatisfied, not with the terms of the agreement, but from the fact that it was arrived at too soon. They had been figuring on a month's vacation at least, and did not seize the opportunity to return to work in less than three weeks. The stragglers have been drifting back this week, however, so that beginning Oct. 1 the output will be practically as heavy as before the suspension. Lack of demand is the reason commonly advanced for the price weakness in soft coal.

Gray Goods Market Dull.

Pending the Federal cotton crop report that is due on Tuesday morning, business is dragging badly in the local gray goods market. In the printcloths some business was transacted yesterday at 12⅝ cent for 39-inch 72-76s and 14 cents for 39-inch 80 squares. First hands shaded prices on 39-inch 68-72s to 11¾ cents, but second hands appeared willing to cut that figure at least an eighth. The same was true of 38½-inch 60-48s, for which first hands asked 9 cents. Prices varied considerably on 38½-inch 64-60s, with 9⅞ cents quite generally accepted as the market. In the sheetings sales of 37-inch 48-square, four-yard goods were put through at 11⅝ cents, with trading done in 36-inch 5.50s at 9⅛ cents.

Urges Government Silk Aid.

In a cable sent yesterday to the Minister of Agriculture, Commerce and Foreign Affairs at Tokio, the Silk Association of America urged that the Japanese Government aid in the reestablishment of the silk industry. The association said it regretted to receive reports that delay is being caused by conflict of Japanese local interests. The latter reference is taken here to mean the rivalry between Kobe and Yokohama as to which shall be the principal port of raw silk export. Kansai reelers held a meeting on Thursday and decided to make Kobe a temporary export market, but reports in the local market indicate that strenuous objection is taken to this by those who want Yokohama to regain its former position.

American Opossum the Star.

American opossum was easily the star of the fur sale yesterday. Not only did it bring out the most active bidding of the sale to date, but it showed a larger advance over Spring than any of the other furs sold. The collection of this fur while large was good, and it sold freely to dealers specializing in trimmings for the coat and suit trade. It was also bought to some extent for "choker" purposes. The collections of gray fox and otter, which were scheduled for sale yesterday, were put over to Monday, but despite this sales for the first five days reached about $2,400,000. Russian ermine, sundry fox and kolinsky showed no change from Spring levels. Fitch and mole declined 10 and 15 per cent., respectively. American opossum advanced 20 per cent., with Canadian ermine and Australian fox each 15 per cent. higher.

SHORTAGE IS MADE GOOD.

No Criminal Action Planned Against New Rochelle Court Clerk.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Judge Samuel F. Swinburne of the New Rochelle City Court declared today that Robert P. Bordingham, Clerk of the Court, was responsible only to a limited extent for the shortage of funds in his office. Auditors who have investigated Bordingham's accounts say he is approximately $2,700 short. Judge Swinburne said that while Bordingham's accounts are not correct, nevertheless, he is being held responsible for discrepancies for which he cannot be blamed.

Bordingham, who is seriously ill at the Grassland Sanitarium, White Plains, will not be prosecuted for the alleged discrepancies. No criminal proceedings will be instituted, Judge Swinburne said, as Bordingham's family has arranged to make restitution.

Shortly after it had been learned that Bordingham's accounts were short, Judge Swinburne directed him to resign, which he refused to do. Subsequently he was suspended and in a few days proceedings will be instituted to remove him as Court Clerk.

Russian Film Barred in Providence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 28.—The Board of Police Commissioners here today denied the Rhode Island Russian Relief Committee a license to show the film "The Fifth Year." They said it was not clear that the funds from the show would be devoted to the relief of "the starving children of Russia" as advertised and not to the dissemination of Communist propaganda. This action was taken after the picture had been shown for the benefit of members of the Police Department.

BRAHMS SONATA GIVEN AT FESTIVAL

Lionel Tertis, Viola, and Myra Hess, Piano, Play With Exquisite Artistic Beauty.

B. J. DALE'S SEXTET HEARD

Its Music Is Full of Dramatic Effects—Mabel Garrison and Werrenrath Sing Duets.

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 28.—The viola and the English musicians, both composers and executants, were much to the fore in the session of today's festival. The viola has had in the past a good deal of favor at Pittsfield but never so much at once as today. If any feared that the instrument from its tone and nature would cast impenetrable gloom over the proceedings, their fears were at least partly falsified and for several good reasons. One was the remarkable art of Lionel Tertis and Miss Myra Hess who collaborated in Brahms's sonata of 120 No. 1.

It is for clarinet and piano, but Brahms himself sponsored a version for viola. Something important is unquestionably lost by the substitution, but when the playing is of such exquisite artistic beauty as it was today much can be forgiven. Mr. Tertis is an artist whose powers in this performance at once justified his great reputation. Of the delicacy and power of Miss Hess's playing of the piano, there is no need to enlarge now. She made the piano part of the sonata speak on an equality with the viola.

The English compositions were B. J. Dale's sextet for violas and Arnold Bax's sonata for piano and viola. Mr. Dale, very few of whose compositions have been held in this country, made a curious experiment in his sextet, the permanent value of which is not quite evident. The music is full of dramatic effects of vehement and rather restless gusts of passion. Of much greater value and originality is Bax's sonata. Work of extraordinary difficulty overcome by Mr. Tertis and Miss Hess with extraordinary success, for they gave an interpretation of its instinct with emotion and imaginative power that met the imaginative quality of the music at every time.

The first movement is enwrapped in an atmosphere of mystical suggestion and it has in a notable degree the Celtic feeling that has impregnated some of Bax's orchestral works that have been heard here. The pentatonic scale is considerably used here and in the next movement that has the suggestion of a wild Irish dance of insistent and impetuous rhythm. Like that of Dale's piece, it was the first performance in America. It is a work whose value should bring it renewed hearing.

The afternoon was devoted to vocal chamber music. Mabel Garrison and Reinald Werrenrath sang three duets by Cornelius; Mme. Elena Gerhardt presented Schumann's cycle "Frauenliebe und Leben." George Meader sang three songs by Schubert and the four singers joined in a performance of Brahm's "New Songs of Love" with piano accompaniment for four hands by Mr. Bos and Mrs. Coolidge. The program, arranged by Kurt Schindler, who also played some of the accompaniments, afforded variety and gave evident pleasure.

TO DISCUSS NICARAGUA LOAN

Minister Sailing Home to Confer on $9,000,000 Rail Project.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—A loan of $9,000,000 which Nicaragua desires to make for the construction of a railroad to the Atlantic Coast and for road improvements, will be one of the principal subjects of discussion between the Minister of Nicaragua here, General Emiliano Chamorro, who is returning to his country Friday, and officials of his Government.

The Minister who expects to be gone four or five months called at the White House today to say good-bye to President Coolidge.

General Chamorro will discuss the loan further with American bankers in New York next week before sailing. There is no railroad in the eastern part of the country, and the construction of one would put Nicaragua in much closer touch commercially with New York and other Atlantic ports. The road would run from Granada to Bluefields.

CHINESE BABY IN BELLEVUE.

Chin Wah Goon Is First of His Race to Be Born Here.

Len Shie Goon, the wife of Chin Wah Goon, gave birth yesterday to a son, the first Chinese baby ever born in Bellevue Hospital. The parents have been in this country several years and live at 238 West Forty-ninth Street.

Chin Wah Goon is a chef in a restaurant at Broadway and Forty-ninth Street, but Chin Wah Jr. will not be permitted to eat chop suey, foo yung, or chow mein for some time to come.

OPERATIC STARS ARRIVE.

Mmes. Onegin and Mme. Cahier Among Those on the Resolute.

Several operatic and musical stars arrived yesterday from Europe on the United American liner Resolute for the coming season. Among them were Mme. Sigrid Onegin, the Swedish contralto, who goes on tour to give fourteen concerts and returns to join the Metropolitan Opera Company. Mme. Charles Cahier, contralto of the Vienna State Opera Company, who was accompanied by her step-daughter, Miss Dagmar Cahier, is on her way to Hollywood to play in a film.

Frederick A. Stock, leader of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, was also on board, and said he had arranged for the production in Chicago of Otto Respighi's "Dramatic Symphony" and new pieces by Arnold Bax.

Artur Bodanzky, one of the conductors of the Metropolitan Opera Company, also arrived on the Resolute after spending five months in Italy, and said that he would present Pfitzner's "Romantic Cantata" among other musical novelties this coming season.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Movement of Stocks Extremely Irregular—Slight Recovery in Foreign Exchange.

Under ordinary circumstances, the news which would have been selected yesterday as likely to influence the markets would have been the large increase shown in net railway earnings for August and the apparent failure of the internal revolt in Germany to materialize. The comparison made by many of the railways, whether with 1922 or 1921, is remarkable. It is true that railway revenues were cramped in that month a year ago by the strikes, which naturally affects the comparison; but the increase shown for last month is much greater than the losses incurred a year ago from impeded traffic. In any case, the present returns have very definite bearing on the annual balance sheets; which, it is to be remembered, still have the earnings of the heavy Autumn trade to reckon on.

But the stock market took no account of this; on the contrary, railway shares as a group were weak. This did not, however, determine the movement of the general market, which was entirely confused; with at least as many advances as declines for the day. There was, in fact, no coherent movement at any time and no definite trend to prices. Such uncertain drift, almost wholly under the influence of the whim of groups of professional operators, has naturally caused wonderment whether the financial community is merely at sea as to what the course of finance and industry is to be, or whether the influences at work in one direction or the other are so evenly balanced that the market, even as an indicator, stands pretty much in equilibrium.

Failure of the predicted Bavarian coup d'état to materialize overnight had some effect in strengthening European exchange, but the changes were very slight and the best rates of the day were not maintained. The mere fact of a halt in the movement of recovery has probably increased that market's disposition to consider the numerous complexities which will surround the question of a reparation settlement, even with negotiations satisfactorily under way. The first light on the question will come with the French Government's response to a formal and direct application of the German Government for terms. The next will be the actual steps taken in the matter of German currency reform.

Statements of weekly increase in Germany's paper currency are so rapidly taking the character of a post-mortem that they have already lost most of their economic meaning. The only interest of yesterday's report is in connection with the public admissions of Chancellor Stresemann and President Ebert, regarding the effect on the public deficit of financing passive resistance in the Ruhr. Until August the largest weekly increase in the Reichsbank's discounts (nearly all for Government account) was two trillion marks, a fairly substantial addition to the nominal floating debt. In the second week of September, covered by yesterday's report, discounts expanded not quite two and a quarter quadrillions.

Responding to these governmental requisitions the paper money circulation, which exceeded one quadrillion marks the week before, rose above three quadrillions. Such computations have lost all meaning. Even the exchange market is no longer able to give them measurement. The only redeeming fact in this deplorable business is that a German Government has at last admitted that the currency is worthless, that the fault is the Government's, and that Germany can expect no help from the outside world until it has shown that it can grapple with its own problem of currency reform.

ROADS CARRY OUT PROGRAM FOR 1923

Adequate Transportation Provided and the Public Satisfied, Executives Assert.

The railroads of the United States have made good their promise to provide adequate transportation for 1923, according to reports made to the Board of Directors of the American Railway Association yesterday at their first meeting since June. Twenty railroad executives from all parts of the country were present for the consideration of traffic conditions throughout the United States.

"The reports from the country, as a whole," said the statement issued by the Board of Directors following the meeting, "indicates that the program is being carried out to the entire satisfaction of the public.

"The program whereby the locomotives awaiting repairs was to be reduced to 15 per cent. by Oct. 1, has been more than fully met. It is now below that figure, having reached 14.7 per cent. on Sept. 1, thirty days ahead of the time set.

"One of the great problems every Fall has been the movement of coal via the lakes to the northwest. The largest number of tons of coal has been dumped from Jan. 1 up to date of any year of record, insuring the full program for lake coal movement being met without any difficulty.

"The car distribution has taken place in accord with the program, and there is generally an adequate car supply in all parts of the country, and particularly in the agricultural sections of the West, where there are still a number of box cars stored awaiting grain movement. It developed there were some slight shortages in a few places, but not of any moment."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Stocks Sell Off at Close.

Following a dull and uninteresting stock market during the greater part of the five hours' trading yesterday the market again encountered some heavy selling in the closing hour, which carried some stocks down from one to as much as four points, with a few new low records reached in their prices for the year to date. At the opening changes in prices were as a rule irregular, with changes about evenly divided between gains and losses. Before noon a rally developed which carried many issues substantially above Thursday's closing level. This rally, however, was of short duration. Weakness soon developed in speculative issues of the type of American Woolen, Studebaker and Continental Can, all of which were affected by circulation of rumors of falling off in business and reduction of working schedules. Despite the reports that pools were understood to be operating in these shares, the selling was too much for the professionals to absorb, and prices appeared to just melt away in the last hour.

Short Interest Large in Some Stocks.

That a large short interest exists in many of the active speculative stocks was inferred yesterday by the statements made by certain of the larger commission houses that their loans in the stock loan crowd are not larger in volume than at any time since the close of July, when the averages touched the low point for the year to date. The largest demands for stocks are reported in Studebaker, due to the numerous "tips" which had been circulated of late that the stock would drop to 90; in Steel common, due to reported conditions in the industry, and in stocks of the type of Baldwin, American Can, Continental Can and others in which pools are understood to have been operating of late. In some quarters the statement was made yesterday afternoon that the short interest is becoming "overcrowded," but thus far there has been little in the news developments to force this element to cover.

Railroads and Grain Rates.

Constant repetition of the suggestion that a cut in railroad rates on grain should be brought about to relieve the farmers was believed in the financial district yesterday to have had a cumulative effect on the railroad shares on the New York Stock Exchange. Selling orders were believed to have been based on this consideration yesterday. The feeling was that the proposal will at any rate become a matter of controversy at Washington when Congress assembles. Wall Street believed yesterday that this discussion had obscured the good influence of the large August railway earnings.

Steel Trade Conditions Uncertain.

While several leaders in the steel trade continue optimistic on the general outlook for the industry, information continues to come to hand from day to day of curtailment of operations and reports that some of the smaller independents are shading their prices. Reports have also indicated a further drop of 2 per cent. in steel mill operations, due entirely to the curtailment of independent plants. The Steel Corporation, according to the information, continues to operate at about 85 per cent. of capacity on the whole, which rate has prevailed for about three weeks. The independents are operating at about 70 per cent., against 73½ in the previous week, giving an average for the industry of 75 to 77 per cent., against 79 per cent. The high mark reached at the peak of operations this past Summer was 94 per cent. for the entire industry.

The Upward Turn in Sugar.

With the price of refined sugar now at 8.80 cents, or within 65 points of the highest reached last April, attention is being paid by the trade to several factors which may have considerable influence on the trend of prices. One fact, warranting consideration in view of the sharp advances of the past month from the 7.50 level, was pointed out yesterday by refiners. Recent purchases have been heavy, taken as a whole, and a large portion of these raws remain unshipped. Added to this is the incoming beet sugar, which is expected to reach sizable proportions in the next month. On the other hand, the most important element, so far as the future is concerned, is the estimate, appearing yesterday from Havana, of a new Cuban crop of 3,350,000 tons. This is about 300,000 tons under the present crop.

Question of Railway Wages.

The announcement from Cleveland yesterday to the effect that the trainmen and conductors would demand a 12 per cent. increase in wages was a complete surprise to most of the executives in the railroad district, who had been expecting a demand for a wage increase that was equal to about 30 per cent. of the present wages. The railroad executives were still unconvinced yesterday that the application would not be for more than 12 per cent. Information they had been able to gather in the way of ballots on the wage question indicated that these men were balloting on demands that ranged from 16 to 30 per cent. more than they were receiving at the present time, with about 20 per cent. for the average.

WEEK'S NEW BONDS TOTAL $17,657,000

More Issues Marketed Than in the Previous Week, but the Amounts Were Smaller.

$7,250,000 FOR UTILITIES

State and Municipal Offerings Aggregate $3,932,000—Industrials $3,575,000—Foreign $2,000,000.

New bond issues offered this week aggregated $17,657,000, comparing with $27,201,000 in the previous week. The individual offerings were more numerous, but the amounts were much smaller. Most of the financing was for the account of public utility corporations. State and municipal bonds ranked second, while industrial financing ranked third.

The largest individual offering of the week was of $2,800,000 New England Power Company first mortgage bonds, priced to yield 5.25 per cent. The second largest issue was $2,300,000 for the Standard Plate Glass Corporation. Other large issues included one of $1,500,000 for the Monongahela West Penn Public Service Company, $1,275,000 for the Maher Collieries Company, and $1,150,000 for the Eastern Wisconsin Electric Power Company.

The totals for the last week in groups as compared with the previous week follow:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Public utility	$7,250,000	$16,000,000
State and municipal	3,932,000	1,951,000
Industrial	3,575,000	9,250,000
Foreign	2,000,000	......
Railroad	900,000	......
Total	$17,657,000	$27,201,000

Bankers report a better demand for State and municipal bonds as a result of the recent increase in yield. A short time ago, when these bonds of the better grade were offered on a 4.25 per cent. basis, local bankers found themselves with about $80,000,000 of bonds on their shelves, according to estimates, and with a very thin market. Of late, however, the yield has been increased around 4½ per cent. for the better issues, and the bankers not only have disposed of the greater part of the bonds but also report an improved demand for new offerings.

COTTON IS IRREGULAR IN NARROW MARKET

Prices Gain 14 to 22 Points as Traders and Spinners Even Up Commitments.

Under the influence of a sharp rise abroad cotton advanced 40 points yesterday, but lost about half of this owing to a weak afternoon stock market. As holders seemed disposed to realize profits earlier in the week, there was more or less covering the last two days in the way of terminating obligations before the final condition report from Washington. A feature of the situation is an unusually wide range in private crop estimates, two that appeared yesterday being over a million bales apart. Trading was not heavy, but all cotton for sale found a ready market and selling pressure proved astonishingly light considering the season of the year. Prices gained 14 to 22 points.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

BIG FUTURES BUYING FEATURE IN WHEAT

Eastern Connection Houses Active and Millions of Bushels Change Hands.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Vague rumors that important developments either in the foreign situation or at Washington might come overnight were in circulation after the close today, and as far as could be ascertained were based largely on the big buying of wheat futures by houses with Eastern connections.

Trade in the aggregate was the largest in some time past, and while the day's range was only 1 cent on the active delivery, millions of bushels changed hands.

Today's Chicago prices for the principal commodities were as follows:

BUYING ON THE INCREASE.

Bradstreet's Also Notes a Slight Gain in Industrial Lines.

The general trend of distributive trade is still forward, Bradstreet's weekly review will say today, while Dun's notes a restriction in forward buying in some instances.

According to Bradstreet's "Fall buying in wholesale and jobbing lines is slightly better than a week ago, whereas retail buying gains more slowly. Industry, too, shows a slight gain on the whole, and collections are rather better."

Dun's says that "domestic business expanded so rapidly during the early months this year, and so many needs were covered ahead, that a subsequent contraction of purchasing was to be expected."

CASHIER SENTENCED FOR THEFT OF $50,000

'Dishonesty Doesn't Pay,' Says Jens C. Olsen as 2½-Year Term Is Pronounced.

GAMBLED ON FIRM'S FUNDS

Also Kept Racing Cars and Was a Spender at Roadhouses, Detectives Learned.

When Jens C. Olsen, formerly cashier for Frank Shepard & Co., publishers, at 90 Lafayette Street, was sentenced in General Sessions yesterday to two and a half years in Sing Sing, he turned to a Deputy Sheriff and said: "Well, this is the wages of sin all right."

Olsen pleaded guilty before Judge Rosalsky to an indictment charging him with stealing $50,000 from his former employers, but the latter said accountants had discovered a shortage of more than $80,000.

Olsen, who is 39 years old and gave his address as 7,710 Yates Avenue, Chicago, had been employed by the firm for twelve years. He lived at 182 Seventy-sixth Street, and the police discovered that he kept four or five racing automobiles and was known as a prolific "spender" among patrons of roadhouses on Long Island.

Before he was led over the Bridge of Sighs to the Tombs, whence he will be taken to Sing Sing this morning, he said:

"I was the cashier, bookkeeper and accountant for the firm—the whole works. I saved up a few thousand dollars, invested in stock speculation and lost. I was sure that I had been merely playing the wrong side of the market and that by using the firm's money I could recoup my losses. But I lost everything I took from the firm.

"I knew that arrest was imminent. I destroyed the firm's books and went to Chicago. I engaged in a little business there and was prospering. I hoped in time to pay the firm all I had taken. My wife and children were happy, but along came the detective from New York, and then I realized that I'd have to pay dearly for my dishonesty. It doesn't pay."

And remember we have forty other styles to choose from—smooth finished and rough finished hats in all shades—absolutely the biggest variety in town. That's a guarantee you'll find here just the hat you want. And at $2.75 you'll pay just about half the price our hats are worth. From every angle of style, looks, and wear, they're all five dollar values, but they're all one price, $2.75.

INTERSTATE Safe-T-Arm AUTO SIGNAL

The Signal That Never Fails

It Does What the Hand Tries To Do

It is simply a refinement of the familiar railroad semaphore, throwing out to the side of your car—so that all traffic, afoot or awheel, ahead or behind, may see it unmistakably—a radiant red signal that declares your intention to turn or to stop. And it takes but an instant's slightest finger pressure to turn the trick!
